CURE BY CUTICURA AT CITY MISSION

Young Woman Found in Awful Condition with Scabies—Body a Mass of Sores from Scratching—Tried Many Remedies for Seven Weeks—Result Was Discouraging, But

ITCHING TORTURES YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"While I was doing missionary work in the lower portion of several cities I found it necessary to know a little of the efficacy of a few medicines and after a while I found that a little knowledge of Cuticura was about all I needed. One of the very bad cases I had to deal with was that of a young woman who had come to us not only broken in spirit but in a most awful condition physically. Her doctor examined her and told us that she had scabies (the itch), impetigo, rheumatism, etc., brought on from exposure and the effects of her ragged-edges life. Her poor body was a mass of sores from scratching and she was not able to retain solid food. We tried many things, a good tonic was prescribed and baths with a rubbing of lard and sulphur. We worked hard for seven weeks and you can imagine how discouraged we were when, after all that time, we could see no improvement. One day I happened to see a Cuticura advertisement telling how a little baby had been cured of a bad case of skin eruption, and although I had but ninety-seven cents with me, I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a bottle of Cuticura Ointment. When I reached home I was like a child with a new toy, and we bathed our patient well and gave her a full dose of the Resolvent. She slept that night better than she had since she had been with us and the next day I located the price of a box of Cuticura Ointment. I was not exaggerating when I say that in exactly five weeks this young woman was able to look for a position, being strong enough to work and full of ambition. In another month she left the home, and now has a good position in a nice family where she is respected and is strong and well. You may refer any one you wish to me, personally. BITTER PRIMARY FIGHT IN BRADGER STATE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 1.—The voters of all political parties, republican, democratic, prohibitionists and socialists, are participating in the wide primary in Wisconsin today. Candidates for all the state offices from the governorship down are to be chosen, and also representatives in congress, members of the legislature and county officers. For the first time in this state, the choice of United States senator devolves upon the voters direct. Under primary election the nomination is to be made by the people, although under the federal and state constitutions and statutes the election must be made by members of the legislature. There is some doubt in the minds of politicians as to how binding the voice of the people will be upon the legislators, especially if the vote is split pretty equally among the candidates.

The names of four candidates appear on the primary ballot for the republican nomination to succeed Senator Isaac Stephenson. Former State Senator William H. Hutton, author of the Wisconsin railway commission law, was the first to announce his candidacy. He came within two votes of the election two years ago and is referred to by his supporters as the "man who wrote the Wisconsin idea into good, sound law." Senator Stephenson, who is a candidate to succeed himself, was the last to enter the field. Mr. Stephenson is reputed to be one of the richest men in Wisconsin, and enjoys being mentioned as the man who financed the Wisconsin idea, including LaFollette and the entire reform program. The two other candidates for the republican nomination are Francis E. McGovern, district attorney of Milwaukee county, who won his spurs in the fight against graft in Milwaukee, and former Congressman S. A. Cook, of Neenah, who through all the fourteen years of political strife in this state has succeeded fairly well in maintaining pleasant relations with all factions.

The democratic candidates for the senatorial nomination are Neal Brown of Wausau, and Melvin A. Hoyt of Milwaukee. The candidate of the socialist-democratic party is Jacob Runnel, also of Milwaukee.

Governor James O. Davidson is to be renominated as head of the republican ticket.

The leading candidate of the democrats for the gubernatorial nomination is John A. Aylward of Madison. Mr. Aylward was the candidate two years ago. He is ultra-progressive in his ideas and is known as a staunch Bryan man. He is opposed for the democratic nomination by Adolph J. Schmitz, of Milwaukee. Winfred D. Cox of this city is the choice of the prohibitionists for governor, and the choice of the social-democrats is Harvey Dee Brown of Racine.

The most bitter fight of the primary campaign, which seemingly is far overshadowing that for the republican nomination for United States senator, is the contest between Congressman John J. Jenkins and Irvine L. Lenroot of Superior for the nomination for congress in the Eleventh district. Many well-informed politicians are of the opinion that Representative Jenkins is in danger of losing his political life.

The contest in the Eleventh district is one of no ordinary moment, inasmuch as Representative Jenkins is the chairman of the House Judiciary committee, which has been widely assailed as the "morgue" of the house of representatives, where Speaker Cannon finds a way of burying beyond hope of resurrection the proposed legislation that he believes should be designated for the death. Organized labor is bitter against Representative Jenkins, who has stood against anti-injunction legislation and other legislation wanted by labor. But probably more bitter against him even than organized labor are the anti-saloon and anti-liquor forces. He has taken a stand against the Littlefield bill, the Heppburn-Dolliver bill and like measures calculated to give the states control of the liquor shipped into their borders.

Representative Jenkins naturally resents the charge that his committee is a "morgue," a cemetery for legislation not wanted by the speaker, or anything of the kind. He takes the position that his committee has simply had to pass on measures from the constitutional standpoint and has done so without fear or favor.

The man who is running against Representative Jenkins for the republican nomination, Irvine L. Lenroot, is a former speaker of the Wisconsin house of representatives. He is an intimate friend and supporter of Senator LaFollette. For several weeks past both Jenkins and Lenroot have been making a thorough canvass of the Eleventh district. It is freely predicted that if Jenkins wins the nomination it will be by an extremely narrow margin.

GENERAL PRIMARY FIGHT IN MICHIGAN

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 1.—Following one of the most interesting campaigns that Michigan has seen in some years, the voters are participating today in a general primary for the selection of candidates for all state offices.

