New York, Aug. 15.—The pongee dust coat is losing favor of the motorists and in its place we have the smart mohair and serge coats which are by far more serviceable and in many ways more attractive. It has been found that the pongee coat does not keep its fresh appearance so long, but looks sadly rumpled and shapless when the destination is reached, this especially if the coat has ever been laundered. The heavy pongees of the Rajah make, and the French tussore are liked by some, but these have disadvantages. The rough surface of the Rajah shows the soil very quickly and the tussore in a good, heavy quality is expensive. So it seems that mohair is the best all-round material for a motor coat. It can be found in a large range of colors, it keeps its shape and trimness, sheds the dust and is just the right weight. Many of these coats are strictly tailored and of the Rajah cut. The collar may be fastened up close to the throat and the only trimming is rows of stitching with perhaps strapings and buttons. A good practical hat for motoring is a Panama, or rough straw trimmed with a scarf which matches the color of the coat. The veil is not necessary to be of the same color, but one that becomes the wearer and looks well with the coat. Generally the darker shades of blue, green and brown are chosen, leaving the paler tints for short pleasure trips, if such be taken, but white in a wash grade is always popular.

Bordered materials are holding their favor in the feminine field and the borders are being used as trimmings on gowns. The new foulards are especially attractive and are very cool for hot weather dresses. A smart frock, in the new light cherry colored foulard, had pin dots or white and a border of zigzag or chevron effect. The waist was made with small tucks stitched to the bust line in front and to the waist line in back. The border is used for the centre fold in back as well as in front. In the collar, puffs and shoulder seams the border appeared again. The sleeve produced a cape effect by six downward turned tucks at the top and at the wrist were tucked vertically into the cuff. The skirt, a one-piece model, was group-plaited at the sides with a box plait in front and an inverted one in the back. The border of the material around the foot was the only trimming.

The present fashions in jewelry show decided changes from those a hant finish like the real gems, are the only metals worn, but copper, horn and ivory are used abundantly. Mother of Pearl or baroque pearls are set in black silver or copper. Enamels, translucent, with a brilliant finish like the real gems, are among the fads of the day. When carved by a master hand, horn is combined with costly gems, pearls being the favorites. Ivory and silver jewelry is most effective, while cameos with copper settings are exceptionally pretty. Some of the jewelry that is worn in the evening are very odd necklaces, stomachers breast plates, diadems and rings, and for day wear there are necklaces, buckles, buttons and hat pins. The necklaces worn in the daytime are much heavier than those for evening, yet sometimes we see a slender quivering pendant worn on a fine chain. The diadem, instead of being reserved for ceremonial occasions, as has been the fashion, is now worn at dinners, operas or evening parties by nearly every well-dressed woman. Just at present hatpins are receiving much attention.

At first one does not realize how much money can be spent on them—for they must be artistic and either in some piece of old jewelry or some rich design of modern work. On certain hats the pins are chosen just alike, but often they are all different. One hat noticed recently had a silver four-dials, a piece of Roman mosaic, a pale yellow and white cameo set in an old copper rim and a very large, round, darkened ball of carved ivory. That there is a craze for old bits of jewelry is very evident and fully as much time is spent on selecting these pins as on the hats in which they are worn.

Among the combinations of different materials this year are cloth and tussore and tussore and voile. These are seen very frequently in the jacket and skirt suits. The gross-grain tussore is mostly used because the surface is much smoother than the heavy, rough variety. Then in the flimsy the plain colors are combined with checks and stripes. The most fashionable colors in flims are ochre, leather color, dark prune, old blue and bottle green. There have been some plaid skirts of cross bar black and white with linen coats of self color, touched with coarse lace

DR. SCARBROUGH BUILDING NEW DRIER

CRESWELL PRUNE GROWER HAS MADE GREAT SUCCESS OF INDUSTRY—CRESWELL HAS A BUILDING ROOM

(Special Correspondence.)

