have accomplished much in the past two years and have reached a point where our enterprise is rewarded by splendid free notices in all the newspapers of surrounding towns, and we have a reputation to live up to, a distinction that stirs the pride of every loyal citizen of the University city.

We mistake the spirit of the people of Eugene if they even for a moment consider seriously the suggestion of dropping the promotion program at the end of the present year.

Speaking of the promotion work done the past year, who believes that the increased University appropriation would have carried had not the people been aroused and thoroughly organized through the efforts of the Commercial Club. Hundreds of our people appealed to friends throughout the state personally and by letter only because of the enthusiasm engendered by the systematic "pull together" movement that has been the real secret of all our successes of the past year. The Portland business men's excursion, the Shriners' conclave and numerous other events that have focussed attention upon Eugene and caused the spirit of the people to infuse enterprise into neighboring towns may be credited to the same source; no one citizen is responsible for what has been done, but the power of organization has been recognized and the efforts of all have caused a Portland paper to refer editorially to Eugene's growth as a "Marvel in City Building." Who is there who desires to return to the old order of disorganization?

There is every reason to believe that the sawmills will be generally running within a few months. Everything points that way, and when the saws are all busy again Eugene will experience a business activity never before approached. Effort, well-directed and persevering, has done wonders while our mills are idle—what may we not accomplish when they are busy again? Let the promotion work go on, more energetic, if possible, than in the past, and rest assured, with the plans now partially carried out and the most serious obstacles already overcome, Eugene will grow and expand on a scale that will astonish even the most sanguine believers in her future.

Connecticut is getting real chesty since Mark Twain moved over from New York, and if Mark can manage to let that nutmeg chestnut alone he may yet be nominated for road commissioner, or something equally as good. Mark's weakness for chestnuts is so well known that we hardly dare hope for him.

A Tennessee upholder of the unwritten law commends Captain Hains for killing Annis, but tells him that he violated the code by not publicly charging him with the crime before shooting, and that it is up to him to commit suicide. That would be one way out of the mess.

Again the technicality. The owner of a swell apartment house had one of his tenants arrested for violating the clause in his lease which prohibited the use of phonographs in the building, and the tenant proved that it was a graphaphone. Next!

Mr. Chafin, prohibition nominee for president, believes he will carry California. Of course, Gene has not been imbibing any California wine since he invaded that state, but—well, perhaps the heat has rather unbalanced his thinking apparatus.

"Lend a Hand," the Oregon state penitentiary publication, is a very bright and spicy paper. This is the more remarkable when the fact is considered that few newspapermen ever get into the penitentiary.

The case of the Pittsburg National bank which claims to have been closed by an intoxicated bank examiner seems to be an appeal from an examiner drunk to a treasury department sober.

Perhaps we are wrong, but as we understand it, John Temple Graves is not running for the vice presidency, but for the $15,000 editorial salary he draws and wishes to continue to draw.

If the strenuous attempt to popularize canned oratory succeeds, some fo the Chautauqua stars may find an awful shrinkage in their pocket change.

Judge Wright, late gubernatorial candidate of one of the Tennessee Republican factions, decided that he was in wrong and jumped the game.

Notwithstanding the bankruptcy proceedings Harry Thaw's new bunch of lawyers are not working like men doubtful of getting their pay.

There are those who are always telling everybody how anxious they are to try to preserve their illusions might try pickling them for a change.

Almost any old politician can ask a candidate questions that he knows will not be answered, and they are busy on the job right now.

There is only one kind of man who cannot at some time be sold some kind of a gold brick—the man who never has the price.

Blessed are the light-headed, who refuse to acknowledge a speaking acquaintance with that old reprobate, worry.

MAC SOMMERVILLE INVESTIGATION

Nothing new has been learned during the past week regarding the report published to the effect that Mack Sommerville's death at Los Angeles was due to foul play. It is quite certain nothing will develop without strenuous steps on the part of the attorney employed in the case. To the people living there absolutely no suspicion was aroused. It was not until Tom Sommerville went down from here and took a hurried inventory of his estate that things began to look suspicious. Careful inquiry led to plenty of grounds for surmising all was not right in the case, and the shortage in cash at least warrants a thorough examination.

There is $10,000, the disbursement of which is not accounted for on the books of the business house which Mr. Sommerville conducted, and that the circumstances of his sickness and death are also of a nature to arouse suspicion. The man employed to attend him had no license or standing as a physician, but when the case was beyond medical relief, a regular physician was called. In the meantime a cousin of Mr. Sommerville called to visit him, and was not informed of his illness nor allowed to go to his room. He was told that Mr. Sommerville was taking his afternoon nap, and had left special orders that he must not be disturbed under any protest. At the same time the man was dying.

Mr. Sommerville was a man who usually kept a large sum of ready cash around, hiding it in secret places, the location of which he is known to sometimes devolve to trusted employes.—Harrisburg Bulletin.

ONE BOARD FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Salem, Or., Sept. 12.—It has been recommended by the assembled school superintendents of Oregon that the legislature pass a law placing all public schools in the county under a single board of directors, instead of having a board of directors for each district as is now the practice. Resolutions were passed and a memorandum will be sent to the legislature. A committee consisting of Superintendent Robinson, of Multnomah, Superintendent Neff, of Wasco, and Superintendent Dillard, of Lane, was elected to prepare the memorandum.

It was also recommended that the superintendents be allowed sufficient clerical assistance to keep their offices open all the time. It was recommended that the apportionment of school money be made according to the daily average attendance in the schools instead of according to the census.

The work of the convention was completed yesterday afternoon.

The commission is signed by Gov. Chamberlain, and the Secretary of State, Benson. The trip will be a pleasant one and we expect to give our readers an account of the meetings later.

B. G. Williams, representing the Berlin Machinery Co., of Chicago, was in town this week and reports things going in his line. The Brown Lumber Co. and the Fisher Lumber Co., of this city, both have ordered new band re-saws and the Booth-Kelly Mills of Wendling and the Disston have also placed orders for these machines. Surely the lumber business has brightened up, or these mills would not be buying new machinery. —Western Oregon.

Advertisements, Like Clocks, Should Keep Running

A store's advertisements tell the people what is "doing" at that store—what is new, what is inviting, why today is a good time to visit the store. People look for the ads to tell them these things just as naturally as they would look at a clock to tell the time.

Sometimes a clock does not run—sometimes a store's ad does not run. A "run-down" clock or ad are about equally unsatisfactory, unserviceable, misleading.

Curious thing about it is that a merchant who would think it absurd to have a run-down" or out-of-repair clock will, sometimes, deliberately let his ad stop running. It's not wise, nor good business, nor defensible on any known grounds—but it is sometimes done.
