

COLD-BLOODED MURDERER WILL PLEAD INSANITY

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 12.—Augustus Everhard, the young grocer's clerk who is charged with the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Otilie Eberhard, whom he lured to a lonely spot in Rochelle Park on July 16 last and after killing her robbed the body of $2240, will be placed on trial next week. The case will be called Monday, and it is expected the trial will proceed without delay.

The cold-blooded character of the murder caused the crime to be widely discussed throughout the country and the trial will be followed with close interest. The murdered woman had but recently arrived in this country. According to the story told by young Eberhard, he had persuaded his aunt to turn her possessions into cash and come to America in order that he might marry her daughter. Upon their arrival in New York City he obtained rooms for them and then suggested a trip across the river into New Jersey. A blinding storm came up while they were walking along the railroad tracks on the New Jersey side, and this aided the designs of the murderer. As the two unsuspecting women were plodding along in front of him, he drew his revolver, took careful aim and fired. Mrs. Eberhard fell at the first shot, but to make sure of her death the assassin fired another shot into her body as it lay on the tracks. Then he went in pursuit of his cousin and tried to kill her. She ran down the tracks and escaped, while the murderer fled from the scene of his crime. It was more than a week before young Eberhard was found. In his confession he stated that during the week he had traveled as far west as Chicago, but had been irresistibly attracted again to the scene of his crime. When found he was suffering from a slight bullet wound which he had inflicted upon himself to give strength to the story he had concocted to the effect that he and his aunt had been attacked by Italians while walking along the railroad tracks. But a severe quizzing by the police broke down his story and he is said to have made a full confession. Nearly all of the money of his aunt was found where he said he had buried it.

Insanity will undoubtedly be the defense of the young self-confessed murderer when he is placed on trial. His father, it is said, will testify that insanity is hereditary in his family and that the sister of young Eberhard is now confined in an insane asylum.

The local authorities and the men guarding Eberhard say they can see no traces of insanity. Nevertheless, it is probable that a commission may be appointed to examine the prisoner's mental condition.

AMUSEMENTS

HER ONE GREAT SIN

This popular play of the hour will be seen at the Eugene theatre for the first time tonight.

The story of the play has for its theme "The unwritten law," which has been talked of so much during the past year, but there is nothing objectionable in the play, and while it is in a way sensational, the dramatist has handled the subject in a delicate manner and the wronged husband does not kill his rival, but in the last act challenges him to fight a duel, which makes a very dramatic ending.

Daniel Come to Judgment.

Justice Pierce, of Muncie, Indiana, was called upon to pronounce judgment as to the decency of a Directoire or shawl gown a day or two ago. Three ministers had the actress who wore it arrested for appearing on the stage attired in the dress. They got a member of one of the flocks to swear to the complaint, however. But the complaining witness did not appear. His friends made it so warm for him he kept away.

The justice in discharging the actress said the Directoire gown was decent compared to the sights that can be seen on the streets there almost any rainy day.

