THE VALUABLES OF THE LATE MRS. GEO. WOOD

Dec. 5.—Jewelry valued at $75,000, a copy of a book valued at $15,000, Paris gowns, hats, opera included in an inventory of the valuables reported at the residence of the late Mrs. George Wood, who died October 13 at her home at 1239 North Philadelphia. She lived alone and died alone, eccentric, and although she had hosts of friends she spent her days and nights alone in the big, gloomy house unattended.

The disappearance of the valuables caused a sensation among Wood's friends. The dead woman was sixty years of age, the widow of George Wood, former American agent for the insurance company. The coroner assigned heart surgeon as cause of Mrs. Wood's death, and the will appointed the trust company and two women friends as executors. When it came time for distribution many articles in the will were missing, but there is no positive evidence that the things were not disposed of during the life of the late Mrs. Wood.

The estate is being administered by the trust company. It is declared she was in debt when she died.

U. S. CRUISER YANKEE SINKS AFTER FLOATING

New Bedford, Dec. 5.—The United States cruiser Yankee, which was floated yesterday after being aground on a reef in Buzzard's Bay for ten weeks, sank early today off Penikese Island. The crew of 150 was landed safely.

The Yankee was proceeding under tow to this city, accompanied by the naval collier Lebanon and two tugs. A nasty southeast gale obliged the vessels to head for this port, and owing to the darkness the Yankee was towed to anchorage in the lee of Penikese Island.

DETAILS OF THE ACCIDENT

Washington, Dec. 5.—Commander Marsh, in command of the Yankee, advised the navy department of the second disaster to the Yankee. He says:

"After floating the ship she had a list to starboard, which increased until it had broken her berth deck and flooded the compressor room and fire room. The ship listed steadily and sank deeper. I was on deck and all hands were sent away in tugs and we had no casualties. The ship is settling in 42 feet of water, and the wrecking company will renew operations at once."

A committee will be appointed to establish the responsibility of Commander Marsh or other officers of the Yankee for the accident.

DUTCH EXPECT UNCLE SAM'S AID AGAINST CASTRO

Think They Will Get More Than Moral Aid New

The Hague, Dec. 5.—The government of The Netherlands has declined to dignify the movements of the three Dutch warships along the coast of Venezuela as a naval demonstration. The officials assert the maneuver is only an ordinary exercise cruise.

The government has no information regarding the statement that four American warships are expected at Curaçao about January 1st, but it is thought that now that the presidential election is over the United States may possibly lead Holland more effective assistance than the moral support already promised.

SERIOUS COLLISION OF TROLLEY CARS

Many Badly Hurt in Accident At Seattle

Seattle, Dec. 5.—Motorman Gus Olson and two others were perhaps fatally hurt when an out-bound University car crashed into an inbound car this morning. Twenty-three others were seriously injured, and the more seriously hurt were removed to the Seattle General hospital as fast as ambulances and automobiles could be summoned.

The collision was the result of a heavy fog, the motorman of the out-bound car missing the signals on the single track, and ran almost into the inbound car before he saw it. He threw on the brakes, but they would not hold on the slippery track and the crash followed.

The out-bound car carried 120 passengers and the inbound 70, and there was a panic when the cars came together, the screams of the injured filling the air. Several women fainted, but quiet was restored and the uninjured assisted in the work of rescuing the seriously hurt.

Motorman Olson died later.

The dead were: Casmo Garcia, aged 75, head of the household; Mrs. Vivian Garcia, aged 52; Torivia Garcia, son, aged 25; Luz Guerrule, aged 60, a friend of the family.
