RICHARD ROE

WALT MASON.

Poor old Richard Roe! There is naught he doesn't know of the kennel and the street, and the hobo's foul retreat. There is nothing he can't tell of the ante-mortem hell. Drifting on life's stormy wave, he's a wreck, unfit to save; drifting, drifting with the flow, where the shipwrecked mortals go. Richard is a trying sight; once his countenance was white, but it's rusty with the grime of an elder, ancient time; and his rage are passing foul, and he has a wolfish howl; and his story's true and stale, as he pines in the jail; he's completely out of chink—and it's saddening to think that this effigy defiled must have been, one day, a child! It is saddening to know that above this Richard Roe, with his face by evil seamed, once a mother bent and dreamed! Prayed and dreamed, above that face—that he'd take an honored place in this great wide world of men—truly she was dreaming then! There are many Richard Roes, drifting—whether, no one knows—where life's billows sweep and swing; and it seems a blessed thing that so many mothers die, ere they see the weeks drift by.

John W. Kern, the Indianapolis politician, has probably kicked up a little more stir than he bargained for in his continual whining over his defeat for senator at the hands of the recent Democratic legislature of Indiana. A few days ago he charged that his defeat had been due to the purchase of eight votes by the brewery interests, and gave the intimation that they had gone to the successful candidate, Mr. Shiveley. Now James Garrard, Democratic representative, of Vincennes, the famed home of fair Alice, is out in a hot statement in which he demands that Kern name the eight Democrats who sold out and thus remove the implication of bribe-accepting that he has placed on all Democrats in the legislature. Kern refuses to reply to Garrard, though the latter's position seems to be the one taken by the Democrats generally in Indiana. By his whining and sniveling and long-continued soreness over his defeat, Mr. Kern has shown a streak of littleness that has driven from him the admirers he formerly had, irrespective of politics. The world has no consideration for a repiner or a grumbler.

William Allen White has said: "The man who buys his goods of a mail order house, and expects his neighbor to buy goods of him, or buy labor of him, or buy professional service of him, is economically a leech. He is sucking industrial blood out of the town, and gives none back. He sends his profits out of town like a Chinaman, and has no more right to a standing in the community than a foreigner. We are all neighbors industrially in this town, and the man who sends away for his goods is not one of us. He is of another industrial system, and deserves no man's support." This is good talk, straight from the shoulder, but it is not wise for the merchants to deliver it. Coming from the local paper, however, it sounds right and it is true, says the Oregon Tradesman.

A great celebration is being held today at Katanga to mark the completion of another link of the Cape to Cairo railroad, according to advices from Cairo, Egypt. The formal opening and linking up of the British and Congolese sections of the Cape to Cairo railway marks an important step in the peaceful penetration of Central Africa. The railroad has now entered Congo territory, and the enormously rich Katanga district will shortly yield up its mineral treasures as a reward to British enterprise. The section of the Rhodesia-Katanga railway, covering 131 miles from Broken Hill to the border, was built with British capital provided by Messrs. Robert Williams & Company, and Messrs. Paulings, the railway contractors.

John Wannamaker, the great merchant, has contracted with the New York Evening Post for a full page of advertising each day for five years, probably the largest advertising space deal ever closed. And yet some of the little fry will stand around and yelp that advertising doesn't pay. John Wannamaker knows by years of experience. Would he be giving that much to a New York newspaper just for charity's sake, or does he expect to reap his profits on it just as he does on his other stocks in trade?

The following verse, found running astray in the newspapers, is worthy of Kipling as far as "meat" is concerned:

Man is like a sausage,
Very fair upon the skin,
But you never know, exactly,
How much hog there is within.

A few days ago at Harrah, Okla., an attempt was made at bank robbery, but officers had been tipped off and in attempting to capture the men two were killed and one wounded. By mistake one of the men killed by the officers was the decoy who had "tipped off" the robbery. Fate is an odd old codger with a buzz-saw disposition.

Did you get yours? Figures show that the per capita fire loss in the United States in 1909 was $2.58, so if you haven't lost that much by flames in the last twelve months, you're still entitled to a little blaze of your own, or somebody else has been enjoying your portion of the blaze.

It is believed that Mrs. Frederick Cook was in Detroit the other day. Probably looking for material to build Doc an igloo.

An inquisitive congressman has figured out that it costs

$339,000 a year to maintain the president of the United States. Taft seems to be a big load for the country to carry in more ways than one.

The interstate university debate, between Oregon and Utah, takes place next week. Strange to say the interest that was manifested preceding the Oregon-O. A. C. football game is entirely lacking.

