

FUL TRAGEDY IS ENACTED BY RAVING MANIAC

Aug. 13.—A terrible tragedy was enacted here this morning. J. Duffy, 60 years of age, a man of religious habits, was killed by a maniac who had been confined in the asylum for several years. The maniac, who was known as "Doc" Duffy, had been confined in the asylum for several years. The maniac, who was known as "Doc" Duffy, had been confined in the asylum for several years. The maniac, who was known as "Doc" Duffy, had been confined in the asylum for several years.

When Duffy entered the house Mrs. Duffy asked him where Fred was. Duffy told her he had gone to work. The mother was solicitous about her son's breakfast and his father said he had slept late and ate down town. He had the axe in a sack, and the old man sat nervously fingering the sack while the women proceeded to prepare breakfast. Suddenly he got up and attacked the woman. The older woman cried to her daughter to seize the six-year-old daughter, Margaret, and run, while she turned to battle with her insane husband. The first blow descending cut a deep gash in her elbow and broke the bone. Mrs. Duffy seized the child and ran. Mrs. Lacom, in her helpless condition, was unable to run and fell, when the old man struck her again and again with the axe. Leaving her Duffy walked calmly down the street, slashing his throat with a razor. When the police officer appeared the old man attacked him, but was clubbed into submission.

CY YOUNG.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 13.—Today's celebration of Cy Young day attracted the largest crowd ever seen at a baseball game in Boston. Devotees of the national game from a large section of New England turned out in full force to do honor to the "grand old man" of baseball. The seventh wonder of the baseball firmament, the man who is still a star pitcher at forty-two years of age, was given an ovation that never was equalled, even in the days of the late "King" Kelly. An hour before the game was called the crowd of enthusiastic fans filled grandstand and bleachers, and overran a large section of the field. Jeeping boxes in the grandstand were a number of magnates of major and minor leagues, some of whom had traveled several hundred miles to pay tribute to the veteran pitcher. The Boston Rooters' Club and the association of old-timers were there in full force, while the plain, every-day fans numbered thousands.

"BILL" MAIN WILL PLAY FOOTBALL HERE

"Bill" Main, a California football star, whose home is in Santa Barbara, has written Fred Moulton, captain of the University of Oregon team, that he will come to Oregon this year and play the American game. California is reported as having tried to get him, but Main likes the American game much better than the Rugby. Among local football enthusiasts the new rules are not expected to make much change in the American game from the way it was played last year. Astonishing plans may be worked out, formations that may be as startling as Middleton's spread last fall, but kicking and open plays will predominate.
