

WELCOMES TEDDY WITH ALL HONORS DUE HIGHEST REIGNING SOVEREIGN

April 21.—Theodore Roosevelt was received with all the honors due a reigning sovereign. A cordon of officials surrounded the railway station at the early hour, had the American Ambassador at the head of the party, and a number of officials of government, and M. Jusserand, French Ambassador at Paris, who came from America to be present during the visit, were at the station to meet the distinguished guest. The colonel appeared with the character of a sovereign.

After the formality of greeting was over Roosevelt and Kermit, with Ambassadors Bacon and Jusserand, entered an automobile and were run to the ambassador's residence, where Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel were awaiting them. The passage of the car through the streets was the signal for cheering and a large crowd, which had gathered at the embassy gave the party an enthusiastic welcome.

Roosevelt spent the morning quietly at the embassy, lunching with Mr. Bacon and a number of invited guests. This afternoon he called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who later returned the visit at the embassy.

TRAIN ROBBERS DASH TO FREEDOM THROUGH GATE OF LEAVENWORTH PRISON

Leavenworth, Kans., April 21.—Five train robbers, serving life sentences, escaped from the federal prison near here early today. Two were recaptured in a short time, and at 11 o'clock the other three were surrounded in the brush a short distance from the prison and it is believed they will be taken.

The break for liberty was well planned. Two of the convicts were at work in the carpenter shop and the others in the tailor shop. A Union Pacific switch engine had backed into the prison yard, and at the sound of the whistle the men dashed into the yard, and ran toward the engine. Leveling dummy guns at the engineer, the men climbed into the cab and compelled him to reverse the engine, running it through the gate into the open country.

The alarm was sounded and guards thrown out, while the farmers of the surrounding country were notified by the steam siren at the penitentiary. When the engine reached a point six miles from the prison the five men leaped to the ground and made for the woods. Two separated from the others and were soon captured, and the guards soon surrounded the other three in the woods, many believing their only weapons were wooden guns painted black.

A short time later two more convicts were captured. The roll call at the prison developed another missing, and there is no trace of him. All but one of the original five have been captured.

SEATTLE MEN PURCHASE THE STOREY TRACT

J. P. Howe and Associates Secure the Old Whitney Farm Southwes of the City

WILL PLAT IT AND SELL IT FOR HOMES

Stipulation in Agreement of Sale Requires Building of College Hill Loop

One of the largest deals in suburban real estate reported in Eugene for a long time and one that means the rapid development of the territory in which the tract is located, is the sale of the old Whitney farm of over 200 acres southwest of the city by J. O. Storey, president of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Railway Co., to J. P. Howe and associates of Seattle. This deal has been pending for several weeks and has been consummated only in the last two or three days. The deed will be filed for record either today or tomorrow.

Mr. Storey purchased this property about two years ago and placed a lot of blooded cattle there. At the time of the purchase he realized that the farm would soon be valuable for residential purposes and knew that he would realize a handsome profit on his investment by holding the property for a few years. He had faith in the future of Eugene when he made the purchase, and he has realized a good figure on his investment, although the consideration is not known and is not given in the deed, as Mr. Storey took in exchange some Seattle property owned by Mr. Howe.

Street Railway Assured.
The purchase of this property by these Seattle men more than anything else insures the building of the College Hill loop of the street railway line, for it was the stipulated agreement before the deal was closed that the P. E. & E. should extend the line through the tract this year.

Mr. Howe is a retired theatrical man, being formerly engaged in that business with John Cort, who is known all over the country as one of the foremost theatrical managers of the land. Mr. Howe and his associates have plenty of capital at their command and may purchase other property in and near Eugene if their present venture is successful, and there is no reason at all why it should not be.

Place It on Market.
It is understood that the new purchasers of the tract will plant that portion of it which lies on the side that fronts toward the city into small tracts, while the valley land will be divided into residence lots and the whole tract placed on the market at once. It is said that 15 or more expert salesmen will be brought here from Seattle and a whirlwind selling campaign will be made. That many automobiles will be brought from the Sound city by the purchasers and they will be used exclusively for the purpose of conveying prospective purchasers to and from the tract, it is stated on reliable authority.

This tract lies partly in a small valley over beyond College Hill and partly on a sloping hill. The upper portion of it overlooks the entire city and a magnificent view is obtained from front and divide it into small tracts. The land on the whole tract is said to be very rich and is well adapted to fruit growing and garden raising. It will make ideal suburban homes, with street car facilities, and it is probable that electric lights will be extended out there after a few houses are built and there is a demand for them.

Several real estate men have been working on this deal, most prominent among them being I. H. Bingham and E. J. Fraser.