A Washington writer says the fight is not all out of Cannon yet. And probably won't be until the lid on Uncle Joe's last box is screwed down.

Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, is going to break all records by walking from Los Angeles to New York in 100 days, starting February 1. That's too much of a good thing for most of us.

A press dispatch says the French press is displeased with United States Minister Bacon's remarks. But of course if the Frenchmen don't like it they have the blessed privilege of lumping it.

Mrs. Lizzie Tarr, of Brunswick, Me., in December fried 5200 doughnuts and is being hailed as the Doughnut Queen. Let us hope there will be no doughnut holes in her glory.

A new city hall, more street paving and cement walks, and an extension of the street railway system are some of the things that Eugene should pull for this year.

When we read about places where the thermometer is down below zero, with the woodshed and coal cellar empty, we are thankful that we live in Oregon.

If there are not a few sensations during the Binger Hermann trial it will probably not be the fault of Francis J. Heney.

With Gifford Pinchot the last of the famous White House tennis cabinet has been kicked out into the cold world.

And now congress is getting a 1910 wiggle on itself.

A Wretched Mistake
to endure the itching, painful distress of piles. There's no need to listen; "I suffered much from piles," writes Will A. Marsh, of Silver City, N. C., "till I got a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon cured." Burns, boils, ulcers, fever sores, oozing cuts, chapped hands, chilblains, vanish before it. 25c at W. A. Kuykendall's.

WORLD'S CHAMPION APPLE EXHIBIT.

The display of apples shown on the left side of this photograph comprises the finest single exhibit of the king of fruits ever shown in this country and probably the finest ever produced in the world. It comprises a carload of 50,000 Spitzenberg apples and won the $1,250 sweepstakes prize at the national apple show at Spokane. The apples were exhibited by Tronson & Galtie of Maple Point, O. H. B. Tronson, who won the title of apple king of America, is in the center of the group of men.

LOST VALLEY NOTES.

(Special Correspondence.)

Lost Valley, Jan. 5.—Things have quieted down after the vacations. Every one or nearly so, are now proceeding to break their New Year's resolutions. Everyone but the telephone company.

The stockholders of the several telephone lines met Monday morning at the Lost Creek bridge and proceeded to put all wires on a new set of poles. The new poles are all cedar and carry two cross arms of two wires each, which gives the highway a very metropolitan look. Just keep it looking that way now and no one should kick.

Married, Jan. 2 at 4 p. m., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Blanch Parker at Pleasant Hill, Miss Grace Keever was joined in holy wedlock to Mr. J. H. E. Holman of Dexter. The contracting parties are widely and favorably known throughout Lost Valley, and their many friends join in wishing them much happiness.

Mr. Lawrence Hunsaker has gone to San Francisco to spend a month visiting his parents and sister. We hope he doesn't decide to remain in California as he is greatly missed in Lost Valley circles.

Mr. H. M. Parvin made a trip to Eugene Monday.

Mr. Thompson, of Cloverdale, was up Lost Creek Monday to secure a load of posts.

Mr. C. S. Pogue is spending the week at his ranch at Rush Island.

We understand that there was a basket social at Trent, Friday evening. Queer we didn't hear of it until Sunday morning.

It is reported that Miss Parks has been re-employed to teach the winter term of school. This speaks well of her past services.

Mrs. Blanche Berg, of Round Mountain, Nevada, who has been visiting her mother for the last month, has returned home.

It seems to us that a good live improvement club would be a very great step forward, for Lost Valley. What Lost Valley needs is a little advertising, and it would grow. Let us "wake up and walk." The telephone work shows what unity can do. We are only three miles from the new railroad. Let us organize such a club.

The Why and Wherefore.

There is never a why without a wherefore. For instance, Hood's Sarsaparilla roots out the disease. Wherefore, when people take this medicine faithfully and persistently their diseases disappear.

It cures scrofula, rheumatism, catarrh, dyspepsia, kidney complaint, etc., because these diseases have their origin in the blood. Thousands of people who once suffered from such troubles are alive and well today, and say they cannot help praising Hood's Sarsaparilla, because it has given them good health, lengthened their lives and afforded them new opportunities for happiness and usefulness.

It is a beneficent work that Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing. It helps poor tired mothers by purifying and enriching their blood and giving them appetite and strength. It builds up broken down constitutions, relieves the pangs of rheumatism and neuralgia, dispels the horrors of dyspepsia and nervous prostration, overcomes the symptoms of catarrh, eradicates scrofula, salt rheum and all blood diseases, and makes the weak and debilitated feel strong and vigorous.
