Any fair minded intelligent person will emphatically answer NO! Such a medicine is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, and its ever increasing popularity is due to actual merit alone.

duced them to leave the places where they were staying and accompany him to a mountain resort near Zurich, where he says he has an institution in which his teachings are imparted to his pupils.

There the girls were absolutely under his command and no correspondence was allowed to leave the place without his approval, it is alleged. For several months they remained there, and their mothers became much alarmed about them.

Finally Mrs. Sauvageot received a letter from her daughter which caused her to immediately set out for Vienna. When she reached there she learned that he daughter was in the mountain fastness of Klein and she immediately went after her. Klein at first refused to permit her to take her daughter away, it is alleged, but Mrs. Sauvageot became desperate and threatened to burn the place, unless she was allowed to remove the girl. She finally departed with her daughter, but Klein followed and took passage on the same steamer.

When they reached New York City Mrs. Sauvageot thought it would be a good opportunity for her to visit relatives in Kentucky, while the daughter should come direct to Tacoma. The mother gave her $65 to pay her passage. After the mother left, Klein came again upon the scene and the result was that he obtained possession of the money and bought the girl a ticket back to Vienna. Klein himself crossed the continent and came to Seattle, where he recently attempted to influence Mrs. Jensen, a singer and well-to-do widow, to go with him to Zurich to study music and philosophy. It is charged Miss Culbertson learned of the situation and warned Mrs. Jensen.

Klein in Trouble With Mother. Klein came to Tacoma and visited the Sauvageot home. Mrs. Sauvageot implored him to send a cablegram to her daughter telling her to come home but he refused to do so. The woman said he became violent and resorted to sensational antics. "I can make the earth open and gulp you right up where you stand," he is said to have remarked. An officer was sent for and when he arrived he found Klein standing over Miss Culbertson holding her by the throat and Mrs. Sauvageot cowering in fear in the room.

EAGLES' MINSTRELS SCORE GREAT SUCCESS

The minstrels given at the Eugene theatre last night by Eugene aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was, in the opinion of a majority of those beginning of the first act to the close of the performance, the show was full of good features, and to pick out the best numbers on the program would be a hard thing to do.

The electric light effect at the opening of the first part was surprising and beautiful. Each member of the circle held in his hand a red, white or blue incandescent light and above was hung a huge eagle, appropriately decorated and the initials of the order, "F. O. E.," emblazoned with colored lights.

The choruses were especially strong, showing good training along that line. The solos were also good the program with "Much Obligated to You." Then came J. V. Jackson with "Every Ship will Find a Harbor," followed by Bert Vincent in "Just because He Could not Sing: Love Me and the World is Mine." At the end Miss Anna Maude, the popular contralto, sang at the Bell Theatre, took up the chorus from a box which she and a party of friends occupied. This was a very pretty feature of the program and called forth rounds of applause. Miss Maple was compelled to respond to an encore. After this came the bass solo, "When the Bell in the Lighthouse Rings Ding Dong."

by Orlo Hendershott, and then came the inimitable "Red" McCormack with his glad whistle. For whistling "Red" has them all skinned a city block. He made a hit with the audience and had to respond to several encores. "Mandy Lane" by Orval Gilstrap was well rendered. Mr. Gilstrap has a baritone voice that is very pleasing. Wilbur Stuart, the contra tenor, was next. In "That's What the Rose Said to Me," and he was followed by that ever-popular fun-maker Elmer Roberts in "Went You let me Put my Arms Around You." This was perhaps the most popular of all, judging from the applause. Claude Gaby followed. Mr. Roberts with a tender solo, "Dolly Dear," and the first part ended.

The solo was good and many thought it better than a great many of the professional minstrel's present. John Caldwell, in his burlesque weight lifting, was good. Master Raymond Hulbert appeared in his trick bone solo to the delight of the audience. He was followed by the
