Representative John Sharp Williams has a new story and this time it is a particularly good one. During the recent Mississippi gubernatorial campaign the Hon. Jeff Truly was one of the unsuccessful aspirants for the majority suffrage of his fellow-citizens. Prohibition doctrines figured in the struggle, and seemed very important to a Methodist minister. The following conversation is related: "Brother Truly," said the minister, "I want to ask you a question. Did you ever take a drink of whisky?" "Before I answer that," responded the wary Brother Truly, "I want to know whether it is an inquiry or an invitation."

That was all a mistake of the newspaper reporters in saying that Taft and Foraker met and clasped hands and agreed to forgive and forget, while the old soldiers roared their approval. Teddy says it was and emphasizes each word with a flourish of the big stick—and the newspapers will now humbly admit that their representatives at Youngstown were deaf and dumb and blind, and that "nobody had nothin' to do with nobody"—or words to that effect.

Mr. Haskell, of Oklahoma, wanted the facts in regard to his connection with the Standard Oil, and the result reminds us of one of Champ Clark's stories. He says that out in Wyoming, close to the public highway, is a mound with a wooden slab at its head, upon which is crudely carved an epitaph reading: "He whistled for the grizzly and the grizzly came."

Salem's mayor wants the capital city to keep pace with the University city in the matter of street paving and other public improvements. Thus Eugene's good work is bearing fruit in other communities, and the city is being accepted as the model for all progressive towns in Oregon. So now we must endeavor at all times to live up to our reptation.

When it comes to handing out a line of convincing talk the Philadelphia girl who talked four masked burglars into leaving a house they had entered to rob must be a peacherino, who could make good as a spellbinder.

And along in the early days of bleak November talking machine dealers are sure to find themselves with a lot of stock on hand that they cannot give away, even to those who are usually out to get something for nothing.

It must be astonishing to the plain, every day man, who has never had the office itch, to observe the things some men say without blushing, in order to try to get on the public pay roll.

The poet who wrote "The melancholy days are here" did not live in Oregon.—East Oregonian. The which would indicate that Eastern Oregon is not a melon country.

Congressman Ames, of Massachusetts, has perfected an airship. As he has seen so many congressmen "up in the air" it ought to be a flyer, if it isn't.

We haven't noticed any politicians falling over each other in their efforts to follow Mr. Bryan's example and tell just how and where they got it.

No other town in Oregon shows so large a percentage of increase in school attendance as Eugene. That's going some.

IF EUGENE DID IT, WHY CAN'T SALEM?

(Salem Statesman.)

When asked what he thought about the plan to build a boulevard to the state fair grounds, former Mayor Frank W. Waters said:

"Of course I am in favor of the road. It should have been done before. The matter was taken up by the council and carried almost to a conclusion and then dropped. I have just returned from Eugene, and I notice that Eugene has paved with bitulithic every foot of the way from the depot to the University. If Eugene can take care of a similar enterprise in this way can't we do the same in our greatest state enterprise? You may quote me as being in favor of paving the state fair boulevard with bitulithic the entire distance."

THE HUMAN BODY A TEMPLE

Mrs. Belle Waterman Findlay, of this city, will speak on the above subject in the Baptist church at Springfield, Or., next Sunday morning at the regular 11 o'clock service.

Rev. F. H. Adams, pastor of the First Baptist church at McMinnville, writes:

"She speaks plainly, but tactfully, and handles in a masterful but delicate manner questions which need emphasis, but are woefully neglected. I have never heard any other man or woman speak so skilfully to a mixed audience upon social purity. She wins her audience and does not offend. She talks plainly to adults without saying anything which children should not hear."

OLDEST METHODIST CHURCH IN WEST TO BE PRESERVED

One of the most important resolutions introduced at the Methodist Episcopal conference at [illegible] was one by Rev. Abbott of Portland, relating to the preservation of the oldest Protestant church west of the Rocky Mountains. The church is located at Oregon City and is at present being used as a paint shop and is badly in need of repair. The resolution called for a committee of five to see about buying the church and placing it on a lot by itself. At present it is located behind the Methodist church in that city. It is proposed to make a Methodist shrine of the historic building. The building came around the Horn in sections in the early days. The men behind the movement think that with some little repairing it can be made so that it will last for many years yet. Besides, the place could be made a sort of museum for the relics of the early days of the church.

THIS IS MY 58TH BIRTHDAY

A. Heaton Robertson

Abraham Heaton Robertson, who has been nominated by the Democrats for governor of Connecticut, was born in New Haven September 25, 1850. His father was a former mayor of that city. The younger Robertson received his education at Yale and at the Columbia University Law School, graduating from the last named institution in 1874. Soon after beginning the practice of law in his native state he was elected to the Connecticut general assembly and remained a member of that body for several years. From 1887 to 1895 he was a judge of the probate court in New Haven. Later he served several years as corporation counsel of the city. He is regarded as a high authority on corporation law, and also on the subject of civil service as applied to municipal government. His nomination for governor of Connecticut is not an entirely new honor for him, as he was a candidate for the same office on the Democratic ticket four years ago and was defeated.

NOTES FROM LABOR WORLD

The International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Polishers will meet in convention at St. Louis in October 5.

The shoe clerks of Toronto, Canada, have recently organized a union and its membership is steadily increasing.

A new union of retail clerks, including various branches of business has been recently established in Melrose, Minn.

The wages of cotton spinners in Lancashire, England, are soon to be reduced by an average of five per cent.

The Toronto, Canada, lodge of Machinists has decided to keep a close watch on all civic contracts affecting the trade.

The "Trades Unionist," of Washington, D. C., devoted to union interests, has been taken out of the receiver's hands.

Steps have been taken to close the Powell Duffryn collieries in Wales owing to the strike of six thousand men employed in the mines.

Arrangements are now being made for the annual convention of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor that is to be held at Clarksburg in October.

The San Francisco, Cal., Broommakers' Union has taken preliminary steps in starting a campaign against brooms made by Chinese and those made by convicts in Eastern states.

At the recent convention of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen the by-laws were amended so as to permit the holding of conventions annually instead of bi-annually.

The Fall River, Mass., Spinners' Union, which has decided to withdraw from the sliding scale agreement between the unions and the manufacturers of that city, has decided to adhere to the agreement.

The question of changing the name of the ational Trades and Labor Congress to "Canadian Federalon of Labor" will be one of the subjects that will come up for consideralon at the Quebec convention.

James Keir Hardie, the founder of the labor party in England, says the time is now ripe to organize a labor party in Canada, and that, by a better union of their forces the laborers of America can obtain legislation for their advancement.

All the secretaries and business agents of the labor unions in Seattle, Wash., have been ordered to produce their books in the United States district court, to ascertain to what extent, if any, they have contributed to the alleged boycott against Loewe & Company.

There is a growing belief among officials of the department of commerce and labor that Terrence V. Powderly, chief of the information bureau of the department of Immigration, will be named to succeed the late Commissioner of Immigration Sargent.

According to Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, the unions of America today have a greater membership than ever before in the history of the labor movement. In the American Federation of Labor there are now affiliated 117 National and international labor unions, representing approximately 27,000 local labor unions. The number of state federations of labor is thirty-six, and there are 541 central labor bodies and local trade and labor unions. In the aggregate two million men are members of the body or affiliated with it.
