WILL WIND-UP PEABODY FUND

Wise Behest of Banker-Philanthropist Who Died Many Years Ago.

New York, May 14.—Unusual interest attaches to the meeting begun in this city today by the trustees of the Peabody Education Fund. When George Peabody, the banker-philanthropist of Baltimore and London, died in 1869 he left in trust to a self-perpetuating board of trustees a fund of about two and a half million dollars. "The income thereof to be used and applied in your discretion for promotion and encouragement of intellectual, moral and industrial education among the youth of the most destitute portions of the southern and southwestern states of our Union; my purpose being that the benefits intended shall be distributed among the entire population, without other distinction than their needs and the opportunities of usefulness to them."

Power was conferred by the deed of trust on the trustees to distribute the fund at the expiration of thirty years, which period ended in 1897. In January, 1905, the trustees decided, by a vote of 11 to 2, to dissolve the trust. As a step to this end the trustees offered the sum of $1,000,000 to the Peabody Normal college of Nashville, which has been the principal beneficiary of the fund, on the conditions that the institution change its name to "George Peabody College for Teachers," and the State of Tennessee should add $250,000 the City of Nashville, $200,000 and Davidson county, in which Nashville is located, should give $100,000, making the total endowment $1,550,000.

Several years were required to persuade the legislature of Tennessee and the common council of Nashville to comply with the conditions. The work was finally completed in a satisfactory manner several months ago, and nothing now remains but for the trustees to take the steps necessary to wind up the trust, which has been in existence for forty-two years.

The Peabody trustees who have before them the task of winding up the affairs of the corporation include such eminent men as Chief Justice Fuller, J. Pierpont Morgan, Governor of Hoke Smith of Georgia, Governor Ansel of South Carolina, ex-President Roosevelt, Joseph H. Choate, ex-Secretary Olney and Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts.

The story of the Peabody fund would not be complete without reference to the great philanthropist's rise to fortune. No American boy had a less hopeful outlook for his future success than George Peabody, who was born in Danvers, Mass., February 15, 1805. His parents were hard working, religious people, who could do little for their children, but to provide them with food and clothes until they were able to look out for themselves. George began to assume his responsibility when he was eleven years old.

Leaving his native town he went to Post Mills, Vt., and worked there a year. On his return he earned a night's lodging at Concord, N. H., by sawing wood. The journey was made on foot. Half a century later he went over the same road, this time in a carriage to Post Mills, and as a mark of his attachment for the place he presented it with a library.

In 1811 he became a clerk in his brother's store at Newburyport. The store was destroyed by fire, and at the age of 16 young Peabody found himself an orphan, out of work and without money or influence. In May, 1812, he sailed for Georgetown, near Washington, with an uncle, who went into business there and took the lad with him.

In 1814, at the age of 19, George Peabody went into partnership at Georgetown with Elisha Riggs, who provided the capital for the venture. The next year the business was removed to Baltimore, and branch houses were established in Philadelphia and New York.

Endowed with habits of thrift, George Peabody prospered. A modest fortune was amassed in a few years. In 1837 he went to London, and there established himself as a merchant and money broker. The last half of his life was spent in England, with occasional periods of residence in his native land.

His first benefaction of note was to his native town, in 1852, when Danvers celebrated its bi-centennial. He then gave it funds with which to establish a library, lyceum and Peabody institute.

In 1862 Mr. Peabody entered on the plan for his first great benefaction, the establishment of a fund for housing the poor of London. By 1866 this fund reached $2,500,000 entirely from his gifts. The fund now amounts to about $6,000,000 and many thousand families have benefited from the wisdom of this great founder. For these benefactions Queen Victoria wished to make Mr. Peabody a baronet, but he declined the honor. He died in London, November 4, 1869, and his remains were brought to this country for burial.

REAL ESTATE BARGAIN

I expect to make $100,000 on an investment of $10,000, and in order to SOON for this investment, will sacrifice on the following properties:

340 ACRES, 1½ miles from Creswell. All level plow land except 20 acres timber. Will produce 75 bushels of oats or 3 tons hay to the acre. small cash payment any good farmer can meet deferred payments on crops from the land. Price per acre

13.17 ACRES orchard land with 200 growing cherry trees, 3½ miles Eugene, near famous Harlow cherry orchard. Price

10 ACRES adjoining Dr. McCornack orchard; gilt edge fruit land and location for a home, only short walk from new $20,000 school now under construction. You can make the price of this land out of two crops of strawberries and land itself. Price

130 ACRES within the corporate limits of Florence, dry and level. Price for the whole, $35; or in 10 acre tracts at, per acre

Lots in Miller's addition to Florence, $150 to $250 each. Lots in the plat of Florence

120 ACRES in Glenada, lying between the church and public school. marine view and spring brook through the tract. Per acre

96 ACRES at Acme; 41 acres meadow and balance rolling hill land; 2 and 2 stores, 2 merchant mills and shiplanding near. Good dairy property. Price

MILL SITE on ship channel near Florence and 18,000,000 feet tributary. Price

CHOICE BUILDING SITES in my home tract near Hendricks' Park, with out spring water. Building restrictions insure big values. Overlook river, near car line. Prices on application.

All the above property is owned within the family, so I do not need to consult one about prices, terms or commissions.

I want money and NOW is the time to get a bargain from me. I sold acre Eugene at $49 per acre that is now worth $1000 per acre. I sold the where the new Sanford building is now going up for $1700. I sold Florence for $35 that is now worth $1500, and thought at the time getting good prices.

In 1891 the yearly production of gold for the whole world was only $130,050,000, and silver was then but $177,225,000 yearly for the whole earth. Since that date these have increased until last year the production of gold was $434,872,000 and in 1907 the coinage of silver was $100,000,000. This steady increase in the production of the great medium of exchange is said to be the production of improved machinery in mining, and there is every reason to believe this increase will continue indefinitely at about the same ratio, with the result that money will continue to grow real estate will continue to increase in value. The United States is getting more than her portion of this new money and Oregon, through her immigration and increasing commerce, is getting a proportion to this increasing inflow of money. The next three years will be "boomers."
