SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1908

It's the honest grip,
 Of comradeship
 Makes a fellow take heart again;
 It's the word of cheer
 From a friend sincere,
 Makes him feel life's not in vain.
 When the way is dark
 And the luckless barque
 Is drifting from safety's strand
 Why, God bless the men
 And the women who then
 Hold to us a helping hand.
 When you're out of luck
 And you're out of pluck
 And the light doesn't seem worth
 While,
 What will give you heart
 To do your part?
 Why, a hand clasp and a smile;
 So when all is black
 And we've lost the track
 In a world we can't understand,
 Then God bless the friend
 Who is there to lend
 A smile and a helping hand.

POPULAR VOTING CONTEST

The Guard will inaugurate another popular voting contest, which will result in the sending of a party of at least nine young ladies from Lane county to the Seattle-Alaska-Yukon exposition, giving them the trip of their life without a cent of expense to them. One year ago The Guard conducted a voting contest of this kind and in the end gave more prizes and was more liberal with the winners in all respects that they had reason to expect. It will be the same this year, and the publisher gives his guarantee that the advance promises will be made good—and more, too.

Mr. Murdock, who has been specially engaged to manage this contest, is thoroughly reliable and we can recommend him to the people of Lane county as one in whom they can place the fullest confidence.

This contest will simply give those young ladies who are willing to make a reasonable effort an opportunity to enjoy a vacation that they could not procure in any other manner, since the exposition management has assured The Guard that its party will be given special attention during their stay in Seattle.

PIONEER LIFE

The Guard has received with the author's compliments a copy of "Pioneer Life." The author, Uncle Sam Handsaker, is well-known in Lane and Douglas counties, where he came as a pioneer in early days. His book will be but another of the many contributions the author has made to the well-being of his fellows. It tells in simple style the true story of pioneer experiences in crossing the plains, in fighting Indians and in the humble log cabin.

To us who have come at a later day and who may have been tempted to criticize the stage of development we found, this and similar books are an explanation of the difficulties found and overcome, conditions unknown to us.

The book is well bound in cloth and is sold by the author at the price of one dollar a copy.

Collier's Weekly, which is credited with being able to look about as far into the interior of a millstone as the next person, advises everybody to build at once, whether they have the money or not. That paper says: "If you intend to build soon, do it now. Borrow, if necessary, whatever, under your own circumstances is a prudent amount. Money loans at the lowest rate for years; labor is a little less costly than it has been for years—much lower than it will be for a long time to come. The materials for construction, especially lumber, are very cheap. Flooring, in most localities, is 20 per cent below its price a year ago, and hardwood may be had for the former cost of soft wood."

Some wiseacre has remarked that the town that is too bad for good people and too good for bad people, is likely to go to the bad for good. Which is doubtless correct. It takes all kinds of people to make a town and we must put up with a certain per cent of bad in order to get the good. The thing to do is to keep the bad down to the minimum and the good up to the maximum.

Morse, the banker who robbed depositors of his institution of several million dollars, declares that he would as soon be sentenced to prison for life as for fifteen years. The eminent financier is quite correct and we agree with him in every particular. Let us make it life, by all means.

Everybody in Mississippi, editors excepted, has gone to planting peach trees since a Jackson man found $13,000 in gold while digging a hole to plant one. And the firmer of the coins convinced that there's no hoodoo in thirteen.

Says Frank Hitchcock to Frank Vorys: "Good morning, Artie; is my portfolio on straight?"

A London paper has the greatest editorial discoverer on earth. He has discovered that Hearst will be elected president in 1812. If that doesn't get him an offer of a $15,000 salary Hearst will be lacking in appreciation.

According to cable news, Japan is importing cats from Germany. We have millions the Japs are welcome to, and we will pay the freight.

Without butting into the lady magazinists' controversy on "What are the requisites for a good wife?" it may be said that silence after midnight deserves consideration as one of them.

Now that John D. Rockefeller has published a magazine article on "the difficulty of giving," it is in order for him to tell us about the case of getting, in which he is a real expert.

It's only a question of time when the Connecticut girl who advertises herself as too beautiful to hold a domestic job will be figuring in the yarns of a theatrical press agent.

Every advocate of long-time bonds for the improvement of waterways wants to do something that will cause us to be remembered by posterity.

"THIS IS MY 64TH BIRTHDAY."

Sir Frederick Bridge, the celebrated organist and master of the choristers of Westminster Abbey, was born in Worcester, Dec. 5, 1844. At the age of six he entered the choir of Rochester Cathedral and remained there until he was fourteen. In 1867 he qualified for the Fellowship of the Royal College of Organists and took the degree of Musical Bachelor at Oxford in 1869. After several years at Manchester Cathedral Dr. Bridge in 1875 was appointed deputy organist of Westminster Cathedral and in 1882 he succeeded to the full title. He presided at the memorable service held in the Abbey in connection with Queen Victoria's Jubilee in 1887 and at the coronation of King Edward in 1902, for each of which events he arranged the music that was performed and composed all the anthems. Dr. Bridge was knighted in 1897, and was made a member of the Royal Victorian Order at the time of the coronation.
