AN INDEPENDENT PAPER

[THURS]DAY, OCTOBER 1, 1908

[IF] BONDS CARRY, AND IF THEY LOSE

[The ele]ction today, no matter how [it goes, sh]ould be the beginning of [the end] of this water agitation. If [the bonds] carry again it is certain[ly hoped] that the opposition gave up [and allow]ed the program endorsed [by the pe]ople to be carried out. If [they are] defeated, there is nothing [to do but] submit to the decision, ac[cept the] present conditions as per[manent an]d make the best of it.

[It] is impossible to forecast [the result] of an election, because so [many me]n publicly express an [opinion.] The Guard has all along [been] in the belief that the bond [issue wou]ld be defeated today, large[ly becau]se so many elections have [been held] on the subject that many [voters] have become lukewarm, and [the] further fact that so many [issues] have been raised that the [main issue] has become obscured. [But th]at did not deter this paper [from m]aking a fight for what it be[lieves to] be right, and it has done [so hones]tly and with all the energy [at its co]mmand. Not fear of meet[ing defe]at, but rather the fear of [taking a] wrong course and mislead[ing its r]eaders, should influence a [newspape]r in the discussion of pub[lic quest]ions. It had no hesitancy [to risk] defeat in a good cause, and [if] the battle has been lost or [won it] will have the satisfaction of [having pu]rsued a course which we be[lieve the] events of the future will [prove] the right thing to do and [best] for all the people of Eugene.

[It seem]s to us that if the bond [issue is] defeated it is up to the ma[yor and] the councilmen who stood [for it] to resign their positions, [and let] the city government over [to those] who represent the majority. [Thes]e are of the most thank[less ch]aracter and it is safe to say [they w]ould be of no further pub[lic use] if their program is vetoed [by the] people. It would be better [to let] the administration along [these l]ines just as quickly as pos[sible and] let those who have differ[ent ide]as to the handling of the [water qu]estion be given a trial with [as little] delay as possible. This plan [would ena]ble the people more quick[ly to deci]de what is best for the wel[fare of] the city. As far as The [Guard is] concerned it is willing, if [there is] an adverse decision on the [bonds, t]o offer no further objection [to any] program favored by the ma[jority, n]o matter what it may be—[municipal o]wnership and the present [gravi]te river supply, or municipal [ownersh]ip and a pumping plant with [...] We have made an open [fight for] municipal ownership and a [gravity s]ystem, and have presented [every ar]gument in its favor at our [comman]d—if a majority of the vot[ers want] something else they should [have it] under the principle of ma[jority] rule.

[If the] bonds have carried The [Guard] will insist, and most emphat[ically,] that the minority should [accept] repeated defeats as an indica[tion of] the temper and determination [of the] people to carry out a fixed [plan] and interpose no further ob[stacles.] Let us settle this water [question] just as quickly as possible [and if] it is to be a gravity system, [build it] just as soon as it is possible [to do] the work.

[Written] while the votes are yet un[counted] and the result is not known [The Gua]rd makes these observations, [so that] it may not be charged that [the result] has influenced its course [or] its conclusions.

[Senato]r Foraker has confessed that [he got S]tandard Oil money for the [purpose o]f buying up an Ohio news[paper.] Well, what of it? The Stand[ard Oil] Company owns about every[thing] in the world, and we see [no parti]cular reason why it should [not own] the newspapers. There is [one obj]ection, however, and that [is the]re would be no great add[ition to] the treasury after all the expenses were paid for white paper, ink, the printers and editorial writers. It costs money to run a newspaper in this age of trusts and unionism. But perhaps the Standard knows about this.

It is said that Sir James Grant very much interested the learned members of the British Association of Science with a description of his machine for the renewal of youth. Sir James calls his machine the "neurostone." If he and the British scientists will come to America they will find that advertisements of similar fakes have been extant for at least thirty years.

W. E. Glasscock, compromise candidate for governor of West Virginia, is also collector of internal revenue, and it is said will conduct his campaign without resigning that office. Yet it has just been officially announced from the White House that the president will not stand for federal officers running for elective office. Maybe Mr. G. has not heard about that.

Former Senator David B. Hill's return to active politics, even in an advisory capacity, will recall much to the old-timers. Few know the game better that Davy, though he would not recognize a card index if he met it in the road.

French newspapers are beginning to wonder what's gone wrong when the number of suicides at Monte Carlo fall below seven a week. To go broke and to "croak" are the expected things from visitors to the gamblers' paradise.

