DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN OPENS IN THIS COUNTY

MR. McALLISTER, CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTOR, ADDRESSES PUBLIC MEETINGS AT EUGENE AND SPRINGFIELD—BRYAN CLUBS FORMED

Hon. E. S. J. McAllister, Democratic presidential elector, addressed a large and appreciative audience in the city square Saturday upon the tariff and banking system.

This country has been in control of the tariff barons and special interests, fathered by the Republican party, he said. The paper trust paid $1,000,000 into the Republican campaign fund in 1896, and the Republican party could not reduce the tariff on paper and pulp, although such a reduction in the tariff was wanted by all the newspapers in the country, because they were under obligations to the paper trust for that campaign fund. The steel trust and other trusts put large amounts of money into the Republican campaign fund and expect to have the special privilege of preying off the people.

Mr. McAllister stated that steel rails and other protected articles paid the freight and sold in foreign countries cheaper than at home. He denied that a tariff raised the price of labor, and gave statistics that labor had been raised 19 per cent on the average since 1896, and that the cost of living had been raised largely by the tariff on the average 49 per cent. The speaker also showed how the greatest panic in the history of this country had come under Republican administration, and that 5,000,000 men had been thrown out of employment, and that times were as hard in the East now as they were in 1896.

Taking up the recent panic, Mr. McAllister explained how that the bankers in Wall street had offered large rates of interest and that Western bankers had sent their money to Wall street and that when the crash came 4000 banks were compelled to take advantage of a public holiday to keep from going to the wall.

He also stated that the issuing of clearing house certificates was clearly against the banking laws, and that if the law had been enforced those issuing clearing house certificates would have been prosecuted for counterfeiting and sent to the penitentiary for a term of three years.

In conclusion he appealed to his audience to throw out the special interests from power and to put the government back into the hands of the people and to once more let the people rule this nation.

E. S. J. McAllister, Democratic presidential elector, addressed a large audience in the Woodmen's hall at Springfield Saturday evening, with Rev. Perkins presiding. Mr. Perkins introduced the speaker as one of the clean young men in public life. Rev. Perkins was formerly acquainted with W. J. Bryan, and referred to him as the greatest statesman of this day.

Mr. McAllister spoke for two hours, comparing the Republican and Democratic platforms, and devoting his time to the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, to the publicity of campaign expenses, and to the trust question.

After his speech L. M. Travis was called upon to tell about his trip to Lincoln, Nebraska, and he gave a short address, after which a rousing Springfield Bryan and Kern Club was formed.