CUT FELLOW PRISONER'S THROAT FROM EAR TO EAR

Saunders, a prisoner from Skagit county. Schwartz claims the attack followed his refusal to give his fellow prisoner a chew of tobacco, but the officers think the trouble was of long standing. Schwartz is in a precarious condition.

MARK TWAIN PASSES BEYOND THIS AFTERNOON

Famous Humorist's Long Literary Career Ended by Death

Redding, April 21.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) died here late today. During the day up to a short time before his death his condition appeared better than for several days past. He rested well last night and appeared to be stronger.

Samuel Langhorne Clemens, the American humorist, was born at Florida, Missouri, November 30, 1835. He was best known by his pseudonym of Mark Twain, which had been the pet name of Captain Isiah Sellers, who, previous to 1863, furnished river news to the New Orleans Picayune, and which was derived from the call of the leadman on the Mississippi river boats when he sounds two fathoms. He was educated in the village school in Hannibal, Missouri, and was apprenticed to a printer. After learning the trade, he journeyed from town to town until he reached New York. Afterward he went to New Orleans and became a pilot on the Mississippi river steamboats. In 1861 he went to Nevada as private secretary to his brother, who had been made secretary of the territory. He engaged in mining in Nevada, and in 1862 became the city editor of the Virginia City Enterprise. In 1865 he went to San Francisco, where he was engaged as a reporter on the Morning Call. After experimenting in gold mining, he resumed his work for the California Press, and visited the Hawaiian islands as a newspaper correspondent in 1866.

In 1872 he lectured in England, and a London publisher issued an unauthorized collection of his writings, in which were published some sketches which he did not write. Among his writings are "Roughing It," (1873); "Sketches Old and New," (1873); "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," (1876); "Punch, Brothers, Punch," (1878); "A Tramp Abroad," (1880); "The Stolen White Elephant," (1882); "The Prince and the Pauper," (1882); "Life on the Mississippi," (1883); "Huckleberry Finn, a Sequel to Tom Sawyer," (1885); "A Yankee at King Arthur's Court," (1889); "Pudd'nhead Wilson," (1895); and "Following the Equator," (1897). He also wrote, with Charles W. Warner, "The Glided Age," dramatized in 1879. In 1884 he founded the publishing house of Charles L. Webster & Co., which firm bought out General Grant's Memoirs. The firm failed in 1894, and to retrieve his fortune Mr. Clemens started out on a lecturing tour around the world and in 1895 achieved the novel distinction of being challenged to a duel by Max O'Rell, the French humorist. He turned to the serious side of literature and achieved a great success with his inimitable humor.

CANNON AGAIN ATTACKED BY REPUBLICANS

Insurgents Plan to Take Apportioning Power Out of His Hands

Washington, April 21.—A movement was launched today by the insurgents of the house to take away from the speaker the power to appoint house committees. Fowler, of New Jersey, one of the insurgents, asked the immediate consideration of a resolution providing for the selection of two committees, one composed of Republicans and the other of Democratic members, the duty of which will be to designate all members of house committees.

Immediately the house became the scene of confusion, the members expecting a repetition of the stirring scenes enacted several weeks ago, when the insurgents, combining with the Democrats, succeeded in removing the speaker from the powerful committee on rules.

Majority Leader Payne rose to the occasion and made a point of order against the Fowler resolution as not "privileged." Before the speaker could rule, Hardwick, of Georgia, made the point of no quorum, and the doors were closed and there was a call of the house. Members who had been absent at committee meetings were present and the resolution was presented and the speaker, and catching the fever of excitement, added to the confusion.

The speaker finally obtained a semblance of order, and announced 275 members present. Fowler was again recognized to speak on his resolution, and he announced that he did not wish to consider action on the resolution until May 1, but desired to have it referred to the committee on rules, and to have it come up before the house as a privileged matter only mentioned.

The speaker promptly decided the question in order and said he was waiting to hear arguments on the point, and the tension was relieved when Fowler said he would withdraw the resolution and "deposit it in the basket."

PEARL KELLER CONTINUES STORY OF HYDE'S GUILT

Kansas City, April 21.—The trial of Dr. Hyde for the alleged murder of Colonel and Christian Swopes, continued today with Miss Keller, the nurse, still on the stand. Her testimony was frequently interrupted by objections from the defense, but she was allowed to relate many circumstances and details of alleged wrongdoing on the part of Dr. Hyde.

Mrs. Emma Fields, aged 58 years, died at Roseburg yesterday as a result of burns received while lighting a gasoline stove on April 1. She was the wife of Alphas Fields, county bridge contractor, and was prominent in social circles. She had resided here 35 years. Besides a husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. C. Marks, and two sons, Fred and Charles, all of whom reside in Roseburg.
