CLARKE AND TAYLOR MAY GO EAST

CRACK FOOTBALL PLAYERS MAY NOT BE WITH UNIVERSITY TEAM - MAKES VARSITY STOCK FALL.

"Dad" Clark and "Chuck" Taylor, it is reported here, will not be in the University this fall, but will go East to college. Captain Fred Moulton has received a letter from Portland, asking him to us this influence with the two men to retain them. Without them the chances of Oregon winning the championship honors this fall will be considerably lowered. Both men are all that is left of the famous backfield that played so terrifically last season. Kirkendall and Zacharias having graduated.

Ben Grout, a sub-guard, also may not be in college. His home is in La Grande, and little definite information is known of his intentions. He played a good game in his position. Plinkham, who it was thought during last year would go to Pullman, will return. If he had gone to Washington state, he would have been unable to play the game on account of conference rules. His position is tackle.

Main, the California man who may come to the University, will not be barred by the Walla Walla conference rules, as reported in a Portland publication, as he has never entered college. O. A. C. expects to have several men come from Utah, but it is not likely that they will be permitted to engage in contests this year.

OLD LADIES HOME TO BE ENLARGED

About the first of October the Old Ladies Home of the Christian denomination at the corner of Twelfth and Alder streets will move to the building now occupied by the Kioshe Tiliacum Club just east. There is, however, a probability that the present home will be retained, as more inmates are expected this fall. Sometime in the future a new building will be built to provide for the growth of the institution. The work of the home has been very successful.

Conklin. There are a number of applicants for the science department, but the board has not made a selection. A first-class instructor, however, is assured.—Pendleton Tribune.

The women folks are bravely running the ranch and harvesting their rather short crop of hay.—Crook County Journal.

Ray Gable, employed by the Southern Pacific company in looking after the block system, met with an accident Saturday that all but cost him his life. He started out on his usual morning run to replenish the batteries and as he pumped his speeder through the south end of the yards he came head-on by an incoming freight. He managed to free himself from the speeder, but before he could derail the machine the locomotive struck it, smashing it to bits.

J. D. Buell, who owns property at the corner of Seventh and Charnett streets, upon which he expects to build soon, probably a large apartment house, is anxious to have that street paved, and will probably not build until this is done. He is averse to making expensive improvements until the abutting streets are put in the proper shape. Mr. Buell states that the owner of the building occupied by W. J. Glavin & Son at the corner of Eighth and Charnett is an advocate of paving and will erect a brick block there just as soon as Charnett street is paved.

Charles Beasly, of Portland, who has been identified by the Bohemia mining district for the last 12 years, during which time he has been developing his 160 acres of mining ground on the old Noxday road, seems now to be in a fair way to reap a reward for his long years of labor. He placed an exhibit in Cottage Grove Saturday some exceedingly fine specimens of gold.