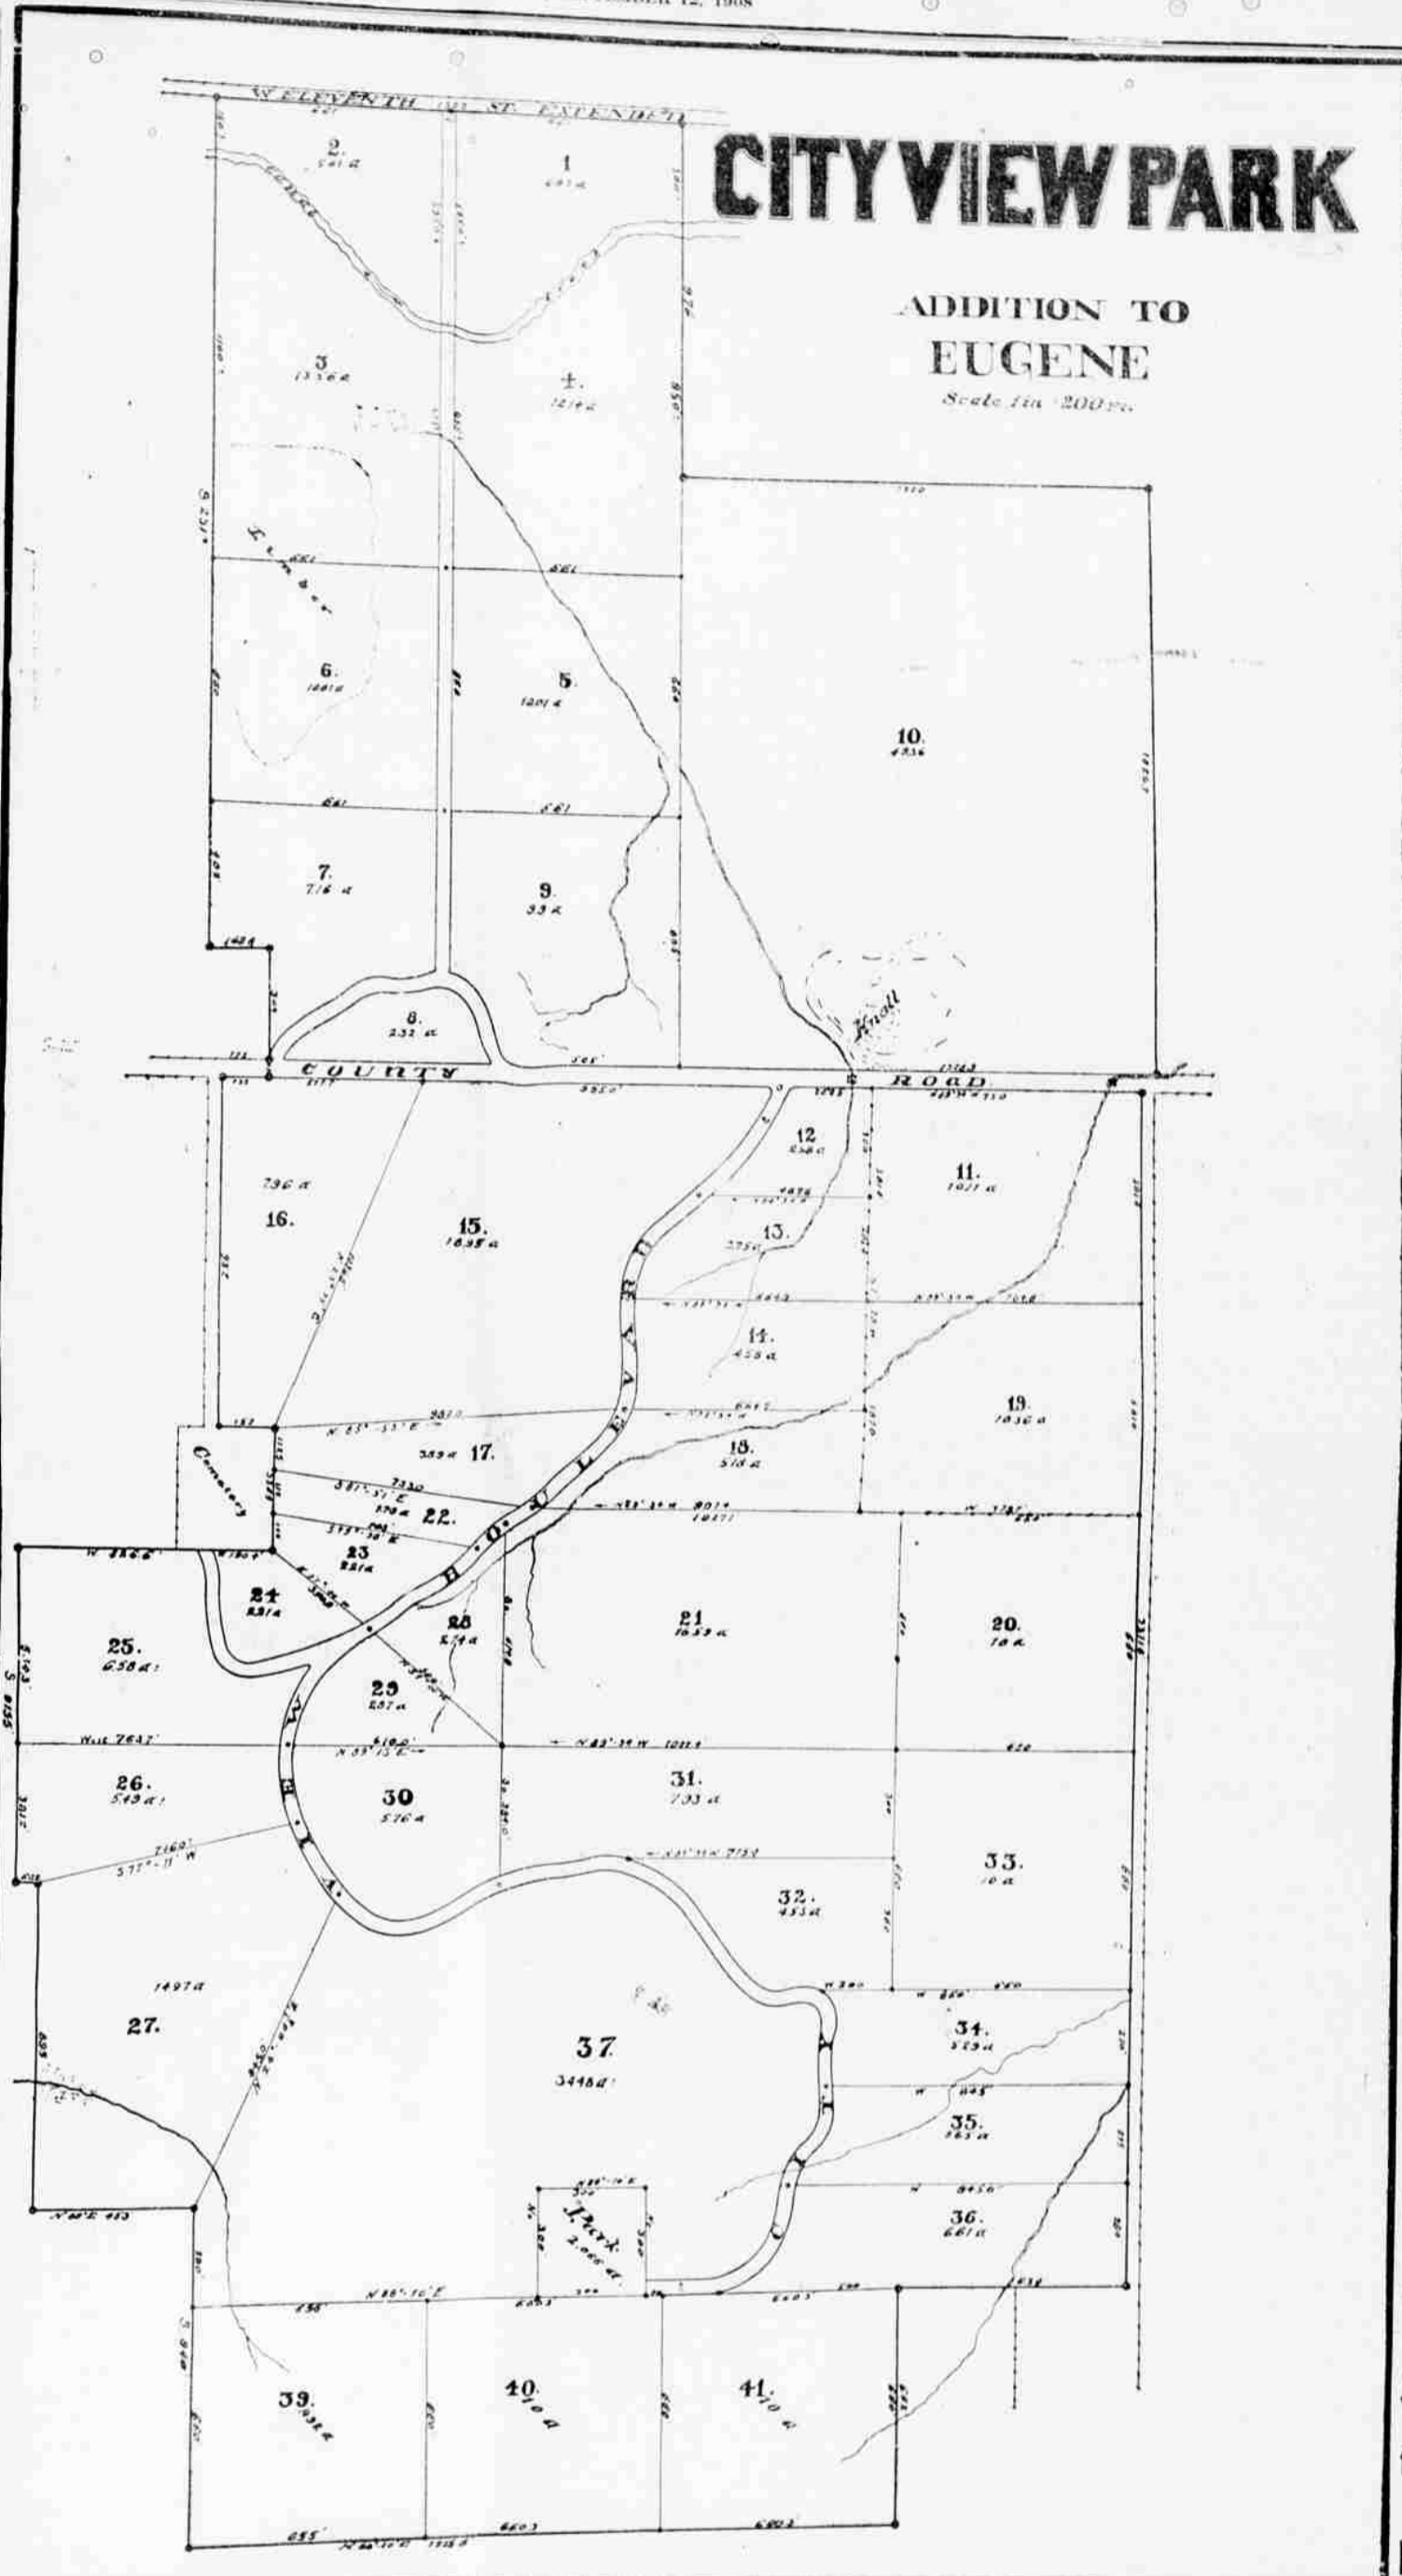

Why, of course, there is nothing indecent about the Directoire gown and we offer to prove it when the company playing "Her One Great Sin" appears here. The leading lady wears a magnificent gown of that class.

There isn't any more reason for saying that the woman who wears a Directoire gown is immodest than the girl who goes to a fancy dress ball or to a place of amusement, or to a family function, or to any old place, with a V-shaped costume on just about ample enough to act as a surcingle.

At one time England's king observed a lady at a ball drop her garter. A lot of fellows with little sense and coarse minds laughed at her predicament. His majesty picked up the garter with the remark, "Bent soit qui mal y pense," or "evil be to him who evil thinks," a paraphrase to the sentence, "To the pure, all things are pure," or better still, "An evil deed does evil in that which is not evil, but otherwise."

How to Get Strong

