ARCHBISHOP IRELAND SEVENTY YEARS OLD

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—Archbishop Ireland, who, with the single exception of Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, is the best known member of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America, was seventy years old today. The wide popularity that he enjoys, and which is not confined by any means to the members of his church, was evidenced by the countless messages of congratulation received at the archiepiscopal residence during the past few days. The greetings came from every part of the United States. Included among the senders were prelates and priests of the church, United States senators, and others eminent in public life, presidents of railroads and millionaire merchants and manufacturers, heads of universities and colleges and, in fact, persons in all walks of life, from the highest to the most humble. From Rome was enabled the congratulations of the Pope, together with other messages of felicitation from members of the Sacred College and other leaders of the church, among whom is his Grace of St. Paul who enjoys the warmest esteem and personal friendship. Archbishop Ireland both mentally and physically appears to be in the prime of life. His hair has long been gray, and there are furrows in his forehead, but the casual observer would not guess his age at more than sixty. He attributes his good health largely to his regular habits. His life is as simple and unostentatious as is possible to make it. When at home he arises every morning at 5 o'clock, and the two hours from that time until 7 he enjoys in the devotions common to his church. At half-past 7 he breakfasts with the members of his household. The breakfast hour over he retires to his study, runs over the morning papers, summons his secretary, and begins the labors of the day. No matter relating to the charitable, religious, educational or other activities of his church is too trivial to receive his personal attention. His capacity for work is wonderful, and his enthusiasm unflagging. The hours from 2 to 4 in the afternoon he usually spends in his office at the cathedral. At 5 o'clock the prelate returns to his home and to his devotions. The evening meal is served shortly after 8, and the hours thereafter till 9 are given over to study and work of other character. He retires about 10 o'clock each night, and sleeps almost uniformly seven hours.

The province of St. Paul, over which Archbishop Ireland rules, embraces the states of Minnesota and the Dakotas. It is now thirty-three years since he was consecrated as coadjutor to Bishop Grace of St. Paul. Thirteen years previously he had begun his career as a churchman with his ordination to the priesthood.

Archbishop Ireland first came to prominence through his strong work in the interest of temperance. After several years of incessant work in his church in Minnesota and the organization of many total abstinence societies he branched out in his work and delivered lectures in the principal cities of America, England and Ireland.

In recent years the archbishop has given much attention to charity and the promotion of enterprises looking to the amelioration of the condition of the very poor. His work has not been confined to his church alone. In many public movements, some of them local and many of them national in their scope, he has taken active part. He does not share the belief of some that a churchman should concern himself only with the affairs of the church. On occasions, when he believed it to be for the good of the people at large, the archbishop has not hesitated to take an active part in politics. The promotion of a better understanding between capital and labor is a subject in which he has always been deeply interested. He has taken an active interest in the work of the National Civic Federation and other bodies having for their aim the promotion of the general welfare.

The archbishop is looked upon as a son of Minnesota, though in point of fact it was in Ireland that he first saw the light of day. When he was a babe in arms his parents removed to this city, which has been his home ever since. His education was received in the cathedral school here. Subsequently he spent some eight or ten years in theological study in France, returning to St. Paul in 1861 and being ordained to the priesthood shortly afterward. During the civil war he served as chaplain of the Fifth Minnesota regiment. He has visited Rome many times since he became a bishop in 1875 and it is an open secret in the church that his advice was sought frequently by the late Pope X111, whenever the affairs of the church in America came up for discussion at the Vatican. The name of Archbishop Ireland has been mentioned periodically in connection with a cardinalate, but so far as is known he has never put forth the slightest effort to secure the red hat.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland avenue, Houlton, Me., says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50-cent bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Before that was half gone the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." ## PROF. STRATTON CAN'T COME TO HARRISBURG

(Special Correspondence.) Harrisburg, Sept. 11.—Professor Stratton, of North Dakota, who was elected principal of the Harrisburg public school, writes, on the eve of opening day, that he has more lucrative employment and will not fill his engagement. His written contract, as it is without money or moral stamina behind it, is valueless. In the meantime the board of directors have applied to President Campbell, of the University of Oregon, for a man to fill the place and the school will open Monday, the time set.

Mrs. Ira A. Phelps returned Tuesday from a visit at Portland; also at Sebo, her former home.

Dr. Charles Hawk, of Portland, after visiting with his parents here, since Saturday, returned home Wednesday.

The picking of late hops is now in full swing. Growers report a light yield but very fine quality. No sales of late hops have been reported so far, nor does there seem to be any definite price offered.

Old time enthusiasm and excitement, when presidential years came around, are not much in evidence here this year. However, there is yet time to break this uncertain silence. With so many presidential nominees in the field there should be something doing soon.

Ora Rosserman is just home from Portland with his new automobile. He had the money to spare from net earnings on the farm. This makes the fourth machine of this kind to go into use this season hereabouts.

Mrs. Washington Taylor, a pioneer of 1852, passed away at the family home at Halsey the 9th inst. She died of the ill incident to old age.

BOY SCRATCHED DAY AND NIGHT

Eczema Began When a Tiny Baby and Lasted 7 Years—Tore Crusts from Face Till It Was All Raw—Screamed with Pain and Could not Sleep—Though Specialists Failed

CUTICURA EFFECTED A WONDERFUL CURE

"When my little boy was six weeks old an eruption broke out on his face. I took him to a doctor and got ointments and medicines but his face kept on getting worse until it got so bad that no one could look at him. His whole face was one crust and must have been very painful. He scratched day and night until his face sometimes looked like a raw piece of meat. I was nearly insane with his scratching day and night. Then I took him to all the best specialists in skin diseases but they could not do much for him. He sometimes screamed with pain when I put on the salve they gave me. When he was two years old the eczema got on his arms and legs so that I had to keep them bandaged up and I made gloves for his hands so the nails could not poison him worse. We could not get a night's sleep in months and my husband and I were all broken up. Then my mother asked why I did not give up the doctors and try Cuticura. So I got a set and he felt relieved the first time I used them. The Cuticura Ointment felt so cool. He used to wake up and ask for Cuticura to be put on when he itched so badly that he could not sleep, and he would say: 'Oh! Mama, that makes my sores feel so good!' I gave the Cuticura Remedies a good trial and gradually the eczema healed all up and now he is as well as any other children. He is now seven years old and the cure has lasted two months, so I think it will never return. I can't tell you how glad I am that Cuticura did such wonderful work in our case and I shall recommend it everywhere. Mrs. John G. Klump, 80 Niagara St., Newark, N. J., Oct. 17 and 22, 1907."

A single set of Cuticura Remedies, consisting of Cuticura Soap (25c), Ointment (50c), and Resolvent (50c), or Five (25c) per trial of 60c, is sufficient to cure. Sold throughout the world. Patent Drug & Chem. Corp., New York, Boston, San Francisco. Mailed Free. Cuticura Book on this Disease.
