THE WOMAN AT THE TUB.

From east to west their praises ring—
The stalwart with the hoe,
The sturdy man behind the plow,
Who till the earth and sow,
What would they do, these toll-spent men,
Who plow and plant and grub,
Without the patient, plodding hand—
The woman at the tub?

The soldier's fame through every age,
The sweetest bard have sung:
In trumpet tones, their daring deeds
From sea to sea have rung.
In minor note with clarion horn,
You hear the gentle rub,
That makes him neat for dress parade—
The woman at the tub!

Honor the stalwart with the hoe,
The patriot at the gun,
With laurels deck the noble brow
For victories well won;
But if you've more bequests to throw
Beem it not poor or mean
To toss a few to that poor soul
Who keeps the whole world clean.

NO NATIONAL NEWSPAPER

At the annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, held at Delmonico's, in New York, on St. Patrick's day, Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, declared that there is no national newspaper in America. He said:

"All our newspapers are alike in this respect—their view is bounded by their locality. All of them—and the metropolitan newspapers I do not except—are provincial newspapers."

"The difference between the newspapers of our greater cities and those of the country districts is that the city newspaper is the more provincial. This is so because in the city there is more local news. There they print more of the Associated Press dispatches."

"I do not say this to the discredit of any newspaper. It is a reflection of the larger circumstance that there are not great National interests. There is only one national voice, and that is the voice of the president of the United States."

"A senator once complained to me about two years ago that the constitution had given him the right to send messages to congress. I told him the real trouble was that these messages had to be printed everywhere. Whenever the president sends a message it is presented to every reader of every newspaper in the country. There isn't a member of congress whose messages or speeches are printed, except in particular cases, and then in only a few papers."

"So the president's is the only audible national voice. Only he can sow his messages and sentiments broadcast. If you want national processes, therefore, elect presidents who have national impulses, interests and convictions."

In an interview with a Herald reporter the day after his speech, Dr. Wilson said that one reason why he believed a national newspaper to be an impossibility in this country was because the country was so immense. When asked if he believed there was a national newspaper anywhere he replied:

"Yes, I believe the London Times is a national newspaper. But then, you see, England is a snug little country and very small as compared with our great area. London is the one great centre of English life, as well as the capital of the country. It is fairly simple to make a London paper national."

The Western congressmen should stand for protective duties on lumber, wool, hops and fruit. Tariff legislation has become simply a grab for each section of this great country and the members of any delegation who are not alive to the interests of their particular state will be derelict in their duty to their constituents. We should much prefer to see tariff legislation enacted on a higher plane of statesmanship, but have very little hope that this will ever happen.

Meetings under the auspices of the local organizations of the Oregon Development League are being held at Roseburg Monday, April 5th; at Central Point, Tuesday; Oakland, Wednesday; Cottage Grove, Thursday; Eugene, Friday; and Oregon City Saturday. The Central Point gathering will have delegations present representing the entire Rogue River Valley.

If the Republicans of Oregon really want to elect a governor next time, why don't they unite on the present incumbent? Frank Benson is a safe man who is well endowed with common sense and good judgment, and would inspire confidence among all classes of voters.

And here's a know-it-all Englishman saying that Liberia will never prosper until it is annexed by England or the United States. If it's got to be annexed we're for letting England do the stunt.

If King Peter, of Serbia, is going to abdicate, Wall street might raise the coin to buy the crown and offer it to a distinguished gentleman now enroute to Africa. But if Champ Clark had the disposition of it, he would probably give it to a man whose first name is Joseph.

In addition to being the paradise of prize-fighters and fake mining schemes, Nevada has been indorsed by the high-flyers of swollen fortunedom as the proper place to secure a divorce while you wait.

We are informed by the census bureau that the average American family is 20 per cent smaller than when the first census was taken, but it failed to tell us how to catch up with the percentage table.

This new machine to measure the sense of touch doesn't interest the average man half as much as one to prevent the quick "touch" by friends.

If we correctly interpret the attitude of some men in congress, they want a tariff bill entirely composed of "jokers."

The Dalles will have a $60,000 hotel, the contract having been let last week.

Eugene woolen mills running on full time with a year's orders ahead.

Looks like more paving in Eugene this year than last.

And what next to fill the newspapers with?

Peter McNutt, member of the executive council of Prince Edward Island and one of the leading public men of that province, was born in Darnley, P. E. I., April 5, 1834, and received his education at Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown. His tastes led him into mercantile life and he established a lobster packing plant which eventually became one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. Mr. McNutt was elected to the provincial legislature in 1892 and was several times re-elected. He has held a seat in the executive council since 1897, when he became a member of the Warburton administration. His name was prominently mentioned in connection with the governorship in 1904, and with the premiership on the death of the late Hon. Arthur Peters.

THE HARBOR LIGHT.