The interest of the primary centres chiefly in the republican contest for the governorship. Governor Fred M. Warner is fighting for a third term nomination, backed by his political beneficiaries and many friends who have been represented by the old political machine in this state.

Governor Warner's opponents are Dr. James B. Bradley, of Eaton Rapids, and Horatio Earle, the present state highway commissioner. Both have made very active campaigns. The friends of Governor Warner are confident he will be renominated, but the best observers are inclined to the opinion that neither of the three candidates will receive forty per cent of the votes cast at the primary and that as a result the nomination will be made by the state convention.

While the republicans are divided by factional differences, the democrats present a solid front. The leaders of the democratic party are more hopeful of success this fall than they have been in years. They believe they have a chance to elect a governor and possibly capture a congressman and some of the county offices. At present the party has no representation in congress and but few officeholders of any nature whatsoever.

The democratic choice for the governor is Lawton T. Hemans, of Mason. Mr. Hemans is spoken of as a young, clean man, with many friends in both parties. He is an orator of no mean ability, a student, a writer of history, a lawyer and a politician.

The prohibition party will have a full state ticket in the field, headed by John W. Gray as the candidate for governor.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BREVITY FORM

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 1.—William J. Bryan received an enthusiastic reception on his arrival in Fargo this morning. He spoke to a large crowd early this afternoon, after which he departed for Grand Forks, where he is scheduled to speak tonight.

Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 1.—The annual district convention of the Western Federation of Miners convened in this city today. Delegates are in attendance from the mining regions of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and New Mexico.

New Castle, Pa., Sept. 1.—Delegates representing 150 local branches of the Retail Merchants' Association of Pennsylvania are attending the association's twelfth annual convention which met here today. The repeal of the mercantile tax law is one of the principal subjects slated for discussion during the three days of the convention.

New York, Sept. 1.—Three new lightships recently completed for the government left today for Seattle, by way of the Staria of Magellan. Owing to the fact that the fleet will be required to make frequent stops for coaling, it is expected the trip will occupy between four and five months.

Warrentown, Va., Sept. 1.—The twenty annual exhibition of the Warrentown horse show, to be held tomorrow and Thursday, promises to be the largest and best show of its kind ever given here. There are more entries in all of the classes than for any previous show, and more horses of very high class will be shown.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 1.—The annual convention of the Arkansas grand lodge of Eagles is being held here with a large and representative attendance. Worthy President Gus Paul presided over the opening ceremonies this morning and Governor Pridell and Mayor Daley welcomed the visitors. The convention will remain in session three days.

MANY THINK WATER SAMPLES WERE TAMPERED WITH

STATE HEALTH BOARD SAYS SAMPLES SENT DOWN BY MAYOR MATLOCK ARE UNFIT TO DRINK—MAYOR THINKS THEY BECAME CONTAMINATED AFTER LEAVING HERE.

Relative to the report of the state board of health upon samples of Ritchey Creek water sent to the board by Mayor Matlock to be analyzed, in which it is stated that the water is unfit for drinking or domestic purposes, Mayor Matlock stated to a Guard reporter this morning that the report as published is just as he received it, but he stated that he is of the opinion that the water became contaminated in some manner after leaving Eugene and before it was analyzed. A good many others, in discussing the matter with the mayor, stated this morning that they believe that the water had been tampered with by those who are opposed to the city securing its supply from Ritchey creek.

Mayor Matlock sent three samples of the water to the state health board about ten days ago, one from Ritchey creek, one from Roaring creek and the third from Bradley creek. He delivered them to the express office in person and all that anyone else had to do with the shipment at this end of the line was Dr. J. W. Harris, county health officer, who simply put his signature to the jars which contained the water.

The Report.

Following is the report of the state board on the analysis of the water:

Oregon State Board of Health.
Office of Robt. C. Yenny, M. D.,
Secretary and State Health officer
422 Marquam Building.

Portland, Aug. 28, 1908.
To the State Board of Health, Portland, Oregon.

Gentlemen:—I have to report examination of specimens of water from Dr. J. W. Harris, of Eugene. Upon examination of these specimens I have found as follows:

- No. 1 (Ritchey Creek) contains B. Coll.
 - No. 2 (Roaring Creek) contains B. Coll.
 - No. 3 (Bradley Creek) contains B. Coll.
- All three specimens are therefore to be condemned as unfit for drinking or domestic purposes.
- Yours very truly,
RALPH C. MATSON, M. D.,
Bacteriologist to the State Board.

Believe Something Wrong

Those who have advocated the taking of water from Ritchey creek for city purposes cannot help but believe that some one has been instrumental in substituting other water in the jars sent down by the mayor for the water obtained from the creeks named. For years residents in the vicinity of the creeks have drunk the water and have pronounced it as good as any mountain water they ever drank and better than that from a great many streams.

H. H. McNamar, who has lived on Ritchey creek for several years, called at the Guard office yesterday afternoon. He stated that the water is nearly ice cold and he has been using it for domestic and drinking purposes ever since he has lived there and there has been no sickness whatever in his family. Others who have used the water for years say the same thing.

Mr. McNamar stated that he measured the flow of the water in the creek on August 6. There was a flow of 285 miners' inches in a fall of three inches to the rock, which was equivalent to a flow of 2,850,000 gallons per day. The stream is now running 350 miners' inches, he says, which makes over 3,000,000 gallons per day. It has never been any lower than when he measured it on August 6, he says. He is of the opinion that this is enough water to supply Eugene for many years to come, even if the population is doubled within the next three years, as many expect. He is also of the opinion that the water is cleaner than that in the creek cannot be found in the mountains of Oregon.
