A. R. BLACK MAKES LARGE WATER FILINGS

ONE APPROPRIATION ON WALDO LAKE—TWO ON SALMON CREEK—WILL GENERATE 40,000 ACTUAL HORSEPOWER

A. R. Black, who has been silently working on the irrigation scheme at Waldo Lake, today filed papers with the county clerk appropriating and describing three recent appropriations by him on Waldo Lake and Salmon creek, which will be of far-reaching value to the upper Willamette valley in consequences. While few details are offered to the public, the shortest description of the projects indicates an irrigation plan is on foot that may turn the future of the country from the past.

Mr. Black succinctly and accurately gives the following description of his three latest filings, which will be a part of the Waldo Lake project:

"The first one," he says, "appropriates 150,000 acre feet of water and 150,000 acre feet of reservoir capacity in Waldo lake, the waters of which will be discharged through what will be known as the Waldo canal at the south end of Waldo Lake, into a branch of Salmon creek. The water is to be used first for power purposes and then for irrigating in the Willamette Valley."

"The second appropriation is for a power plant, appropriating 500 cubic feet of water per second of time from Salmon creek. The third appropriation is also for a power plant, appropriating 500 cubic feet of water per second of time from Salmon creek."

"One of the power plant sites is below the other on the creek, so that the same water will be used by both plants. One has over 500 feet head, the other over 300 feet head. The two will develop over 40,000 actual horsepower."

Mr. Black states that he expects to complete forty-five thousand feet of reservoir capacity at the lake by next November, which amount of water will be available for irrigation next summer.

Irrigation in the upper Willamette valley and its possibilities have been overlooked by most people, but from government reports and those people who come from irrigated sections, the plains of the Willamette are almost ideal for such a proposition as Mr. Black's seems to be. While the details beyond exactly what has been accomplished by Mr. Black and his men have not been given out, there is little doubt but that it must be an irrigation project of consequence to the whole region.
