MONUMENT UNVEILED TO PRISON SHIP MARTYRS

New York, Nov. 14.—With teeming crowds and in the presence of a distinguished company the Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument in Fort Green Park, Brooklyn, was dedicated today. William H. Taft, the next President of the United States, delivered the principal address of the day.

It was a gala day in Brooklyn. The stars and stripes floated from all the public buildings and from hundreds of private residences. Almost every house in the immediate neighborhood of Fort Green Park was decorated with flags and bunting. The speakers' rostrum was handsomely decorated with shields, large brass eagles and the coats of arms of the thirteen original states.

The dedication of the monument was made the occasion of a splendid military pageant, 10,000 soldiers of the United States army, National Guard of the State of New York, and sailors and marines from the navy yard participating in the demonstration. Along the line of parade thousands of spectators thronged the sidewalks and loudly cheered Mr. Taft and the other notables who were to take part in the exercises.

The speakers paid glowing tribute to the memory of the 12,000 American patriots who lost their lives in prison ships anchored in Wallabout Bay in the Revolutionary War, and in memory of whose martyrdom the monument was erected. The monument itself is a remarkable structure. It is one of the largest fluted columns in the country, finely proportioned and of imposing dimension. The column, designed by the late Stanford White, is of Newport white granite, 150 feet high, and rises to a height of 250 feet above the street level. The shaft is eighteen feet in diameter at the base and fourteen at the neck. The Doric capital measures twenty feet across. The bronze funeral urn surmounting the shaft is the largest ever cast. It is twelve feet in diameter and weighs eight tons. The total cost of the monument exceeded over $400,000. Of this amount Congress appropriated $100,000 and the remainder came from the State of New York, the City of New York and from voluntary contributions.

The story of the Prison ship martyrs forms one of the most tragic pages in the history of America. Certain vessels used in the sugar trade were anchored in Wallabout Bay, Brooklyn, during the Revolution and became veritable charnel houses as English prisons for American soldiers. Confined below decks, with no attempt at sanitary arrangements, the mortality of the unfortunate captives was frightful. It is estimated by the most careful historians that no fewer than 12,000 American patriots lost their lives in these prison ships.

Each morning the English guards would call to the prisoners, "Turn out your dead." These were buried on the beach in shallow graves until some time after the war, when through the patriotic efforts of the Tammany Society they were given a decent burial in lower Hudson avenue. This occurred about 1805. In 1870 the remains were transferred to Fort Green Park and placed in a vault. Early in the present year, under the direction of inspectors from the War and Navy departments, the remains were removed from the old vault and placed in the crypt of the magnificent new monument. The remains of the martyrs were found to consist of, for the most part, of bones broken in many places, only one perfect skeleton being found.

Twenty years ago, when the project for the monument dedicated today was first broached, the Society of Old Brooklynites sent a representative to England who copied the names of eight thousand victims of the prison ships which he found in the records of the British War department. Three of the ships failed to make any report and for this reason the record is far from complete.

All the thirteen original states were represented among the victims of the prison ships. In recognition of this fact each of the thirteen states sent official representatives to the dedication exercises today. These representatives were given places of honor on the large stand erected at the side of the monument to accommodate the invited guests. The gold lace and brilliant uniforms of the army and naval officers and the flags, coats of arms and other decorations combined to form a brilliant display.

DISTRICT FAIR AT COTTAGE GROVE NEXT WEEK

The District Fair Association is progressing with their fair program, which will be held in Cottage Grove next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. A list of premiums has been arranged and the various committees have worked hard and diligently to make this a grand success, and from the present indications it will be. A meeting was held in the Commercial Club rooms this week in regard to business connected with the fair and a very optimistic report was given. Farmers should bring their produce and make an exhibit. There are a lot of blue ribbon producers in the vicinity of Cottage Grove, and everybody would like to see some of their products on display.

Remember, it costs you nothing to make an entry of stock, poultry, vegetables, fruits, timber, lumber, fancy work and all those things which go toward making a country fair a success. A few small cash prizes are offered and many pretty and suitable ribbon premiums are offered. The baby show Saturday is free for all and will no doubt be a great attraction.

Friday is W. O. W. day and the choppers of the country will be out in full uniform and will give a public drill. They will initiate about 100 new members in the local lodge room in the evening and give a grand banquet. Apply to C. C. Hasleton, secretary, for entry blanks and shipping tags. Space may be engaged by applying to F. B. Phillips and F. H. Rosenberg, exhibits committee.

All exhibits must be presented by 8 o'clock Thursday morning, November 19.—Leader.
