VALUE OF WOOL CROP IN VALLEY IS $1,500,000

Clip a Good One and Quality of Fleeces Very Fine — $4-000,000 for the State

Figures just made public place the Willamette Valley wool clip for the season of 1909 at $1,500,000. The Willamette valley clip was of about the same size and practically the same quality as last year. Like the sheepmen east of the mountains, the growers profited by the improvement of the world's market and secured better prices than they had for several years. The top price paid for valley wool was 26 cents. Buyers continue to complain, however, of the poor shape in which many of the farmers put up their wool.

The wool clip of Oregon this year netted the farmers of the state about $4,000,000. They have also received very good prices for their mutton, sheep and lambs, and are altogether in as prosperous a condition as the farmers in other parts of the state who have devoted their energies to raising grain.

It has been an ideal year for the Oregon sheep men, with the weather just right at every season to produce the best results. As a consequence, the output was larger than it has been in recent years, and the quality was better. At the same time there was a sharper demand from buyers and prices were higher.

Comparison by Years
The total wool clips of Oregon and their total value in the past four years were as follows:

Year	Pounds	Value
1909	20,450,000	$4,000,000
1908	18,300,000	2,500,000
1907	20,000,000	3,800,000
1906	18,000,000	2,240,000

The quality of the wool was excellent. It was of better staple than last year, though of heavier shrinkage, owing to the dry spring. The average weight of the fleeces was placed at 1-2 pounds, the heaviest average ever known in the state. The wool sheared fully one pound more to the fleece than it did last year.

The highest price paid during the season in Eastern Oregon was 23 cents, which was realized on a part of one clip at Shauko. The larger part of the best grades sold between 20 and 22 cents. Some sounder wools went at 12 cents, and other coarse grades moved at prices up to 17 cents. For the clip, as a whole, the average price was about 19-24 cents.

OBITUARY.

Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock where anxious parents and friends watched to see the slow of health again pictured on his baby face, the angelic son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Morrison. His stay here was but short being only one year, one month and ten days, but each day, each hour his little ways and manners showed some new feature that like a sunbeam so crept into the hearts of those who knew him that all will deeply feel the gloom and shadow left. Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the many friends gathered at the home to pay their tribute and after Bro. C. Osley's short discourse and words of sacred prayer that soothed each troubled soul, next wreaths and banks of flowers the little temple was laid to rest in the Odd Fellows cemetery. He leaves father, mother, little sister, Vernita, and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

The tiny rosebud showed its smiling face.

And shed its sweetest fragrance 'round the place.

"Till He by whom the blessing had been given Called for His own to blossom in heaven."

FAIR VISITORS WILL MEET WITH MANY AGREEABLE SURPRISES

Arnold's Combined Shows Will Give People Entertainment At District Fair

The visitors to the district fair held in this city commencing September 8th and lasting 4 days will meet with many agreeable surprises. Not only will the free attractions, offered by the fair association, be ample repayment for the journey here, but the thousands will acclaim the big fair this year the best ever.

Arnold's combined shows will be on the midway and that aggregation alone affords attractions worth traveling miles to see.

One of the principal attractions offered by Arnold's aggregation will be Mrs. Schell and her performing lions. These ferocious beasts have been in captivity less than eighteen months, but Mrs. Schell has already subdued the savage denizens of the jungles and has them perform through a large repertoire of the difficult stunts, while she, a petite woman, remains in the den with these man-eaters. Let anyone other than their mistress approach the cage of these beasts and bedlam, or a good imitation of it, is turned loose. These animals are fed raw meat, killed fresh, daily for their special consumption.

Arnold's attractions will regale the fair visitors each day with sensational free acts, thrillers that will make the average person hold his breath in fear of a catastrophe during the entirety of the thrilling performance.

Ample accommodations have been arranged to accommodate the large number of visitors. Restaurants will be installed so that none of the visitors will be unable to obtain plenty to satisfy the inner man with the best that the market affords.
