EUGENE SHOULD BUILD THE ROAD

If Eugene possessed the spirit exhibited by the heavy property owners of Boise, Idaho, in their effort to secure a second railroad, the road from this city to the Siuslaw would be built within a year, even if it was necessary to raise all the money locally. Here is a report of a recent meeting of the Boise Commercial Club, taken from the Idaho Daily Statesman:

"Throw off the yoke of Harriman" was the slogan of a meeting of the membership of the Boise Commercial Club Thursday night, when by a unanimous vote the club authorized a committee of five to be appointed for the purpose of outlining some plan of procedure under the district-aided railroad law enacted by the tenth session of the legislature. M. Alexander, S. H. Hays and Reilly Atkinson were among the speakers.

M. Alexander, declaring that the word of Harriman was not to be taken for anything, said he would be one of 100 men to take $1,000,000 in bonds for a Boise railroad and that he could contribute $25,000 in all, including stock subscriptions. Resolutions, he asserted, were useless; the thing to do was to do business, and start to do it right away, with capital contributed at home. He did not think the plan for a district-aided road wholly feasible, but believed it was a step in the right direction. He advocated the shortest route possible to the coast, so that Idaho might have a waterway to New York when the great Panama canal is completed.

We have a number of men in Eugene richer than the Mr. Alexander referred to in this report, and if these men would put up $25,000 apiece in stock or bonds, the rest of the people would follow their example as far as their means justified, and we could begin throwing dirt for the Siuslaw railroad before the summer is over.

Why not build the road now, instead of waiting as Boise has done for better railroad facilities until driven to desperation by the broken promises of the railroad magnates? While Eugene is growing and prosperous is the time to reach out for new trade and new territory.

By keeping a close watch on the senate proceedings while the corporation tax is pending it may be possible to get a line on individuals who have a "gentleman's agreement," if not a "community of interests," with the trusts.

And now the hyphenated cognomen enters the field of science. Because two men discovered it at the same time—one in France and the other at Princeton University—the new comet has been christened Borelly-Daniel. But that won't make its tail an inch longer.

The Commercial Club at its meeting tonight should take a firm stand in the matter of the Wendling train service, which will be still more important if work is begun on the Natron extension than it ever has been before.

If Eugene only had a railroad to the coast we would not have to plead for our rights with the Southern Pacific. The railroad corporations help those who are in a position to help themselves.

Turkey's deposed sultan must be beginning to think they are rubbing it in on him, now that he has been sued by a Constantinople firm of jewelers.

When Oregon faces a crisis or calamity in the future, all that it is necessary to do is to ask Colonel Hofer to lead in prayer.
