STRONG EVIDENCE AGAINST HAINS IN FAMOUS MURDER TRIAL

Flushing, N. Y., Dec. 18.—The trial of Thornton J. Hains on the charge of shooting his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., in the killing of William E. Annis was adjourned to night until Monday, after a day in which the state developed the strongest testimony so far adduced. Two witnesses, Herbert L. Funke and Arthur Andrews, eye-witnesses to the shooting, swore that there was an interval between the first shot fired by Captain Hains at Annis, and the other ere came in fairly rapid succession. Both of these club members declared positively that Thornton Hains aimed his revolver at those on the float after the first shot, and before the succeeding shots were fired. An exhaustive cross-examination of the part of the prosecution failed to shake their testimony. Mr. Andrews stated that after the first shot he saw the defendant aim his revolver at witness' father.

"There was a shot, then an interval, when there were some more shots in quick succession, then a pause and a last shot, which went through the sail. I ran when I saw Thornton point his revolver at my father, and stood under the dock," said Mr. Andrews.

Graphic Story of Shooting.
Mr. Funke gave a graphic description of the shooting of Annis. The captain was standing by with his arms folded, and waited until Annis boat swept up beside the float, and then, lifting the obscuring sail, Hains fired several shots at the publisher.

Mr. Funke said he saw Captain Hains on the float as the Annis' boat came in. Thornton Hains was standing about a yard from the captain, who seized the boom of the boat with his left hand and with his right drew his revolver. Crying "Annis" the captain fired, and almost immediately Thornton Hains aimed a revolver at the witness, who was about seven feet away. The witness said that Captain Hains then fired about four more shots at Annis, then paused and fired again. Mr. Funke said that he could not be certain but thought Captain Hains fired six times. Thornton Hains did not address him while aiming the pistol at him.

PINKHAM MENTIONED ON ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

Louis Pinkham, Oregon's fighting tackle, was given an honorable mention in Collier's Weekly by Walter Camp, when he announced the selections he had made for the 1908 season. Pinkham is the only man west of the Mississippi river to receive the honor.

What notably gave him the mention is the way he handled and outplayed Jarvis, of Washington, Jamison, of O. A. C. and other men much heavier. On defensive work the Oregon tackle is a wonderful player, although he has never carried the ball on offense to any extent.

Oratorical Preliminaries.
The oratorical preliminaries for the interstate contest, yesterday, were not held, for only six men had signed up of the number that intended to. Those are, J. H. Bond, Cornelius Beebe, W. C. Nicholas, Ben Williams, Earl Strong, and T. R. Townsend.