P. J. Daly, of 1247 West Congress street, Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters that I feel it is my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly cures stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at W. A. Kaykendall's drug store, 50c.

SOUTHWEST SUBURB OF EUGENE, OREGON.

375 acres known as the E. H. Hawkins farm, situated and fronting on West 11th street, the same street that has the State University, Carnegie Library, High School, Central School and the longest length of pavement of any street in the city. It will be sold in acreage tracts to suit purchasers, but the buyers must also suit us. No "indefinites".

The largest net profits from real estate in and about Eugene have been made on suburban acreage. S. H. Friendly bought five acres at $100 per acre and sold for $1000 per acre. S. P. Sladden bought at about $50 per acre and is selling at $1000 to $1500 per acre. Suburban acreage always yields good income from rents, wood, fruit or gardening, grows rapidly in value and affords a place to make a good living if you wish to occupy it for a home.

CITY VIEW PARK is only five minutes ride from the High School on Willamette street. It is so artistically planned that every lot commands a most magnificent outlook. The tract is being provided with a system of serpentine boulevards of rare scenic beauty and making every tract accessible by easy grades for any and all classes of vehicles. At the upper terminal of the main boulevard a beautiful park of native woods provides the most extensive and enchanting outlook to be found anywhere about Eugene. The tract embraces great variety in locations, including rich garden lands, perfectly drained slopes suitable for fruit, tracts embracing natural ornamental trees and others clad in primeval forest. The entire tract is most admirably suited to the cultivation of fruit, as is demonstrated by the commercial orchard of Dr. McCormack adjoining on the west and the strawberry gardens of Wm. Wills on the south. The Wills gardens yield $250 per acre yearly and the McCormack orchard even more. The tract has 7000 gallons daily of the purest spring water and low cost wells. Located in line of most rapid growth of city. Prices range from $50 per acre up. Terms—1/3 cash, balance long time 6 per cent interest. No city taxes. Prices subject to change.
