PRESIDENT SENDS COMMISSION REPORT ON CONSERVATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—President Roosevelt today submitted the annual report of the conservation commission to congress. In the accompanying message he said:

"We are binding the rainbow around the globe, and this means that we are engaged in the grand engineering feat of all time. We are striving to add in all ways to the habitability and beauty of our country. We are striving to hold in the Pacific hands the remaining supply of an appropriated coal, for protection and benefit of all the people. We have taken the first steps toward the conservation of our natural resources, and the betterment of country life, and the improvement of our waterways. We stand for the right of every child to a childhood free from grinding toil, and to an education; for the civic responsibility and decency of every citizen; for prudent foresight in public matters; and for fair play in every relation of our national and economic life. In international matters we apply a system of diplomacy that puts the obligations of international morality on a level with those that govern the actions of an honest gentleman in dealing with his fellow-men. Within our own border we stand for truth and honesty in public and in private life, and we war sternly against wrongdoers in every grade. All these efforts are integral parts of the same attempt, the attempt to enthrone justice and righteousness, to secure freedom of opportunity to all of our citizens, now and hereafter, and to set the ultimate interest of all of us above the temporary interest of any individual class or group."

"The nation, its government and its resources exist, that of all, for the American citizen whatever his creed, race or birthplace, whether he be rich or poor, educated or ignorant, provided only that he is a good citizen, recognizing his obligations to the nation for the rights and opportunities which he owes to the nation."
