NO CHANGE IN COLLEGE COURSES WITHIN TWO YEARS

The Board of Higher Curricula, created at the recent meeting of Legislature, and composed of Dr. J. B. Wilson, Pres. of the Portland Academy, Representative Beale from Tillamook, O. P. Coshaw of Roseburg, J. C. Hedges of Oregon City, and C. J. Smith of Pendleton, met at Portland last week to discuss the duplication of courses at O. A. C. and the University of Oregon.

No definite action was taken. They called on Presidents Kerr and Campbell for information and received notice from the State to deal carefully with the matter, lest they endanger the federal appropriation now received by O. A. C. As the question is a large and vital one data is being gathered and much consideration over it.

Nothing permanent will be done this year or next as to the changing of courses.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB SALEM JEWELRY STORE

Salem, Ore., April 27.—"Whisky did it. Whisky is responsible for the whole thing."

"This is the only explanation. Albin H. Smith can give of his audacious attempt to hold up the Charles H. Hinges jewelry store in broad daylight at 12:30 this afternoon. Smith is now in the city jail, suffering untold agonies in the absence of stimulants.

Smith, who is the son of a local real estate man, walked into the Hinges store, which is on Commercial street, in the heart of the business district, shortly after noon, when the store was in charge of one clerk, Carl Neugebauer. Smith stepped up to the showcase, shoved a revolver under the nose of the frightened clerk and told him to "shell out all your money and be quick about it. No fooling now."

The clerk lost no time in complying with the demand. He pulled out the cash drawer and dumped the contents, $27 on the showcase. Smith then ordered the clerk to hand over all the diamonds. The safe was locked and the clerk explained that he did not know the combination. Neugebauer was then told to get the diamonds in the window, between $1000 and $1500 worth. Just then the proprietor, Charles H. Hinges, entered, thinking he was just in time to help the clerk close a diamond deal.

As he swung the door, Hinges was within two feet of the robber, who swung about, placing the muzzle of the gun against Hinges' stomach, and said: "You hold up your hands, too."

With that he left the store. After running through the block he was intercepted at the next street by F. E. Taylor of Portland, and P. H. Wilhelm, a Salem man, who, after a struggle, succeeded in disarming Smith. The gun was a 38-calibre revolver, with one empty and four loaded shells. In one of Smith's pockets was found an empty flour sack.
