Man Separated From His Wife

Who Is Responsible?

We refer to a man who lives here and keeps his family in Portland because he cannot find a house for them in Eugene. This is bad for him and bad for Eugene. The real estate men tell us they cannot supply half the demand for houses. We will furnish the Lumber, Lath and Shingles if some one will get busy and build a few more houses to rent.

CORONER HOLDS INQUEST OVER WRECK VICTIMS

distance. He supposed they got on after he got off.
Eugene Davis, of Portland, news agent on the train, was in the front end of the smoker at the time of the wreck. He said he tried to reach for the emergency brakes, but was thrown to the opposite side of the car. He felt the train skidding along on the rails and then he knew that the brakes were already set. The car tilted and he crawled out the upper side. He ran back to the day coach and secured several bottles of whiskey for the injured men. He then went among the passengers and secured Talcum powder and cloths with which to dress the burns and scalds of the engineer.
W. Waddle, proprietor of the Hotel Gross, who was a passenger on the train, testified that he was sitting in the rear end of the smoker. When the train came to a standstill with a jolt he thought it was a holdup, but soon learned the cause of the sudden stopping. The dead engineer was a personal friend of Mr. Waddle's, and as he told how he tried to help Nicholas out of the wreckage tears came to his eyes and his voice was choked with emotion.

William Hodas, who was with Mr. Waddle, testified that he jumped through the window of the smoking car. He was then close to the overturned locomotive, and thinking it might explode he ran over into a wheat field and remained there until he thought all danger was past. He heard the engineer moaning and helped get him out.

Conductor Minkler was recalled and testified that the carcass of the bull was badly mangled and that its head was cut off near the junction of the neck with the shoulders.

Otto Gilstrap, a newspaper reporter, testified that he saw the neck and head of the animal.

Coroner Gordon made a statement that the track was properly fenced at that point and that there were two gates nearby, both securely tied. It could not be seen how the bull had gained access to the railroad right-of-way. He stated that Superintendent Fields, of the Southern Pacific Company, asked permission of him for the removal of the body of Fireman Bolter to Portland, and the permission was granted.

The coroner then adjourned the inquest till five o'clock this afternoon in order to secure more testimony.

The new testimony is intended to bring out facts as to the responsibility for the bull being on the railroad right-of-way at the time of the wreck.

AT THE GRAND.

The feature picture at The Grand tomorrow night is the "Little Chimney Sweeps." The description follows: A wealthy family and a friend are dining when the little son, by request, renders Josephine's "Berceuse" on the violin. The husband soon after departs, whereupon the guest seizes the woman's hand and declares his passion for her. Being rebuked, he glides out with a cruel smile on his face. Next, in a secluded spot the villain conceals a vile plot with footboards, with the result that the little boy is kidnapped. Returning to the mansion, the villain witnesses the terrible grief of the bereaved mother and is avenged for the slight put upon him. Meanwhile, the boy has become a walf and chimney sweep and endures many hardships. On passing a beautiful house one day the lad and his companion came upon a beggar playing a violin. Reminded that he can perform upon the instrument, the lad takes from the beggar's hand and renders the "Berceuse." At once a window in the mansion is thrown open by a woman who recognizes the melody. Rushing out to the gate she clasps her darling boy in her arms. Then follows the arrest of the villain and his punishment, thus ending one of the greatest series ever taken by a picture machine.

There are seven other pictures, and two illustrated songs on the bill. The entire program will be found in another column. Two performances every evening at 8 and 9 o'clock.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy for headache, biliousness, and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee, at Kuykendall's drug store, 50c.

HEAVY BLASTING INJURES MANY

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—A large large blast at Gray Bros.' quarry on Nee street, near Day, caused a shower of rocks for a large radius in that neighborhood. Several large rocks went through the roof and windows of the Clement school, and only the fact that school had not yet been called prevented a panic of 500 pupils. Four children, just entering the yard, were struck by rocks, but not seriously injured.

SMALL SUBURBAN TRACTS ARE PLACED ON MARKET HERE

The proposition of the Eugene Real Estate and Investment Co. to sell off a tract of land close to the city in small tracts is a move in the right direction. This city ought to be surrounded by a belt of small fruit farms, just as Salem is, the country for several miles out from the capital city having been cut into small tracts years ago. The result is that there are now hundreds of comfortable suburban homes there, whose owners are making a good living and are satisfied to cultivate a small place thoroughly in preference to taking poor care of a large farm.

About Eugene the land has been held in large tracts until recently and the city is still immediately surrounded by large places. "Fruitvale," "Garden Home," and "Blair Street Addition" are now on the market, the latter being largely sold out already, and these tracts, from an acre up, fill a real want and should be eagerly purchased by home-seekers.

For Sore Feet.

"I have found Buelon's Arnica Salve to be the proper thing to use for sore feet, as well as for healing burns, sores, cuts, and all manner of abrasions," writes Mr. W. Stone, of East Portland, Maine. It is the proper thing, too, for piles. Try it! Sold under guarantee at W. A. Kuykendall's drug store, 50c.

FORBES HAS LONG FOOTBALL HISTORY

Robert W. Forbes, the big Yale end who will coach Oregon this season, is perhaps the most noted football player ever secured to coach a team. His college football career began at Wesleyan University, where he played for two seasons as a guard and tackle. He afterward entered Yale, where he played tackle in 1905 and end in 1906, being chosen both years for the All-America team.

Forbes was graduated from Yale in 1907, and last autumn coached the West Point football squad. He lives at Ballard, Wash., where he is engaged in the lumber business. He is about 30 years old, and is a big, powerful man, weighing more than 200 pounds. Under his coaching the Oregon team is expected to make an excellent record.—Oregonian.
