TIMELY TOPICS FROM GAY OLD GOTHAM TOWN

News Happenings and Gossip of the Past Week in the Metropolis

(By Glenn Guernsey.)

New York, Aug. 21.—It has often been pointed out that very few of the men who have made New York famous are home-grown products. This is not the fault of the stork, who works overtime in the metropolis, yet most of these babies seem destined, when of full stature, to become the slaves and servitors of some alert "rube" from the wild and wooly, or up-state, or New England. "Who's Who" is remarkably barren of those born in New York City.

Frank A. Munsey, middle name Andrew, is one of those rural ones who came to New York eager for conquest, and who now employs hundreds of New Yorkers in his great publishing plant. Mr. Munsey, by the way, is today receiving congratulations of friends upon having attained his 55th birthday. The famous publisher, whose income from a dozen or so magazines and newspapers is in the neighborhood of a million dollars a year, was born in Mercer, Maine, on August 21, 1854. The story of his career reads like a romance. It is romance, however, with the feminine elements left out.

Mr. Munsey acquired his education in the country schools of his native state, and at a tender age began his business career as general factotum in a country store. Later he took a post-graduate course in a telegraph office and in a short time became a full-fledged lightning juggler. His ability to do things with the Morse code landed him at Augusta, where he was manager of the local Western Union office.

As one born under a lucky star and destined from the beginning of things to succeed, it was inevitable that young Munsey should have decided upon one of two careers. As the state capital offered to the observant youth many lessons in politics, and the little city was also a publishing centre for that class of monthly periodicals which offered literature suited to the intelligence of the rural population, sandwiched in between advertisements of "hidden name" cards, wonderful opportunities for agents, solid-gold watches for $1.97 and sure cures for all the ailments that afflict humanity. These cir-

... was born. The accouchment was a painful process and accomplished with pains of labor that would have discouraged a majority of men. In the little closet where he held forth Munsey was all things to all men. He was not only editor and publisher, but was advertising manager, circulation boomer and office boy. After days of bitter toil he spent the nights in writing the stories he was unable to buy.

Fighting against a thousand discouragements, which only gave way to others, the "Golden Argosy" at last achieved temporarary success. It was won at a greater cost than any other man, perhaps, would have been willing to pay, and even then the seeming success soon turned into failure.

At last Mr. Munsey decided that the juvenile weekly could not be rendered permanently successful and turned his attention to literature for adults. Munsey's Weekly was the result, but it was not received with any enthusiasm by the reading public.

Then Mr. Munsey determined to make a last stand with a scheme that the whole publishing world laughed at and ridiculed—a monthly magazine, similar in style and contents to the high-priced magazines of the day, but to be sold at ten cents a copy. Despite the scorn of the prophets, Munsey's Magazine caught on, and within a few years it returned to the pockets of its promoter a flood of gold. Many other ten cent magazines have been established by Mr. Munsey, some of which have failed to be permanent, but practically all of which have made big money.

With an income beyond what may be originally called the "wildest dreams of avarice," Mr. Munsey entered the newspaper field. In the attempt to revolutionize journalism in the metropolis with the Daily News he ridded himself of much surplus coin, and finally gave up the venture. In other cities he was more successful, and he now owns flourishing evening papers in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston. He has the distinction of being the only publisher of metropolitan papers with Sunday afternoon editions. This innovation was seriously criticised by clergymen and others, but it has apparently become permanent.

Mr. Munsey's day is divided into two parts. At 5:30 or 6 o'clock every afternoon he takes off his clothes, dons his night robe and hies himself to the land of nod for an hour or two. Then he gets up, dons evening clothes and resumes the serial story of the day at the point where it was left off in the preceding chapter. No business or social engagement is permitted to interfere with his rule of sleeping in the evening.

Mr. Munsey takes practically no exercise, except for brief walks to his offices in the Flatiron building and an occasional indulgence in yachting, horseback riding, golf and automobiling.

Suffragettes at Newport

The ancient ditty which begins, "Hark, hark, the dogs do bark," will probably be a popular air in Newport next week. All of the suffrage sisters of the metropolis will hie themselves to the marble mansion of Oliver H. P. Belmont, who on two days—Tuesdays and Saturdays—will keep open house for the "votes for women" crusaders. The general public will also be admitted to the obsequies at the rate of five dollars per head, and the proceeds will be added to the campaign fund of the suffragists.

This will be the first time that the general public has been admitted to the interior of the "Marble House," and it is entirely likely that the society climbers and society worshipers will willingly part with a five-spots to secure the blessed privilege. At the Tuesday session Dr. Anna Shaw, who wears a collar that buttons behind and is an ordained clergywoman as well as a preacher of the gospel of women's rights, will stand in a pulpit in the grand ballroom of the "Marble House"—that ballroom heretofore sacred to New York's highest society and now to be polluted by the pestiferous presence of the hoi polloi—and tell the assembled multitude busily engaged in examining the bric-a-brac how to attain political salvation through the saving grace of lovely woman, God bless her!

Mrs. Belmont will be on the job—that is, Mrs. Belmont will head the receiving line and will give to every one who parts with five a sweet, slow, Fabian smile, or money refunded at the gate. On Saturday Professor Charles Zuebelin, who does his professing at John D. Rockefeller's University of Chicago, and necessarily has a fad, his being suffrageing, will be the speaker. The same price of admission will be charged, and Mrs. Belmont will again do her great smiling act.

It is announced, as a special inducement, that before the real obsequies begin and the corpse of mere man is lowered into the grave, the congregation will be permitted to pass through the lower floor of the "Marble House" and have a look at its art collection and its Gothic museum. Gentlemanly detectives will be on hand to see that souvenir hunters do not make free with the scenery.

KING ALFONSO AND HIS BROTHERS-IN-LAW.

When King Alfonso of Spain sent the Third and Fifth army corps from Madrid to Barcelona to help put down the revolution there his two brothers-in-law were in command of the cavalry divisions. Prince Charles of Bourbon was placed in command of one of the best brigades in the Spanish army, and Ferdinand of Bavaria also commanded a fine force of mounted troops. Prince Charles of Bourbon, married the elder sister of Alfonso, and Ferdinand is the husband of the next sister. Both are excellent soldiers and loyal supporters of the cause of the king.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE WILLAMETTE VALLEY

Recently the Commercial Club asked the S. P. Co. for several improvements in its passenger service, and the company promptly did as requested. Among these improvements is the observation car (in the rear half of which smoking is allowed). This car is attached to the 5:35 evening local going to Portland, and returns from Portland on the 5:15 a. m.

Many people do not seem to know about this car being on, and unless it is better patronized the company cannot afford to keep it on. The extra cost for riding in this car is only 50 cents between Eugene and Portland; 25 cents between Eugene and Albany.

It lies with the public whether this added comfort and luxury in travelling between here and Portland will be maintained for them or not.

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Eugene Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do.
They tell about it in many aches and pains—
Backache, sideache, headache,
Early symptoms of kidney ills.
Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.
A Eugene citizen tells here a certain cure.

W. W. Gossett, retired, formerly of 558 Madison St., Eugene, Or., says: "Although I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills for three years now just as enthusiastically recommend them as ever. Acute pains in the region of my kidneys attended with a dull steady aching through my loins kept me in misery for about four months. One day while working a sharp pain caught me in my back and I could not move for some moments. When laid up I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills on the recommendation of a friend. I found relief from the first, and soon was completely cured. There has been no symptoms of a return of the trouble since, proving Doan's Kidney Pills to be a remedy of great merit."
