Washburne was assisted in serving by Miss Frances Young and Miss Jessie Calkins.

Invitations have been received by a number of Eugene people to the wedding of Mr. Mark H. Wheeler to Miss Mildred Ruth Bent. The wedding is to take place at Hill Rapids, South Dakota, on Tuesday, September 22nd.

One of the most interesting events of the past week was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ruby Hendricks to Mr. Ray Goodrich, whose wedding is to take place October 21st. Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. P. E. Snodgrass invited a few of Miss Hendrick's friends to don on Tuesday afternoon. The afternoon was devoted to the study of child labor, upon which subject Mrs. Maxham and Mrs. Sweetser read interesting articles.

Friday evening the official visit of the Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Reames of Klamath and Worthy Grand Matron, Mr. Stapleton of Portland, to the Eastern Star, was made the occasion of an interesting social event. An elaborate banquet was served at six-thirty to more than one hundred guests, during which the Hendershott orchestra rendered pleasing selections. After a presentation of the ritualistic work, and several interesting speeches, Mrs.

One of the most prominent affairs of the week was the reception given President and Mrs. P. L. Campbell last Wednesday evening by the Commercial club and Ladies' Auxiliary. The reception was held in the parlors of the Commercial club, which had been prettily decorated for the occasion with little trees and incandescent lights. Mr. Harlow and Dr. Whitson, of the Commercial club, and Mrs. McMurphy, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, were in the receiving line. During the evening Mrs. Lloyd Bellman and Miss Myrtle Kays served delicious punch. A large number of friends and members of the faculty were present to welcome President and Mrs. Campbell.

Thursday afternoon Miss Hoesle Day entertained the Thimble Club and two invited guests, Mrs. Frank McAlister and Mrs. E. E. Mink, in a most charming manner. Needlework occupied the afternoon, after which an elaborate luncheon was served. Mrs. McAlister and Mrs. Whitson assisting the hostess. The club meets again in two weeks with Mrs. Link.

The Sunday School board and teachers of the Methodist church held their regular quarterly business meeting at the home of Mrs. T. J. Hard last Wednesday evening. Light refreshments were served during the evening by Mrs. Hard and her daughter, Miss Hard.

Mrs. S. E. Tidball most royally entertained the Saturday Afternoon Whist club last Saturday. The pleasant rooms were most tastefully decorated with carnations. Mrs. Linn won the first prize, while Mrs. Straight was awarded the consolation. Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. Linn, Mrs. Straight, Mrs. Tromp, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Metcalf and Miss Kress were invited as guests of the club. Mrs. Tidball served a most delicious luncheon.

Mrs. Minnie Washburne was hostess to two delightful afternoon parties this week. Five hundred was the pastime on Wednesday afternoon in which Mrs. Watson secured the highest number of points awarded the prize to the oldest member of the party, Mrs. Baxter. Autumn leaves, the decorations of the house, were prettily arranged in all the rooms. Mrs. Washburne served dainty refreshments, assisted by the Misses Hazel Humphrey, Mary De Bar and Leslie Emmons. As a surprise to the ladies, Mrs. Washburne had made a large birthday cake with candles in honor of Mrs. Shadden's birthday. On Thursday afternoon needlework was the pastime. Mrs.

MRS. WILLIAM E. COREY.

Mrs. Corey, who was Mabelle Gilman, an actress, before her marriage to the steel magnate, recently announced that she intended to build two theaters, one in New York and the other in Paris. Her purpose is to aid talented young persons who have aspirations for the stage. She probably will return to opera herself, having studied with Jean de Reszke for several months while abroad.

a blue shower. The search for the presents which were tied at the end of blue ribbons extending in all directions from a blue parasol which was suspended from the center of a dining room ceiling afforded much merriment. After a few games of five-hundred the guests were served dainty refreshments.

The Methodist Home Missionary Society held a most interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. W. T. Gor-

Mabel Roberts favored the guests with a vocal solo, and Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Willoughby and Miss Moran, a beautiful trio. The evening closed with a general participation in "Virginia Reel."

Fads and Fashions

(Guard Special Service.) New York, Sept. 19.—Autumn is rapidly approaching and nearly every day new models for fall wear are coming from Paris. It is true, in a general way, nearly all of them carry out the Directorate idea, but there is, at the same time, so great a variety of forms and trails, that every woman may find something to suit her individual style. There is really no excuse for a woman, this autumn, to be dressed unbecomingly. The tall and graceful waisted woman, of course, has the advantage of her plumper sisters, but that is quite natural. It is easier to dress a well formed body tastefully and becomingly than one less favored by nature, no matter what the style of fashion may be.

Among last week's importations were tailored costumes modelled upon those shown in Paris during the last spring and summer. They are, without exception, Directorate in character and there seems to be every indication that the Directorate style will continue to prevail during the fall and coming winter. Wide-wale chevrons in bold chevron design and usually in two-tone coloring are among the handsome novelties that came in during the past week. These materials are beautiful in quality and color, but in most cases so loud that a great many women, who do not belong to the radical set, will hesitate to wear them. They will prefer plain broadcloth, a one-tone chevron or serge, or one of the almost invisible blended checks or plaids or stripes.

