GOULD WEALTH FOLLOWED BY SOME STRANGE CURSE

New York, June 8.—Was there an inherited curse in the millions left by Jay Gould, "the Wizard of Wall Street?" It would certainly seem so from the amount of notoriety and domestic trouble in which the most of his children have shared since his death. A year ago this month the family skeleton was rattling its grisly bones in a French divorce court, where the Countess de Castellane, formerly Anna Gould, was suing for separation from her titled husband. About the time that the courts released the Countess de Castellane from her husband for good and all—leaving her free to marry the notorious Prince Helle de Sagan a few months later—the family infelicities of the Frank Goulds were being aired in the New York press. As in the case of the youngest daughter, Anna, the troubles of the youngest son, Frank, culminated in a divorce. The decree was granted his wife, who was Miss Helen Kelly, two weeks ago. And now, when the ink has scarcely had time to dry on the papers in the Frank Gould case, comes the separation suit brought by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould against Howard Gould, and the latter's countersuit for a divorce. The case was called for hearing today before Justice Gerard in Part 3. Special Term, and it is expected the trial will take place without further delay. It will not be a jury trial. Most of the testimony will be offered in the form of depositions taken by both sides.

JOURNAL'S PRESS MAY GO TO GREAT SEATTLE EXPOSITION

H. R. Kincaid's press is the oldest in the state, and if he and a number of friends are successful, the press will be taken to the Seattle fair. Geo. H. Himes, the historian of the Oregonian Historical Society, has offered to put the press in one of his rooms. The following letter is self-explanatory of the historical interest of the press: Salem, Or., June 6, 1909. Hon. H. R. Kincaid, Eugene, Oregon. Dear Sir: Yours of the 4th inst. was duly received. Yes, I am the Craig that published the Argus at Oregon City fifty years ago and more; and afterward of the Statesman, at Salem, and of the Salem Daily and Weekly Record, which I started in 1867; and also of the Willamette Farmer, and then again of the Statesman, daily and weekly. The Washington hand press, which you have owned so long, I once owned in Oregon City, and on which I printed the Argus for eight years. In 1863, in May, I brought it up to Salem, when I moved here to go into partnership with your brother-in-law, J. Newton Gale. Afterward it was sold to Bird Thompson, and taken to Roseburg, from which place I suppose you brought it to Eugene many years ago. It was the most easy running press that I ever worked. Of course, you know, it was the pioneer press of the Pacific Coast, on which the Spectator was printed so long, dating from February, 1846. Yours very truly, D. W. CRAIG.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL OPPOSITE FREIGHT DEPOT

The Park Hotel has been leased by A. C. Williams for a term of years. It has been entirely renovated. The furnishings are all new and clean. Rooms can be had single or en suite. In an interview Mr. Williams stated that it will be his effort to run the place as an up-to-date house in every respect and serve good board. Those who wish for a quiet place where they have the best of everything would do themselves a favor by patronizing the house.
