THURSDAY, JUNE, 17, 1909.

If you could cast away the pain,
 The sorrows and the tears,
 And let the joys alone remain
 From all departed years;
 If you could quite forget the sighs
 And recollect the song—
 What think you, would you be as wise,
 As helpful or as strong?

If you could lay the burden down
 That bows your head at times,
 Shun everything that wears a frown,
 And live a life of smiles—
 Be happy as a child again,
 As free from thoughts of care—
 Would you appear to other men
 More noble or more fair?

Ah, no! A man should do his part
 And carry all his load,
 Rejoiced to share with every heart
 The roughness of the road,
 Not given to thinking overmuch
 Of pains and grief behind,
 But glad to be in fullest touch
 With all his human kind.

—Charles Buxton Going.

NOT OVER CROWDED.

During the commencement season it is customary for speakers to warn graduates against entering the "over-crowded professions." This tendency has caused the Washington Post to take the subject up in an editorial way and it tries to point out that there is plenty of room for the graduates if they will but show some common sense in selecting vocations.

Among the other callings the Post refers to the profession of farming, which it considers in much the same light as that of engineering, medicine, law and other lines which are usually referred to as the "professions."

"The farmer who makes money out of his crops in the future will not be the boy who has learned his farming by following the plow, but the one who studied soils in the laboratory and the cultivation of plants at the experiment stations. It will be the professional farmer who will gather the plums in the next generation.

"So the boy who feels his ambitions crumble at the cry of overcrowded professions need not lose heart. The practical professions are of prime importance in the world today. They demand as much intelligence as the others, as much energy, and a nearly equal amount of study along specialized lines. Best of all, they pay well, and there is no over-crowding to get at the top—for the top is as wide as the circumference of the earth."

This characterization of agriculture applies well in the west. In this country land may be obtained easily and it is a well known fact that farming is the most remunerative calling there is.

Everybody in Lane county desires a railroad to the Suislaw and is willing to help the movement along. The only difficulty to overcome seems to be that of uniting the people on a particular plan, opinions as to the best method differing widely. This being the case, why not for once get together on the proposition to construct the first section of eighteen or twenty miles across the valley with local money and then bond the road for the additional money with which to compete it. Mr. Johnson says he can do this, which should not really prove a difficult task for a man experienced in such matters, as he offers ample evidence to show that he is. It should appeal to anyone as a safe and sane plan, and in the opinion of the men who have been working on the enterprise for a year past, it is practically the only one by which this much-needed railroad will ever be secured. Until the people here evince their faith in the project by investing some of their money in it foreign capital will not be forthcoming, but should we go ahead as suggested, there is little prospect of ultimate failure.

At last it has been explained. A woman who has been divorced eight or nine times was asked what on earth she wanted with so many husbands, and she replied, without batting an eye, "Just for souvenirs." Wouldn't you like to be a souvenir hubby?

Some big doctors are advocating the Chinese method of hiring a doctor to keep you well and docking him for the time you're sick, but we fear it will take a lot of agitation to popularize contract doctoring in this country.

The Duke family, of tobacco trust and divorce court notoriety, are splurging in the college endowment line. Wonder if they insist that the endowed shall adopt stringent anti-tobacco regulations.

Though stock in several airship passenger lines has been placed on the market, the railroads are going right ahead preparing to extend their lines and placing orders for rolling stock.

If there is a town in the Northwest growing faster than Eugene, it has kept that fact out of the newspapers.

And what the deuce does Maine, the granddaddy of prohibition, want with the home for habitual drunkards it is going to establish? Can it be that it is merely a graft?

Would-be huddies, of the fortune-hunting breed, are disgusted at the bad taste of the Ohio widow with millions who preferred suicide to marriage to one of them.

Three circuses and a three-day Fourth of July celebration all in one summer is the inducement we hold out to Young America to make its home in Eugene.

An ocean liner struck Long Island the other night, and, strange to say, the island is still there, ready to do business with summer boarders.

