MUCH MORE PAVING ORDERED
BY COUNCIL

WEST EIGHTH STREET FROM CHARNELTON TO MONROE
WILL BE PAVED, ALSO A PART
OF FIFTH AND SIXTH STREETS
—MORE SEWERS ORDERED
BUILT

The city council at its meeting last night passed ordinances ordering eight and a half more blocks of the streets of the city paved. West Eighth street, between Charnelton and Monroe, six blocks; West Fifth, between Willamette and Olive, one block, and Sixth street, between Olive and the alley between Willamette and Oak, are the streets to receive a covering of Warren's bitulithic hard surface pavement. There were remonstrances against paving on each of the streets mentioned, but the petitions favoring the pavement represented more property along the streets than did the remonstrances, so the ordinances were passed.

The proposed ordinance to pave West Ninth street from Olive two blocks west to Lincoln was read, but laid over till the next meeting.

More Sewers.
Ordinances for sewers as follows were passed: In the alley between West Tenth and West Eleventh streets from Jefferson street two blocks west; in the alley between Oak and Pearl streets from East Fifteenth to East Sixteenth; in the alley between West Ninth and West Tenth streets one block west from Jefferson.

Other Matters.
The matter of opening up Willamette street north from the S. P. depot grounds was taken up. City Attorney Bean reported that the matter had been given up by those interested. The city attorney was directed to take up the matter of getting an expression from the railroad company in regard to securing the right of way of the company from Lincoln to Pearl streets; also the privilege of foot passengers crossing the tracks at Willamette street.

The city attorney was directed to prepare an ordinance for licensing vendors of popcorn and like materials on the streets.

The council will meet again Monday night.

The Yankee Pass.

It was at a period soon after the close of the Revolutionary war that Aaron Whitney, a Yankee peddler, passed through the Mohawk valley on his way to Albany. The day was Sunday, and there was a law among the Dutchmen of those parts that no one should travel on that day. Moreover, there was as much antipathy between Dutchmen and Yankees as there is between cats and mice. How the Dutch ever left Holland to make homes in a new country beyond the sea no historian has ever explained, for when a Dutchman was once settled anywhere he never moved. Not so the Yankee. He would take up a piece of land, improve it, sell it and go somewhere else. "Metz Gott," exclaimed one of the deacons of the Dutch church, "see that Yankee traveling on the Lord's day! Was ever such blasphemy? Let us take him before Justice Van der Donk, who will doubtless mete out his punishment."

So they took Aaron before the justice. He was sitting under an apple tree near his house, with a glass of schnapps beside him and a long clay pipe in his mouth. This is not mentioned as an unusual position for the great man, for all the long day he sat in no other. As Aaron was taken before him the peddler saw a pair of blue eyes looking at him from a window in the house. There was something in the young girl who owned them to attract him, and there was that in the peddler's spry step and twinkling eye to catch her fancy.

"What you travel Sunday for?" asked Van der Donk, taking his pipe out of his mouth and looking sternly at the peddler.

"I'm goin' to Albany and from there down east. I have sold my wares and want to get home."

"H'm," said the Dutchman, "you stay here till tomorrow. I don't want you to bring the wrath of the Lord down on us."

The peddler threw off his pack, making a virtue of necessity. At least that was the appearance of it. Really he was quite willing to remain over awhile that he might look upon the fair face of the justice's daughter Katrina, who had looked upon him out of her blue eyes. And the girl was equally desirous of seeing more of the engaging peddler. Why it is no man has ever told us, but peddlers are proverbially fascinating to women. Perhaps it is the same audacity that enables them to sell their wares. At any rate, the peddler, leaving his pack for security, went off to the other end of the apple orchard and waited for the girl to come to him, never for a moment doubting that she would do so.

And she did. She had been long desirous of pouring out her dissatisfaction at the life she led to some person in whom she had confidence, and she felt sure that she could confide in the Yankee. She told him that her father compelled her to do all the work, while he smoked and drank schnapps; that she had a thousand dollars in a bank at Albany left her by her mother for which her father was trustee and that he would not let her have it. The peddler told her that she needed a husband to work for her, and she would find this much easier and pleasanter than working for some one else.

Now, the justice, thinking the peddler in a hurry to go on, when the shades of night came down intimated that for a consideration he would pass him. The Yankee declared that Sunday ended at sunset. The Dutchman scouted such theology, maintaining that it lasted till sunrise the next day. The Yankee finally consented to pay. The justice, who either could not write or was too fat or too lazy to write or could not write in English as well as in Dutch, told the Yankee to write a pass. Aaron took up the quill and wrote in an illegible hand on a bit of paper. The Dutchman ran his sleepy eyes over it, grunted "Goot!" signed it and handed it back to him. Anthony folded it, put it in his pocket, took up his pack and departed. The justice got up from his chair and by the aid of two canes got himself into the house, where supper was served him by his daughter. Then, after a couple of hours' smoke, he went to bed.

The next morning when he woke up and called Katrina, as usual, there was no response. The old man roused his neighbors, who hunted high and low for the damsel, but she was not to be found. That she had gone with the peddler never occurred to the justice or any of the stupid Dutchmen. If they connected her disappearance with him it was that he might have murdered her.

Two days passed, and Katrina did not reappear. Then one morning there came a letter to old Van der Donk. Since he was not used to receiving letters he felt sure it contained information of his lost daughter. He helped himself with his canes to the apple tree and got one of his neighbors to bring his pipe and his schnapps. After he had taken a pull at the one and lighted the other he broke the letter's seal. It contained a statement closing his account with the bank in Albany where his daughter's legacy was kept. There was one inclosure. The Dutchman looked at it frontward, sidewise and upside down. He could make nothing of it. Then he called the nearest notary, who read it and told him that it was an order for the bank to pay to Aaron Whitney his daughter's legacy, with accumulated interest. In ten minutes more a light broke into the old man's brain.

"Yah," he said reflectively: "it's r Yankee pass!"

BABY'S EYESIGHT WAS THREATENED

By Terrible Eczema—Head Became a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores—Would Scratch Till Blood Came—Much Money Wasted in Fruitless Treatments—Disease Was Soon

CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. At night we had to pin her hands down. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and in three weeks—what a change! I kept using the Cuticura Remedies for two months and our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fair as a new-born baby, and all for the small cost of a dollar and seventy-five cents where we had spent ten times the money for doctoring. She is now two years old and has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Budke, R. F. D. 4, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, 1907."

SLEEP KILLED

By an Itching Humor. Another Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"I broke out with a humor which spread almost all over my body. The itching would get worse on retiring, so I could not sleep. I tried several remedies but it grew worse until I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Pills which began to relieve me at once. By the time I had used one vial of the Pills, the humor was entirely gone. I wish every sufferer could secure the Cuticura Remedies. Travis Bates, Hamburg, Ark., April 26, 1907."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c) in the form of (Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood.
