Miss Nettie Anderson, of Lorain, was guest of honor at a tally-ho ride to Seavy's ferry last Thursday evening. The drive, followed by an appetizing lunch spread on the banks of the McKenzie, was highly enjoyed by the following: Mae Gibson, Lena Smith, Maude Guthrie, Bertha Davies (Ashland), Beulah Kinsey, Nettie Addison, Edna Hask, Eva Burton, Ethel Kinsey, Albert Lloyd Pickard.

On Tuesday morning Phil Hammond entertained a few of his friends. The evening was pleasantly spent in games and a guessing contest in which Miss Leslie Emmons won first prize and Harold Bean second. Mrs. Hammond served dainty refreshments. The guests were Miss Beulah Sladden, Miss Leslie Emmons, Miss Mary Rose, Miss Grace Woods, Mr. Harold Bean, Mr. Elmer Furness, Mr. Wendell Harbour and Phil Hammond.

The Women's Patriotic League met with Mrs. S. M. Yoran this afternoon. After the usual routine of business and literary program, Mrs. Yoran served a dainty lunch, assisted by her daughter, Miss Yoran, and granddaughters, Miss Lucile and Beatrice Yoran. Mrs. Nelson, of Chicago, was the guest of the club.

Mrs. C. E. Becker, of Chicago, is visiting at the rectory, the guest of her sister, Mrs. P. K. Hammond.

An informal luncheon was given this week by Miss Maude Kerns at the pretty Kerns bungalow on the Willamette to Miss Leone Kays and the Misses Emma and Jean Wold. Miss Kerns returns next week to Seattle to resume her position as art instructor in the Seattle schools. Miss Emma Wold expects to leave soon for an extended trip through Europe.

Last Saturday a jolly crowd of High school girls spent the day at Hendrick's park. The party was composed of the Misses Genevieve and Carrie Elspass, Ensel and Mary Barker, Cooby Gilstrap, Agnes Dodson, Kate Henderson, Grace Woods, Margery McCall (La Grand), Edith Nickelson, Lillian Gilkey and May DeLay.

One of the most enjoyable affairs given by the Birthday club was the surprise given Mrs. Straight last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. McMurray. The ladies went early and spent the afternoon with their needlework and the preparation of a sumptuous supper, which was served on the lawn at 6:30, after the husbands had come from their places of business. Those present were Mr.

ling shade. Brown, more than any other color needs most careful selection because with certain complexions it is very unbecoming. Greens will share honors with blues partly because they are so often combined. Yellowish tones in the greens will be noticeable. Reds are always attractive for cooler days and we are shown garnet, terra cotta, wine, old rose and its shades. Grays are much liked and the heliotrope, wistaria and plum colors are modish. There are no conspicuous shades among the new colors; they are all soft.

It has been for many seasons the correct style to wear a belt matching one's skirt, but now fashion says a white belt should be worn with a white waist whatever the color of the skirt may be. For the slender girl a belt matching the color of the skirt does very well, but for the woman who is the least bit stout it shortens her waist line and makes her appear even stouter. Let her choose a shaped or bias belt which will be more becoming than a wide one or a giraffe. A stitched belt made of the material like the skirt, cut very narrow and fitted smoothly, is a good style and is becoming to many. A wide giraffe of ribbon is pretty for the slender girl to wear with a thin frock. When raised slightly in the back in Empire style the effect is a little more charming.

The modish lingerie blouse of sheer batiste, mull or lawn in delicate coloring is a particular favorite with the Parisian. The tailor-made waists of colored linen or madras are not as popular as they once were, but it is often seen with the sleeves flat on the shoulders like those of a man's shirt. But to return to the thin blouses. We see the note of color in the material itself or in the embroidery. Waists of the simple, tailored models should be made of fine, sheer goods because the beauty of a plain waist lies in the quality of the material and they should be just as dainty in their way as the hand embroidered waists are in theirs. Colored blouses in a coarse material lose all their smartness, and are even less desirable than white ones of coarse finish. The sleeves are much smaller than in seasons before, and there is little or no shirring where the cuff joins the sleeve. Many are finished with tucks stitched upward from the cuff top. The cuffs are fastened with tiny pearl buttons and loops or wrist holes, and they must fit the wrist snugly.

There was never such a variety in hat decorations as there has been the last few seasons. The flowers seen on the midsummer hats are the most perfect imitations of those growing in fields, orchards and old-time flower gardens. Apple blossoms, and cherries, with sometimes the fruit—clovers, daisies, jessamine, lilies of the valley, moss roses, clematis and others too numerous to mention. Some of the hats are veritable flower gardens, and are charmingly becoming to some women. This coming autumn the return of the fancy feathers that were so much worn during the past spring will gladden the hearts of women who like the novelties and fashionable plumes. Wings will be used in great profusion and ostrich plumes will be every bit as popular as in former days. However, it is believed that the latter will be combined with fine, soft feathers, especially the albatross. Encrusted or fringed feathers promise to be much in vogue. They are shown this season in a much better finish. Among the novelties in feathers are small wings glued onto a strip of buckram with the curves all going the same way and some large wings on one side. This band is long enough to go round the crown of the hat—which must be of fairly good size—and this is the only trimming needed.

The tailored linen suits are very much in evidence among the summer girls, and so numerous are the different colors that they are to be found in that every one can find a shade that is becoming. Rose linen is particularly striking when relieved by touches of white or black. Green linen, so cool and soft in a medium shade, is most effective. It is often finished with lingerie frills around the neck or little covers and cuffs or black or of black with white overlapping. The lavender lineas are exceptionally pretty, but as a rule this is a trying color for the average complexion. However, it has been discovered that liberal trimmings of white make it more becoming. I have noticed some very chic suits of lavender, tailor-made, and braided with several widths of flat, white braid, having buttons of white braid or pearl. With such a suit a sheer white lingerie blouse should be worn, an all-white hat or one in which there is a slight touch of lavender. This, indeed, would make a charming toilette, as it has a certain FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

PENDLETON SUFFERS FROM SERIOUS FIRE

Pendleton, Or., Aug. 21.—New buildings will soon arise on the scene of this morning's fire, which destroyed $50,000 worth of property. The First Christian church, which lost a frame building valued at $18,000, with $8000 insurance, will replace the old structure with stone. The Wilcox implement company, which lost the entire stock valued at $30,000, with $15,000 insurance, immediately opened an office across the street and wired for new stock. The company will erect a new building at once. Only two automobiles and roll-top desk were saved from the largest stock of implements in Eastern Oregon.

The fire started in the barn of the Golden Rule Hotel, and spread rapidly before a strong wind. All the buildings burned were frame. The city council announces the fire district will be enlarged to take in the burned district, and will allow no more frame buildings.