PORTLANDERS TO VISIT

'VARSITY 250 STRONG

F. E. Beach Tells What They Did Last Year and Will Do This.

Portland day at the University of Oregon will be the occasion of a visit to Eugene of some 250 citizens of this city, who will leave here by special train on the morning of June 23d and return at 11 the same night, says the Portland Telegram. The excursion by special train will enable the visitors to stay nine hours in Eugene, during which time they will be entertained by the citizens of that city, and treated to a luncheon on the campus of the University at noon. The fare for the round trip will be $3.75, or a reduction of one way fare for the round trip. F. E. Beach, chairman of the committee on preparation for the trip, said this morning:

"Portland day at the University will mean something more than an ordinary excursion. It will bring together a number of friends of the State University from this city, and be the means of an era of sociability between the representatives of the metropolis of Oregon and one of the leading and bustling cities of the interior. There will be a gathering of the boosters of both cities, who will have trained singers on hand with the latest booster songs, and there will be formal opening of the Depot Park, a pretty tract of several acres devoted to the use of the public, near the passenger depot of Eugene."

"Last year Portland day at the University of Oregon was observed by about 150 citizens of this city, and the occasion was one long to be pleasantly remembered by those who took part. This year the program will be more elaborate and the crowd promises to be greater. The day will also be commencement at the University, and will have special inducements for a good many on that account."

SIX FOOT COUGAR

KILLED IN CHASE.

A Varmint Dog Runs Creature for Two Hours and a Half.

R. Papenfus killed a six foot six inch cougar near his place three miles from Pleasant Hill Tuesday, after a chase of two hours and a half with his varmint dog Queen. The cougar was seen by a neighbor on the road near where Papenfus was working, lying under a tree on the ground. He took his gun and dog and the chase began.

Queen ran the animal to a tree soon enough, but the creature cleverly jumped from one tree to another, or ran out on a limb and leaped wide of its last track, so that it succeeded in escaping the dog. The cougar repeated those tactics a number of times before the dog and the men finally cornered and shot the animal through the head.

Queen was brought to Oregon from North Carolina by a man named Triplett. She now has a litter of six pups, which are blooded, and are for sale. A feat of the mother was when she followed a bear for four days and was successful at last.

FIRE PROTECTION FOR EAST EUGENE

Easterner Urges That the Water System be Extended to That Portion.

Editor Guard:—The matter of extending the water system into East Eugene is of vital importance to the residents of that part of the city. To think that a section of any city of the area of that part of Eugene lying east of the University absolutely without fire protection, is almost incomprehensible.

East Eugene is growing in importance as well as in population. Soon it will have a school house to add to its importance in addition to its factories and many residents. The time for some adequate fire protection has come, and the longer its installation is delayed, the more serious becomes the situation.

Should fire break out in that part of the city, it is a regrettable fact that not even a bucket brigade could be mustered to combat and prevent its spread.

It appears to the writer that it is up to the city to provide something for defense in case of fire. If nothing more than a cart with sufficient hose and a volunteer fire brigade can be considered at this time—then there should be put in motion before it is too late.

ELKS HAVE SECURED $50,000 OF THEIR $75,000 FUND FOR BUILDING

◆ The Elks have secured $50,000 of their proposed $75,000 building fund and it will be a matter of only a short time until the remainder is raised and actual construction work will begin. ◆ A prominent Elk stated this afternoon that it is probable that only the foundation of the six-story block at West Sixth and Olive streets will be built this summer, as it will be too late when the work begins to complete it before the rains in the winter set in. Early next spring work on the building will be resumed and rushed to completion.

GRAND JURY RETURNS SECRET INDICTMENTS

Working on Local Option Cases
 —Farmer Knoop Fined $200.

The grand jury has returned five secret indictments since yesterday afternoon, those indicted presumably being accused of selling liquor. There have been a large number of witnesses examined in liquor cases the past two days and it is probable that several more indictments will be returned on that score.

Knoop Fined $200.

Yesterday afternoon Charles Knoop, the farmer who was indicted for violating the local option law in the manufacture and sale of prune brandy, pleaded guilty and was fined $200.