The rage for fancy coats continues and bids fair to increase with cooler weather. At present they are merely ornamental, of lace or satin-trimmed, but they will be developed later in velvet and satin, and thus reinforced. Light summary frocks may be worn well into the autumn. In many cases the coat is scarcely more than a pelisse, as in a smart combination in old blue mesaline, which consists of two long bands reaching back and front to knee-length, narrow at the shoulders and over the bust as wide as the width of the hips, so that the back and front portions meet. They only just meet at that point, however, then separate for the rest of the length. Stitched straps of the mesaline join the two bands across the front and again at the back, each piece held in place with an ornamental button.

One of the handsomest wraps of this style, shown among the importations, is fashioned of satin or some lustrous silk and is lined. It is perfectly plain and smooth fitting across the shoulders; but the two fronts meet low over the bust, then abruptly curve to long points at the side. These are slashed, and the one toward the back is shortened some five inches. The Empire back in one piece hangs full in lapel effect. The sleeves tucked from the armpits, where they are put in without a gather to a point over the hands, are the latest note. All sleeves, whatever their general design, are small and tapering; otherwise as much latitude as ever is permitted, and there seems to be no end to the number and originality of the designs.

Marvelous things are accomplished nowadays by the manufacturers in imparting to the cloths of wool a satin-like finish, and this same sheen and softness makes beautiful Venetian and Prunella cloths. Diagonally striped woolen stuffs in two tones, brown and green, blue and red, and other colors, are often combined with black. Such gowns are commonly trimmed with velvet or braid or with both. The diagonals intended for winter, will be extremely thick, and will be made up in the plainest manner, with coats and skirts of a clinging nature. The coats will, as a usual thing, be long and moulded to the figure.

The waistcoat is likely to be an important item of the season's costumes, both in plain tailored form and in elaborately embroidered form and some superb waistcoat arrangements are shown among the new trimmings. Never were embroidered bonds, motifs, trimmings of all kinds handsomer than they are to be the coming winter and the supply already shown in the trimming department of the better shops is actually bewildering. Subtlety of color, harmonized, intricate combination of materials and variety of design and workmanship make of many of these embroideries works of art; they add wonderfully to the beauty of a costume.

It seems, from present indications, that double and tripple capes on long coats will again be fashionable during the coming winter. They are quite becoming to many women and are quite serviceable to those who do not wear furs. Braid will be the principal decorative feature of these coats; this may be in the most exaggerated widths, or in a combination of two or three widths. Such braid coats are greatly reduced in price just now, so that women who like this style of wrap would do well to invest in one. Lined with a soft silk, these coats will be sufficiently warm for fall wear, especially if they are worn with a little heavier dress. The lace boleros lined with chiffon and trimmed with chiffon frills, are also quite fetching and may be purchased at moderate cost.

The fashionable colors this season will be green, with traces of yellow in it, laurel green and hunters green; blues with a touch of green in them, will also be worn a great deal and so will silver and putty gray, as it is called, that is probably one of the most trying colors in which a woman can array herself. There are, however, a great many ways by which a "color relief" may be introduced in a costume of this gray tone. There is also a new blue that will be highly prized for its beauty. It is of the color of grapes, somewhat, and yet it is neither plum nor prune color. But there is an exquisite bloom on its surface by which it makes itself known to those in search of it. The browns are also quite pretty and will be seen in many shades.

Hydrangea mauve over pale blue is a combination that is as effective by day as by night, and is generally favored by the addition of silver embroideries. This combination was worn recently by the bridegrooms at a fashionable wedding. The materials were filmy tulle over satin and plain finished with silver tassels. The large white hats were decorated with hydrangeas. The bride wore a lovely gown of porcelain-white satin with a train of silver. Elephant gray over blue is also a handsome and effective combination, while dull green relieved with copper is of striking beauty.

Hoods are becoming fashionable in London this season, and the milliners have gone quite extensively into the business of making them. Whether the wearing of hoods will ever become general again as it has been at one time, remains to be seen, but they are given a fair trial by the British women. The specimens shown are very dainty and not at all unbecoming. The prettiest are undoubtedly those shaped like friar's cowls, and they are also the most convenient, as they roll up small and can be tucked into the pocket of a theater wrap or stowed away in a traveling bag. Those run with whalebones are more cumbersome, and this setting out from the face does not improve their appearance much if at all. Both kinds are made of soft taffeta lined with satin and trimmed about the front and around the neck with ruffles of lace. Sometimes they are bordered with small flowers, which is a mistaken notion. A few knots of ribbon and the lace are all that is necessary. Hoods are worn only when going to or coming from the theater or other evening entertainments, or when travelling. Some women have taken to them most kindly and will immediately doff their hats and put on hoods on boarding a railway car, retaining them even when lunching or dining in the restaurant.

Evening hairdressings are more than ever a matter of importance. Fortunately there are many inexpensive aids to the chic effect. One of these is the use of gold and silver braid and ribbon, run into the loops between the puffs or forming a fillet band above the brow. If the face is of the babyish, cometic type, little bows of meta ribbon may be ATTRACTIVE PRINCE CHAP COAT. PRACTICAL coats as separate coats or to complete a suit are in demand at this season of the year. The coat illustrated is particularly desirable model for wear during the fall season, and will be serviceable made of serge, mohair or cheviot. It did wearing qualities of serge at once recommend that material as blue is perhaps the most practical selection for tailored suits.

for a suit coat, a well fitting gored skirt should be selected. For a nine or more gored model is more suitable, but for a slight bust seven gored skirt is pretty. This Prince Chap coat is in twenty-seven inch length. It is in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy it for person it requires 4 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide or 3 1/2 yards 36 inches wide.