The god of night awakens
To guard the pines of day,
Pale-eyed beneath the setting sun
Peers out across the bay,
And sees the sailors bringing
Bounties from the sea
As they row back with singing,
Coming home from sea.

Across the tides of night time
It bars the blackened sky,
As, glided through the driving night,
A shadow ship goes by;
And when the dawn is breaking
It beholds again
The fisher-folk a-making
Out to sea again.

KEEPING LENT.

Ah, yes! She's keeping Lent,
As meek as fair;
If that ere all she's keeping
I'd not care.
But my unlucky heart
She's keeping, too,
And keeping it always in
Quite a stew.
So, I'm in sackcloth now—
Because, you see,
I'm doing penance for idolatry.

My only solace is
She keeps (with Lent)
More hearts than mine in this presented

Swept Over Niagara

This terrible calamity often happens because a careless boatman ignores the river's warnings—growing ripples and faster current. Nature's warnings are kind. That dull ache or pain in the back warns you that the kidneys need attention if you would escape fatal maladies—dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Take Electric Bitters at once and see back-ache fly and all your best feelings return. "After long suffering from weak kidneys and lame back, one $1 bottle wholly cured me," writes J. R. 55c at W. A. Kuykendall's drug store, Blankenship, of Belk, Tenn. Only 55c at W. A. Kuykendall's.

Settled in Linn County in 1852 and Come to Lane County in 1857

Henry Maxwell, a pioneer of Oregon, died at the home of his brother, John Maxwell, at Irving, Sunday, April 4, at the age of 63 years, from Stomach trouble.
He was born in Holt county, Mo., March 16, 1847. He crossed the plains in 1852, settling east of Harrisburg in Linn county, and from there moved to Lane county in 1857, since which time he has resided in the county. He leaves nine children living in different parts of this state and California, and one brother, John, near Irving.

MRS. SAMPSON WILL BE TRIED FOR MURDER

to be nothing more than idle gossip. The only evidence against Mrs. Sampson seems to be the fact that when her husband was last seen alive she was quarrelling with him and she has refused to testify regarding this trouble. Nor has she stated on oath where she was when the bullet was fired.
The Allyn family is one of the oldest and wealthiest in the county and the fight for Mrs. Sampson's liberty will be a notable one. George Palmer of Rochester, Asa Abelman, Editor Hamm of Lyons and George S. Tinkelaugh of Lyons have been engaged to conduct the defense.
Mrs. Sampson is said to approach her trial in the confidence of an acquittal. The jury that has been drawn is composed of business men and prominent farmers. There has not been a conviction for murder in the first degree in this county since 1860.

LOOKS LIKE BIG MAJORITY FOR MATLOCK TICKET

In the First ward, and the supporters of the ticket look for good-sized majorities for their candidates in each of the other wards.
Reports of Vote-Buying
There were numerous reports of attempts at vote-buying on the part of the Willamette Valley Company henchmen, but if there was any such work all attempts to locate the offenders were futile.
The crowds on the streets and about the polls were very orderly, and the peace officers had very little to do.
Vote Up to 4 O'clock
The vote up to 4 o'clock this afternoon in the several wards was as follows:
First 425
Second 248
Third 333
Fourth 328
Total 1334

O. J. Hull, of the Red Cross Drug Company, will retire from the management of the store and will spend the summer outside at other business. E. M. Harvey will manage the store.

FORT WORTH HAS FIVE MILLION FIRE

Flames, Fanned by a Strong Wind, Sweep Over Texas City

Fort Worth, Texas, April 3.—Fanned by a stiff wind, a fire which originated in a barn at Jennings avenue and Peter Smith street in the southern portion of this city this afternoon, swept an area of ten blocks in length and seven in width, destroyed property roughly valued at more than $5,000,000 and caused the death of six persons.
The fire, which originated in a fashionable residence district, was beyond control within 15 minutes, and was not checked until dynamite was resorted to four hours later.

Stone Depot is Bulwark.
Assistance was rushed from Dallas and Weatherford on special trains but the flames were not stopped until they had eaten their way to the Texas & Pacific Railroad reservation on the east. On the south the fire was checked at the Texas & Pacific passenger depot, this steel and stone structure forming a bulwark that saved the wholesale district.
The Texas & Pacific roundhouse and 10 engines, the repair shop, four churches, two public school buildings and Walker's sanitarium were destroyed. The other buildings destroyed were residences, most of them new and in the most exclusive sections. Persons living within a radius of three blocks of where the fire started, had no time to save anything.

Cremated and Electrocuted.
A patient, whose identity has not been learned, perished in Walker's sanitarium, and three men were electrocuted and their bodies burned to cinders within the Sawyer electric plant. Herbert Stacy was fatally burned in an endeavor to save his home and a fireman fell from a house top and was killed.
Rev. H. O. Cowan, assistant pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church, is missing.
The burned district is being patrolled by troops tonight to prevent looting. It is estimated that 500 families are homeless. Many of these have gone to Dallas, where shelter has been offered.
