MULTNOMAH CUTS OUT STATE UNIVERSITY

Clubmen Will Play Annual Game on Thanksgiving With O. A. C. Hereafter

Instead of meeting the University of Oregon next Thanksgiving day, as has been the annual custom of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club for the past ten years or more, the club has practically decided to take on the Oregon Agricultural College eleven for that date, says the Oregonian. A conference was held on Monday between representatives of the Multnomah Club and Managers E. D. Angell, of the Corvallis Institution, and while the proposition is an assured fact, it must be ratified by the board of directors of the Multnomah Club, which will probably be done at a special meeting on the order of a conference, at which representatives of the club and University of Oregon, as well as the Agricultural College, will be present.

The recent game between the University of Oregon and the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club, which resulted in considerable adverse criticism of a member of the Multnomah team, was the last game of a three-year agreement between the two institutions. The expiration of the agreement was known to the management of the Oregon Agricultural College and that institution immediately opened negotiations to be considered as an applicant for that date. According to the plans of the club, as far as is definitely known at present, the University of Oregon will be asked to enter into an agreement to alternate annually with O. A. C. in the Thanksgiving game with Multnomah. If Eugene assents to this agreement, the Oregon eleven will meet Multnomah here on Thanksgiving in 1910, for it now is practically settled that the "Aggies" will play here with the clubmen in 1909.

This surprising arrangement, which will startle the football fans who had come to look upon the annual Multnomah-Oregon struggle as a fixed proposition, will afford an opportunity for gossip for many weeks to come. In fact it is the biggest football sensation of the season.

When questioned about the new arrangement last night, members of the Multnomah Club admitted that the proposition had been discussed and stated that it would come before a regular board meeting probably within a week or two, but denied that any agreement with O. A. C. had been signed. Manager Angell, of the Corvallis team, also denied that anything definite had been decided upon, but admitted that the prospects of the Oregon Agricultural College taking the University of Oregon's place next Thanksgiving day, were exceedingly bright.

The clubmen are known to be displeased at the criticisms heaped upon a member of their team by University of Oregon admirers, and say that such action on the part of the student supporters was uncalled for.
