positively that no better water could be found in the Cascade range; that it was clear and cold, and that the stream was apparently fed from springs whose waters come direct from melting snows in the higher ranges.

These gentlemen are entirely reliable and their statements are made from actual knowledge. They have no personal interest in the matter, yet both declared that Eugene will be supplied with the best of mountain water if the Richey creek plan is carried out.

WHY NOT HOLD SPECIAL CURATIVE BOND ELECTION?

There is to be a friendly suit between the city and the Willamette Valley Company to test the legality of the bond issue of $300,000. This plan may be a good one, but it will take a long time, perhaps six or eight months, to get the decision of the supreme court on the points at issue.

This plan is to have the bond buyers state definitely their objections and then call a special election to cure the defects, submitting the bonds again in the manner required by the bidders, who would stipulate to accept them when this was done.

We make this merely as a suggestion that if practical it would have the effect of settling quickly a question that otherwise must remain "in the air" for months with the possibility that the courts might declare the bonds illegal in the end, leaving the city nothing to show for the time and money expended.

Harry Thaw says that "the popular thing is to say that money is the curse and the ruin of young men, but I don't think so. I think a great fortune brings with it a great responsibility and that its tendency is to steady a young man."

A Beardstown (Ill.) saloon-keeper who was forced out of business by the local-option wave went to dig for mussels. At his first haul he landed two fresh-water pearls worth $2000.

The best way to find out the truth about Richey Creek is to visit the stream yourself, which can easily be done any day. A large party is planning to go next Tuesday, and their example should be followed by all others who want to know the truth about the discussion that has filled so much newspaper space.

Naturally, republicans object to passing through "a period of fasting in the wilderness," though Mr. Bryan insists that it is necessary to teach them the viewpoint of the masses. In fact, they don't believe in fasting anyway; they have been feasted so long, you know.

Though "I cannot accept the nomination which you officially tender" were the first words of Mr. Bryan's notification speech, none of his hearers had time to get scared, as he went right on with "without first acknowledging"—etc.

Maybe Harriman was only serving politely on the campaign collectors not to bother him when he said he had no choice between Taft and Bryan. Still, with his record, he cannot be surprised to find the country skeptical.

Railroad managers are waking up and beginning to make a noise like increased business, by ordering head-end betterments. Better late than never, but they might have helped a whole lot by getting busy sooner.

Internal revenue statistics show that cigarette smoking is still rapidly increasing in this country, which may account for a lot of things.

Candidate Sherman has bucked on attending a "baby parade" at one of the big summer resorts. Verily, this is a campaign of innovations.

UNDISMAYED

He came up smilin'—used to say He made his fortune that-a-way; He had hard luck a-plenty, too, But settled down and fought her through, An' every time he got a jolt He lost look on a tighter hold Slipped back some when he tried to climb But came back smilin' every time.

He came up smilin'—used to git His share of knocks, but he had grit, An' if they hurt he didn't set Aroun' the grocery store an' fret, He jist grabbed fortune by the hair An' hung on till he got his share, He had the grit in him to stay An' came up smilin' every day.

He jist gripped hard an' all alone Like a set bull-pup with a bone, An' if he got shook loose, why then He got up an' grabbed hold again, He didn't have no time, he'd say, To bother about yesterday, An' when there was a prize to win He came up smilin' an' pitched in.

He came up smilin'—good fer him! He had the grit, an' pluck, an' vim, So he's on Easy street, an' durned If I don't think his luck is earned! No matter if he lost sometimes, He's got the stuff in him that climbs An' when his chance was mighty slim, He came up smilin'—good fer him! —W. J. Foley in New York Times.

"This is My 56th Birthday." Baron Speck von Sternberg, the American ambassador to the United States, was born in Leeds, England, August 21, 1852. His father was a naturalized Englishman and his mother an English woman. Taronga the death within two years of all the intervening male members of the family the father became heir to the family's entailed estates and removed to Germany. The present baron was then seven years old and he was immediately sent to school at one of the foremost German colleges, completing his education at the military academy at Potsdam. He fought through the Franco-German war and remained in the active military service until 1885. In that year he was appointed military attaché to the German legation at Washington, which marked the beginning of his brilliant diplomatic career. In 1890 he was transferred to Peking and thence to Madrid, returning to Washington in 1898 as first secretary of the legation. In 1903 he was elevated to the post of ambassador at Washington.

Politics and Politicians

Judge John F. Worthington, republican candidate for governor of Arkansas, is stumping the state in a vigorous fashion. Republicans of New Hampshire will meet in convention in Concord on September 17 to name candidates for the state offices to be filled at the November election.

Charles H. Keating, of Mansfield, Ohio, has been appointed assistant director of the republican speakers' bureau, and has been placed in charge of the work at the Chicago headquarters.

The boom of John B. Stanchfield for the democratic nomination for governor of New York has been revived. It is said that the choice of Mr. Stanchfield would be satisfactory alike to Mr. Bryan, to Chairman Mack and to Leader Murphy, of Tammany Hall.

Eight American born Chinese citizens of Los Angeles have formed a "Bryan and Kern" club. The club, it is said, will work to have the Chinese voters throughout California support the national democratic ticket at the November elections.

Martin W. Littleton, former president of Brooklyn and who was the leading counsel for Harry K. Thaw in his second trial, is being discussed as a possible candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of New York.

An enthusiastic woman suffrage campaign has been inaugurated in Oklahoma, and it will be actively maintained until the election in November. The prime director of the movement is Mrs. Katherine Biggers of Chickasha, president of the Oklahoma Suffragette Association.

George W. Croner, former congressman from the Eighth Indiana district, has been appointed at the head of a labor bureau established by the republican state central committee of Indiana. It is said that a fund of $25,000 has been set aside to carry on the work of this bureau.

The official notification of the candidates on the independence party ticket is planned to be held within the next week or ten days. The notification of Thomas L. Higgen, candidate for president, will take place at his home in West Springfield, Mass., and that of John Temple Graves, candidate for vice-president, will take place, it is said, in Georgia. Adlai Stevenson, former vice-president of the United States and candidate on the democratic ticket for governor of Illinois, is 73 years old. Despite his years he is still vigorous and active and his friends expect him to make a winning race against Governor Deneen. Mr. Stevenson declares that whether elected or not it will be the last time he will be a candidate for public office.

DELICIOUS BANANA CREAM.

This recipe is highly recommended by one of our correspondents; try it for dessert tomorrow. Peel five large bananas, rub smooth with five tablespoons of sugar. Add one teaspoon sweet cream beaten to a stiff froth, then add one 10c package of Lemon JELL-O dissolved in 1-2 cups of boiling water. Pour into mold and when cold garnish with candied cherries. Serve with whipped cream, or a good pudding sauce. JELL-O is sold by all grocers at 10c per package.

Advertisements, Like Clocks, Should Keep Running

A store's advertisements tell the people what is "doing" at that store—what is new, what is inviting, why today is a good time to visit the store. People look for the ads to tell them these things just as naturally as they would look at a clock to tell the time.

Sometimes a clock does not run—sometimes a store's ad does not run. A "run-down" clock or ad are about equally unsatisfactory, unserviceable, misleading. Curious thing about it is that a merchant who would think it absurd to have a run-down or out-of-repair clock will, sometimes, deliberately let his ad stop running. It's not wise, nor good business, nor defensible on any known grounds—but it is sometimes done.