If giving a baboon beer and whiskey be inhumane treatment, as claimed by the president of the Washington Humane Society in a recent case, we could easily produce a bunch of men hankering for inuhmane treatment.

In saying there was no water in Standard Oil stock, and that the only company he controlled had not been much of a dividend producer, His Oiliness made it mighty hard to believe the other things he said.

Two and a half millions deposited in Eugene banks tells a story of anything but a financial stringency. We are growing faster than any other city in the Northwest, and have the money to back it up with.

The United States treasurer, Chas. H. Treat, is credited with saying that we should eat seven times a day. It is supposed, from his utterance, that the job of treasurer is even better than was ever suspected.

Dr William Osler has been elected lord high rector of the University of Edinburgh. And this for the man who, by his own dictum, should have been chloroformed on his last birthday.

Next thing we'll be having chesty "Billy" Hearst, the bad boy of the political school, setting himself up as the only genuine issue-maker.

There is always hope for the fool who has sufficient control over his tongue to keep others from finding it out.

THIS IS MY 60TH BIRTHDAY

Michael H. DeYoung

Michael H. DeYoung, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle and a Republican leader of National prominence, was born October 1, 1848, in St. Louis, Mo. His mother was the daughter of a French nobleman. When a boy five years old he was taken to California and was educated in the schools there. Before he was twenty years old, in association with an elder brother, he established a weekly theatrical paper in San Francisco. This venture subsequently developed into the daily newspaper with which the name of Mr. DeYoung has ever since been associated. Almost as soon as he reached the voting age Mr. DeYoung became actively interetsed in politics. I nthe course of time he became recognized as one of the Republican leaders of California, and was twice a member of the Republican National committee, and for one term its vice chairman. He has been prominently identified with every movement looking to the development of his city and state and was the director-general of the California mid-winter exposition held in San Francisco in 1893 and 1894. He was president of the United States commission at the Paris exposition in 1900 and received the decoration of the Legion of Honor.

Today's Suggestion by Ellen Stan.

DAINTY ROUND YOKE NIGHTGOWN.

No matter how little attention one may give to outside garments, careful attention is always given to the selection of proper undergarments. The nightgown shown is a very attractive one for a plain development, as the yoke as well as the sleeve bands can be of dotted swiss or all over embroidery and require no lace that will be torn in the laundry. For summer the sleeves are more comfortable finished in flowing style, but if preferred they can be gathered into a band. This style will appeal to women who admire simple, neat gowns, although it can be made to express daintiness as well by the use of lace and insertion on the yoke and sleeves.

A dainty and attractive nightgown was made of fine India linon after this model, and the sleeves and neck were finished with a buttonhole scalloped edge in white embroidery cotton. This finish can be done at home at a very small cost, and when completed it has every appearance of a French made gown.

Many of the nightgowns displayed this season are of figured lawns with white yoke and sleeve bands. They are a pleasing change from all white, as they allow one to select colors that are becoming as well as different designs. Other nightgowns are of striped dimity, and this proves a pleasing change, although not as decided a one as when colors are selected. Longcloth, cambric, nainsook and fine batiste are suitable materials to use for its construction, and lace, embroidery or hand work gives a pleasing finish. This nightgown slips on and off easily over the head. The pattern is cut in eight sizes—from 32 to 46 inches bust measure. To copy it for the average person it requires 7½ yards of material 27 inches wide or 5¾ yards 36 inches wide.

BOOTH GIVES $10,000 MORE TO WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY

Salem, Sept. 29.—Ex-State Senator Robert A. Booth, who has given so many munificent gifts to Willamette University, has announced, through Dr. Fletcher Homan, president of the university, that he will give $10,000 as a starter for a second $100,000 endowment. At present $100,000 of the endowment has been raised. On condition that the first $100,000 was raised, two loyal Willamette men agreed to give $25,000 each on the next $150,000, which would make the endowment reach the quarter million mark. The gift of Senator Booth starts the movement which is expected to result in that amount being raised. During the session of the Oregon conference Senator Booth gave $5000 to an irreducible conference claimants' fund, making $15,000 in all that he has given during the last week. When the senator appeared on the floor of the conference to plead the cause of Willamette he was given on ovation that brought tears to his eyes.

JAMES NIXON DROWNED AT HARRISBURG

Harrisburg, Sept. 30.—James F. Nixon was drowned in a slough of the Willamette river about four miles from this city today. He was ferrying his team across the slough on a raft, which sunk from not being kept in proper balance. One of his team was drowned, the other horse escaping. The body has not been recovered.
