OUR BANNER

When our flag, all a-ripple, leaps up on the breeze, Its beauty enhanced by the green of the trees, And we ask in our hearts: What skies ever knew An emblem more fair than the red, white and blue Of our banner?

Though our flag has become an old sight to our eyes, Like sunrise, like sunset, it reddens our skies; Yet how seldom the rays of the sun filter through To our hearts, and how seldom the red, white and blue Of our banner?

But on the days when old memories waken our hearts And the past to the present its glory imparts, The feelings that stir up proclaim us still true To the meaning that hides in the red, white and blue Of our banner?

Oh, where, and by whom, is our flag valued best? Ask the homesick Americans, exiled, oppressed, When, far from his country, there breaks on his view, Like a friend among strangers, the red, white and blue Of our banner?

Nay, ask of our soldier, or sailor, who lies With his face to the foe under hot tropic skies, What is it that maketh his heart beat tattoo, When he sees fluttering high the red, white and blue Of our banner?

So here's to the sons of our country who fought And died for their flag—to the great deeds they wrought; Let our hearts, reaching up to them, give them their due, As we see in the new glamor the red, white and blue Of our banner? —Hanford Chase Judson in Uncle Sam Magazine.

Germany has 82 sanatoria for tuberculosis, which hold over 20,000 poor consumptives; the cost of each sanatorium is about $100,000. Through organized effective methods Germany has reduced the death rate from consumption by one-half throughout the nation. In the German army tuberculosis has diminished 42 per cent during the past 20 years (from 3.3 per cent per thousand to 1.9 per cent per thousand of the effective force).

Rather interesting story of the killing of a white tiger—the only one ever seen—by native hunters in India is going the rounds, probably started as a bid for a visit from Teddy. However, a run-in with a tiger would be no new experience for him. He's had several with the Tammany animal.

Canada is chucking because for the year ending March 31, 159,882 persons from the United States, carrying money and goods to the value of $60,000,000 settled "in her midst," not recognizing that she is being rapidly Americanized—Yankeeized, perhaps Senator Tillman would say.

Well, it does seem queer how ignorant of obvious things some very wise men can be sometimes. For instance, the big corporation magnates do not know that the more fuss they make about a corporation tax the more friends the tax has.

"Him that has gits." In addition to the millions he pulled down in his big wheat gamble, Jim Patten has just cleaned up $500,000 on a little cotton gamble. It is a wonder he would bother with such a measly amount as that.

Japan is still imitating American ideas. It has cut out race track gambling, which has grown to enormous proportions among the little brown men, who couldn't pick winners any better than their white brothers over here.

A Chicago banker, bewailing the passing of the taking of big chances to make big profits, significantly said: "Where there is government surveillance there is resultant shyness." Pretty good argument for surveillance, eh?

Every truthful press agent is saying that the trusts think well of the corporation tax, and that the opposition comes from the small business corporations, but there's no law compelling anybody to swallow it.

A news note telling of a pretty Jersey girl being given a "stocking shower"—all silk—seems incomplete. It should have added that the girl has since been steadily praying for wind and rain.

A food specialist says, "the two-meal plan is gaining in favor." Don't doubt it in the least, and if prices for grub keep a-going up, there's likely to be quite a run on the one-meal plan.

The Guard is a small paper today, but it is sufficient to give the important news events. Most of our mechanical force is busily engaged in assisting to make the American eagle scream.

Only fifteen celebration fatalities in the United States this year, up to Saturday night—and the celebration half over. Judging by results the boys haven't had as much fun as usual.

Think of Oregon people praying for rain, and, stranger still, think of Colonel Hofer leading the devotions!

Too bad that Senators should have to work in hot weather. However it may serve a good purpose in giving them some idea of what the rest of us have to do right along.

Senator Heyburn boldly asserted himself to be a tea-drinker—South Carolina tea at that—but he forgot to say whether he takes it with or without a "stick" in it.

If John Mitchell, the labor leader, does not watch out, they'll be calling him a plute—he has bought and moved into a $25,000 residence in New York.

We assume that Bryan's chautauqua engagements and prices are at the top notch of satisfaction—he says he wants no more newspaper notoriety.

They keep on finding out things. Gen. O. O. Howard now says that Gen. Grant did not like and did not use whiskey. Next!

Today illustrates the fact that it requires more than a little Oregon mist to dampen the patriotic ardor of the American citizen.

Did you ever notice that death never fails to take advantage of the additional opportunities a holiday always gives him?

There is seldom a misfortune without its recompense. If rain mars the celebration it also lessens the danger of fire.

If all men thought alike legislation would be easy, but it would make this old world a mighty dull place to live in.

A whole lot is money was burned up today—but the dealers in fireworks and explosives are not kicking about it.

Seattle claims to have 300,000 souls. That means a population of 125,000. Quite modest for the Sound city.

THE COLOR LINE.

Two men were caught in a Moro trap, and the Datto's guns sang near; And one wore an officer's shoulder strap, the other a private gear; One was a black of the Twenty-fourth, and one was a Southern man, And both were caught in a dark defile by the lines of the Moro clan.

Oh, wonder it is, and pity it is, that they sent the scouts alone To die in the silent jungle path with never a word or groan; Wonder it is, and pity it is, but the two stood back to back, And never a word between them passed as they waited the first attack. The bullets whined, the wounded shrieked, the rifle bores grew hot. But still the two stood back to back and answered shot for shot. And now the Moro fire dies down, and now there comes a hush— And white and black, with bayonets fixed, await the bolo rush. Two men lay dead in the jungle path, and their faces stared at at the sky; And out in the bush on each man's front the Moros were piled waist high, And when the warriors went in to mutilate the dead, They found them lying back to back, but white and black were red! —Alfred D. Runyon in "Uncle Sam's Magazine."
