that the patriotism of the people is unimpaired.

Today we reprint some good pictures from October's "Nobody's." The Eleventh street scene gives an idea of a typical residence section in Eugene, and there are also pictures of the Commercial Club building and the office force of the promotion department.

Thin-skinned office holders in North Carolina. One of them quit by the suicide route, because of the circulation of reports besmirching his reputation. If such a disposition should become general, travel over that route would be overcrowded.

Now that John D. Rockefeller is again personally in charge of the S. O. headquarters, we may assume that no more "My Dear Senator" letters will be sent out—the business will be transacted by word of mouth.

A Dayton, Ohio, man has outdayed Chancellor Day by saying: "The day will come when the people will revere the memory of John D. Rockefeller and other trust magnates." If he's a true prophet then we can only say, God help the people.

An actress says "There is no occasion for brains in our society," and then proceeds to knock society out for not having brains, which only goes to show that advertising may be gone after without consistency.

Old friends are by no means being neglected. Even the veteran campaigner, General Humbug, is being allowed to pull off a few of his antique stunts.

Anyway, the sensation-mongers seem determined to so put in their time that everybody shall be glad when it's all over.

"THIS DATE IN HISTORY."

"THIS IS MY 45TH BIRTHDAY."
Edward William Bok.

Edward William Bok, the well-known Philadelphia editor and writer, was born in the little town of Helder, near Amsterdam, Holland, on October 9, 1863. His great grand-father was admiral-in-chief of the Dutch navy, his grandfather a chief justice of the Supreme Court and his father one of the ministers of the court of King William III. Business reverses led his father to emigrate to America with his family in 1869. He settled in Brooklyn, where young Bok received his education. At the age of 13 years he became office boy in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Company. He devoted his spare time to study and soon became stenographer. At the age of nineteen he became editor of the Brooklyn Magazine, which he sold after a few years, to become connected with the publishing firm of Henry Holt Co., and later with that of Charles Scribner's Sons. At the age of twenty-five he became the editor of a magazine published in Philadelphia for women. He has also won recognition on the lecture platform, principally by his talks about "The Keys to Success," addressed to young men.

JEFFERSON STREET CASE SETTLED

An amicable settlement over the Jefferson street disagreement has been reached and the fence which T. G. Hendricks, trustee for the Stewart heirs, had erected in the middle of the street extending south of West Eighth street has been torn down. The matter was settled by the heirs and the city each standing half of the cost of the land which will be dedicated to the city.

NEWS NOTES

The attendance at the Lebanon public school is 320; at Silverton, 344.

Dr. L. M. Davis, of Portland, who has sued the Journal for $40,000 damages, values his future political opportunities at $10,000, and wants that much for their damage by the Journal.

Application will be made to the next legislature for the setting aside of Crook county as a separate fair district from The Dalles, so that a legislative appropriation can be had for the annual Crook county race and fair exposition.

Henry Warnock, shot Sunday by L. Maulding, died in the Salem hospital Tuesday night. The accident happened in the foothills east of Silverton. Warnock's thigh being horribly shattered by the charge from his companion's gun, which was being reloaded.

Would Mortgage the Farm

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw, one on my hand and ones on my leg. It is worth more than a gold mine. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25 cents at W. A. Kuykendall's drug store.

FIGURES IN COMING PHILADELPHIA CELEBRATION.

The great historical pageant which will be a feature of the celebration of the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Philadelphia will show over 5,000 figures in costume. Two shown herewith are William Penn and a courtier of Charles II. Over $50,000 has been spent on this single feature, and it will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted.
