DR. ATWOOD AND SON ARRESTED AND IN JAIL

In Custody at Portland Charged With Malpractice in Causing Death of Eugene Girl

Drs. C. H. T. Atwood and C. H. Atwood, father and son, who have offices in the Alsky building, and who operate a private hospital at Tremont station, on the Mount Scott car line, were arrested last night about 6 o'clock in their hospital by Deputy Sheriffs Bulger and Kelly on a warrant sworn out yesterday afternoon by Assistant District Attorney Fitzgerald before justice of the Peace Olson, which charges them indirectly with being instrumental in causing the death of Pearl Lamb, a young woman from Eugene, Or., who died at the Atwood hospital on Monday night following the results of malpractice. The accused doctors were taken to the county jail, where they were kept in default of $1000 cash bail, says today's Oregonian.

The arrest of Drs. Atwood was made a little earlier than had been anticipated owing to information which reached District Attorney Fitzgerald to the effect that one of the defendants was preparing to leave for Eugene for the purpose of destroying evidence obtained against them there. The warrant in this case does not charge the defendants with manslaughter, but charges "indecent and immoral acts which openly outrage public decency and are injurious to public morals." This is the same statute as was used in the prosecution of the defendants in the now celebrated Lane-Waymire-Radding case.

District Attorney Cameron said last night that this was the first instance in which an offense of this character had been prosecuted under this statute. He said that he had instructed that the prosecution be brought in this way because if failure in the past of prosecuting officers in securing conviction on charges of manslaughter. The claim made by the Atwoods to Coroner Norden when the investigation in the case was first begun that the malpractice alleged was not effected by them, but by a Eugene physician, is discredited by the prosecution, which makes the claim of having evidence showing that the malpractice was actually done by the Atwoods, and that the statement signed by the girl before she died was made to protect the Atwoods.

"It will be a serious menace to the dishonorable physicians of this community if we secure a conviction on this charge," said Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald last night. "It will mean that we can proceed against many who otherwise we might have to pass by without hope of reaching. If the Atwoods are convicted it will curtail a great deal of the malpractice now being carried on in this city."

"The attitude of the prisoners was one of composure last night at the county jail. "We believe that some enemy has inspired this attack upon us," said the elder Atwood. "If the prosecuting officers of this county are really looking for the malpractitioners of the community they might have looked further than to us. During the past month we have refused to take about 50 cases of this character, which we know have been handled by others in this city. If we were in this line of business why should I have refused to do the work?"

SUFFRAGISTS DISTURB BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London, Oct. 28.—The suffragette disturbances have driven the police to an unusual course of temporarily closing the strangers and ladies galleries in the house of commons. During the evening while the house was discussing a licensing bill, a sensation was caused by the display of a placard and sudden cries from the ladies gallery demanding suffrage. Simultaneously a bundle of hand bills fluttered down from the strangers' gallery and a man shouted, "Justice to the women."

The male offender was unceremoniously ejected but from the ladies' gallery sounds of a desperate struggle were heard. Two suffragettes had chained themselves firmly to the grilling and arrested for a time all efforts at removal. The scene was watched with amazement from the floor, but finally the suffragettes were dragged loose, portions of a grill being removed with them.

FIRST NUMBER OF ENTERTAINMENT COURSE

The first number of the Bucec Entertainment course will be given on Tuesday, November 2, at the Central Presbyterian church, when four great musical artists will appear. The leader of the quartette is Forrest Dabney Carr, the eminent basso cantante, late of the Maurice Grau grand opera company, and he is well known throughout the United States as an artist of exceptional ability. Florence Gertrude Smith has charmed audiences in almost every city of over 10,000 people by her beautiful soprano voice. She, like Mr. Carr, has had wide experience in opera. Earl J. Plouffe is one of the most talked of violinists of New York city today. He has studied under Leopold Kramer of Chicago, and Max Bendix and Michael Bannet of New York. Edwin M. Shonert, the fourth of the company is well known to American lovers of music, having played in many transcontinental tours.

The Artist Trio, appearing November 27, is one of especial merit, including Mary Agnes Doyle, whose "Mr. Dooley" sketches are very taking; Flora McGill, contralto and pianist, soloist in one of the leading churches in Chicago; and Blanche Deering, master of the violin and piano. The program presented by the trio of artists is unusual, including readings, violin solos, piano solos and duets and contralto solos with violin obligatos.

"Acres of Diamonds" the lecture that Russell Conwell will deliver here on January has been delivered twenty-six hundred times in twenty-nine years. Conwell is the head of Temple University, a great night school for the poorer people of Philadelphia; he is a founder and promoter of hospitals.

Alton Packard, here March 25, is first of all a cartoonist, but he is versatile and gives an evening's entertainment full of fun-making and music, and knows when to stop.

During the Easter vacation period the Iowa College Glee Club of Grinnell will come to this college town to win honors away from the Oregon glee. This is a well trained organization and will render music well worth the hearing.
