Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EUGENE GIRL ARRESTED FOR ANOTHER'S THEFT

MISS MARIE NORNA HONIG HAS A DOUBLE IN PORTLAND THAT CAUSED HER ARREST HERE AND TRIAL IN THE METROPOLIS—SHE WAS CLEARLY EXONERATED

(Oregonian.)

Arrested at her home in Eugene four days ago, rushed to Portland on a charge of shoplifting, released on bonds, tried in the municipal court yesterday afternoon and acquitted after establishing a clear case of mistaken identity, is the strange case of Marie Norna Honig, a striking blonde, 19 years of age, who resides with her mother at the University town.

Stranger still, it was established by her attorney, John H. Stevenson, that another woman, remarkably like the defendant in appearance—her double, in fact—had attempted a crime similar to the one for which Miss Honig was arrested, but the innocence of the defendant was established sufficiently to cause the case against her to be dismissed.

The young woman was charged with having entered the Palais Royal store, an exclusive women's establishment on Washington street, and making away with a crepe de chine dress. The theft was extremely bold and equally as novel. The young woman walked into the place, approached a saleswoman and asked to be shown a certain kind of a dress. The saleswoman complied with the request and the prospective purchaser was quickly satisfied. She ordered the dress done up in a parcel, and as the saleswoman did so, asked that it be charged to her husband, Harry Redding, steward at the Portland Hotel.

This the saleswoman could not do, and referred the young woman to Mrs. M. E. Becker, the proprietress. The young woman walked back to Mrs. Becker's desk and repeated the request. Mrs. Becker demurred, declaring that she would call the hotel by phone and ascertain the reliability of the proposed creditor. The young woman protested and refused to consent to such action. She insisted that she be allowed to take the dress with her and the bill be sent to her husband. Mrs. Becker refused, but meanwhile the saleswoman had placed the parcel containing the dress near the young woman.

Bold Thief Steals Dress

Suddenly she seized it, and before any of the employes could stop her, dashed out of the store and down the street. Police headquarters was at once notified, and Detective Hawley at once detailed on the case. He questioned many of the employes at the Palais Royal who had seen the bold shoplifter. Each had caught only a profile, or side view, but gave excellent descriptions. Then Redding was called up and asked if he knew any one answering the description of the young woman who would represent herself to be his wife.

"Of course I do," he replied without hesitation. "It's Marie Honig."

The crime was committed August 21. Detective Hawley boarded the train and went to Eugene, where Marie Honig lives. She had returned from the theatre and had just retired when the officer called. Hastily arising, she attired herself and caught the train to Portland in half an hour. On her arrival she was released on bail and was tried yesterday.

Meanwhile, a crime, almost identical in detail and conception, had been atempted at the department store of Meier & Frank Company by a woman resembling Marie Honig very closely. The woman went into the suit department and asked to see a certain kind of a suit. She also was quickly satisfied and ordered the suit done up in a package. After the saleswoman ha d complied, the purchaser asked that it be charged to Harry Redding, her ausband, steward at the Portland hotel.

The saleswoman referred the request to the credit department and the sale was not made. The department was willing to do as requested provided she consented to calling Redding by phone. This she refused to do.

Feathers in Courtroom

The scene in municipal court yesterday afternoon during the trial was an odd one. Filled with femininity, the gloomy walls where the blind goddess presides looked down upon frills and feathers; and incidentally upon many gum-chewing matches. On the outskirts of the crowd of women were many patrolmen, who were deeply interested. News of the queer case spread rapidly about the building, and even Chief Gritzmacher joined the throng of curious spectators.

Mrs. M. E. Becker, the complainant, was the first witness called by the state. She was positive in her identification of the defendant as the bold young woman who entered her store and made away with a suit of clothing, the price of which was $37.50. She told of the theft and related not only a clear and concise story, but remained steadfast in her identification under severe cross-examination by Mr. Stevenson. Several of her employes also testified, including Miss Modjeski, Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Amus.

None of the others, however, was positive in the identification, though they were emphatic that the profile, side and rear view of the defendant were identical with those of the woman. Descriptions of profile, hats, gowns and hair were prominent features of the examination.

Redding testified that he knew Miss Honig quite well, indeed, had been her very good friend and admitted that he at once suspected that it was she when he was given a description of the woman who entered the Palais Royal and made away with the suit.

A photograph of the defendant was introduced as evidence. It had been identified by many of the employes of the Palais Royal as the picture of the woman who stole the suit. However, it was only a profile view and while admitted by Miss Honig to be a picture of herself, it could not be identified positively as that of the woman who stole the suit.

Miss Honig Proves Alibi

The defendant, in her own behalf, swore that she was in Eugene at the time of the theft, and had been there several days before. She went into detail as to her movements during the time preceding and following the theft. Her statements were corroborated by all the witnesses for the defense.

In her behalf her mother and a number of friends from Eugene were present as witnesses. Among them were Mrs. Mary E. Honig, mother of the defendant; Mrs. George McMann, Mrs. Julia Caylor, Miss Frankie Caylor and Mrs. Claude Gaby.

A young saleswoman at Meier & Frank's testified positively that the defendant was not the woman who came to the department store and asked that a dress be charged to Harry Redding, her husband. She described in detail the other woman, who had represented herself to be the wife of the hotel steward, but was positive that the defendant was not the woman.

In rendering his decision Judge Van Zante not only found the defendant not guilty, and dismissed the case, but took occasion to declare that in his opinion she had been clearly exonerated.

READY TO NOTIFY CANDIDATE WATKINS

Ada, O., Sept. 2.—Aaron S. Watkins, who is the head of the Ohio Northern university here, will be officially notified tomorrow of his nomination for vice-president on the prohibition ticket. The notification ceremonies will be of a simple character, though the event will be made an occasion for a considerable gathering of the party leaders from various parts of the country. Following his notification Professor Watkins plans to start on a tour of speech-making that will extend through several of the Southern and Middle states.

MRS. ROBERT G. INGERSOLL WOULD SEE HUSBAND'S SPIRIT

New York, Aug.—The widow of the late Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll today admitted that she hopes to hear from his spirit and that she is making efforts to communicate with the departed agnostic through spiritualistic mediums.

Mrs. Ingersoll denies that she has been converted to spiritualism or that she believes in spirits, but says that if any exist, her husband exists, and wants to find out what she is doing. She says that she is going to aid the spirit all she can.

It is known that several spiritualistic mediums have importuned Mrs. Ingersoll to allow them to communicate with the spirit of her departed husband, and that several have professed to have received communications from the dead man.

Mrs. Ingersoll brands these mediums as fakes, but says that her mind is open to conviction as to the existence of spirits. She says that if she were sure that her husband's spirit is waiting for her on the other side she would not care to live longer.