Creswell, Aug. 15.—Dr. Scarbrough is building another large fruit drier and is having the capacity of another increased. These driers will be completed in time to handle his large crop of prunes. These buildings will present a very attractive and substantial appearance. They are fitted with all modern improvements for handling prunes. This will give Mr. Scarbrough three of the best driers in the state, with 5000 trays, which will hold 120,000 green prunes at one time, a capacity of about 41,000 pounds of cured prunes every 48 hours, including time for unloading and filling of trays. Mr. Scarbrough will have in the neighborhood of half a million pounds of dried prunes. This is from a little over 100 acres which was grain land seven years ago, and then hardly paying interest on $50 an acre, whereas it is paying interest on several hundred dollars an acre now, and these trees will not be at their best until they are about 12 years old. Mr. Scarbrough is a pioneer in the fruit business here and deserves great credit for going into the business so extensively and showing the doubling Thomas what can be done in the horticultural line, as a stranger from Fresno, Cal., remarked the other day. The doctor can even show us old timers a few pointers in the fruit line, and no homesteader can say he has seen all the beautiful scenes and possibilities of the Willamette valley unless he has been through Dr. Scarbrough's prune orchard. Drying starts about the 15th of September, and will last about 25 days.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Brady and Mrs. O. E. Parson have gone to Newport for a few weeks. Miss Merle Scott has charge of the postoffice during Mrs. Parson's absence.

Frank and Herman Schmitt leave Saturday morning for Portland, from where they will take one of Mr. Ruby's English shires to the Marshfield fair which will be held August 24-28. They will sell shares in the stallion to the farmers.

Threshing has been going on for some time now. R. D. Halley had a bad breakdown on the engine of his threshing machine which will take several days to repair.

James E. Noland is having a cement foundation laid for a fine two-story residence. This makes some 20 buildings completed or under construction since spring. Quite a number of handsome and substantial residences and business buildings will go up yet this fall, among which may be mentioned Dr. George's residence of 11 large rooms, a building which citizens of any town would point out to strangers with pride.

Creswell will have a splendid hotel ready for business in another week, built by and to be under the management of John R. Scott. It will be these stories in height and when fully completed will have 31 large sunny rooms. Mr. Scott is one of Creswell's most prominent citizens. Such a hotel is a credit to a town and makes a most favorable impression on homesteaders and the traveling public. Mr. Scott shows by putting up such a splendid struc-

VENETIAN GLASS BLOWERS AT THE CARNIVAL

The Venetian Glass Blowers have a very good outfit and must be seen to be appreciated. They spin, weave and blow glass and make beautiful ornaments out of common glass. Two men are at their fires each night and they spin glass as fine as the hair on one's head. Each person paying admission receives a souvenir and also an extra coupon which entitles them to a chance on a handsome large glass ornament which is raffled off on Saturday night, August 29, and the one in the audience holding the lucky number receives the present free of charge. It is a nice place to visit, and something interesting. Mr. Mangels, the high diver, can also be seen there every night before he makes his dive, spinning, weaving and blowing glass. Everything will be ready at 7:30 p. m. Monday night for the opening at the grounds near the S. P. depot. Join the crowd and have a good time.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little, if any, stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Papists and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

friends in compliment to Miss Beulah Sladden. Progressive duplicate whist was the pastime of the afternoon. Miss Ina Watkins won the first prize and Miss Emma Travis the second. The invited guests were Misses Beulah Sladden, Emma Travis, Ina Watkins, Hazel Evans, France Kelly, Eda and Hazel Humphrey.

The Misses Leone Eysa, Norma Hendricks, Rastolla and Therese Friendly went to Portland the first of the week to attend the wedding of Miss Alice Bretherton and Mr. Clifford Brown. Miss Kaye is the guest of Miss Ella Dobie and the Misses Rosalie and Therese Friendly are stopping at the Nortonia.

Wednesday afternoon, at the home under the chaperonage of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hudson, drove to Bangs Park in a hayrick Thursday evening and enjoyed a few hours of dancing in the pavilion. Refreshments were served during the evening.

On Wednesday last Mrs. Lillian Miller entertained a number of friends. The evening was spent in conversation. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were Professor and Mrs. Shafer, Misses Nettie and Emma Chase, Dr. Maurer, Mrs. Ingham, Miss Beulah Sladden, Miss Veda Quackenbush, Miss Pink Maurer, Miss Evelyn Bristow, Miss Leone Griffin, Miss Beatrice Buoy, Miss Opal Jarvis, Miss DeEtta Ingham,
