Dr. Munson's Address.

Dr. J. F. Munson, resident pathologist of the Craig Colony for Epileptics at Sonyea, N. Y., made a careful analysis of the life lived by the average victim of epilepsy and urged that every state should make adequate provision for the treatment and humane care of this class of dependents.

"Experience shows and humanity and reason teach," said Dr. Munson, "that the epileptic should not be classified with other state charges. The epileptic is invariably the most difficult of all state charges to deal with."

The ideal institution for epileptics differs very much from ideal hospitals for the insane or the ideal home for the feeble-minded. It must be recognized that epilepsy is a relatively incurable disease. Farm colonies seem to be ideal for their care. Out-of-door labor is most favorable for the disease and the farm itself offers chances of profit from their work.

State Care of Imbeciles.

Attention was called by Dr. William N. Bulard of Boston, Mass., to the great public expense occasioned by the lack of proper care given to an immense number of girls who are just below the lower grades of normal children and yet who are not clearly imbecile.

According to Dr. Bullard, these girls as a rule become mothers of at least three children each. Most of these children are themselves feeble-minded and ultimately a charge on the state; the mothers lack a sense of responsibility for present acts or the realization of their effect on future events.

"The proper method of dealing with this class," said Dr. Bullard, "is to keep them in a custodial depart-

HALLEY'S COMET HAS LOST TAIL, SAY M'HUGH.

Explanation of Puzzling Condition Advanced by Professor

Chicago, May 21.—The theory that Halley's comet has lost its old tail, which is still floating in space in the eastern sky, and is now generating a new one, is advanced by Rev. Daniel McBurn, professor of astronomy at DePaul University today.

Seen in Mexico.

Cambridge, May 21.—Heavy clouds blocked all attempts of Harvard astronomers to view Halley's comet. A message from Tancubaya, Mexico, dated last night, reads: "Comet's tail visible today in eastern sky."

Christiania, Norway, May 21.—It will be a long time between the salutations of "good morning" and "good night" for the people of the extreme northern part of Norway. The long day begins today and will continue to July 22, making a day of over two months in duration. The longest day in this city is eighteen and a half hours, and the shortest five hours. The day which has commenced in Spitzbergen will be three and a half months in duration.

SHOT WIFE AND KILLED HIMSELF

San Francisco, May 21.—Foreing an entrance into her millinery store, Joseph Wagner, shot his wife, who is suing him for divorce, and then inflicted a fatal wound on himself. Mrs. Wagner will probably die.

Later—Neither Wagner, nor his wife will die.

MEMORIAL SERVICES IN U. S. SENATE

Washington, May 21.—The session of the senate today was devoted entirely to memorial services in honor of the late Representative Francis W. Cushman, of Washington, and Representative Davis A. De Armond, of Missouri. Senators Piles, Beveridge, Clapp, Carter, Burkett, Chamberlain, Burton, Hughes and Jones eulogized Cushman.

LONG DAY BEGINS IN FAR NORTH

Philadelphia, May 21.—Colors of all the leading colleges of New England and the East are in along the Schuylkill river course, where the American Henley, the eighth annual regatta of the American Rowing Association, will be rowed today. In addition to Yale, Harvard and Pennsylvania, Columbia has sent a crew to take part in the junior collegiate event. The races are to be the Henley distance of one mile, 550 yards, and all straightaway.

The program is much the same as in former years. The races will be first single sculls, Farragut cup; second single sculls; first double sculls, Schuylkill challenge cup; first scull-pole; first pair-oared shells; first four-oared shells, Puritan challenge cup; first eight-oared shell, Stewards' challenge cup; special interclub eight-oared shells; junior collegiate eight-oared shells, New England challenge cup; interscholastic eight-oared shells, Franklin challenge cup; college freshman eight-oared shells.

The stewards have dropped the octopede race because it failed to draw enough entries. In its place they have furnished a race for club crews. Heretofore the club oarsmen who do not start their training as early as do the collegians have protested that so many of the college crews enter the club events and with their advantage in training take most of the prizes. This year this particular event will be reserved for the club crews just as the junior collegiate race is reserved for the collegians.

WALTHAM WATCH CO. SUES MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Suits in equity have been commenced by the Waltham Watch company of Massachusetts, against Montgomery, Ward & Co., in the United States circuit court for the Northern District of Illinois and against Sears, Roebuck & Co., in the United States court for the Southern District of New York.

The object of these suits is to restrain the defendants from selling certain of the movements manufactured by the plaintiff below the prices fixed by the company.

It is alleged that these movements are manufactured under the protection of patents issued by the United States government; that the plaintiff is the owner of said patents, and has a lawful right to impose such conditions upon the sale of the product manufactured thereunder as it sees fit; and that among these conditions the company has in fact imposed certain terms of re-sale upon jobbers buying directly of the company or its agents and on all retailers purchasing from such jobbers.

The bill alleges that the defendants have been selling and advertising for sale these movements at less than the sum stipulated by the company as the price to be charged by retailers to the individual consumer, and the court is asked to have the defendants enjoined from continuing this practice. The plaintiff also asks that the defendants be compelled to bring into court and deliver to the plaintiffs all the movements now in their possession covered by the bill. A further prayer addressed to the court is that the defendants be enjoined from selling any watch movements manufactured by the plaintiff under the letters patent referred to.

The footbridge to the car line was completed Tuesday and now the distance has been considerably decreased. Work is moving right along on the main bridge, and in a very short time the work of constructing the large piers will be over way. All will surely welcome the completion of the line into Springfield.

MINORITY LEADER ATTACKS PAYNE'S TARIFF LAW

Champ Clark Delivers Key-note Speech for the Campaign

Washington, May 21.—Denouncing the Payne-Aldrich tariff law as a "transparent humbug," attacking the tariff views of its author, Representative Sereno Payne, republican of New York, and vigorously assailing President Taft, Representative Champ Clark, of Missouri, leader of the democratic minority, today delivered in the house what is regarded as the democratic keynote speech of the coming congressional campaign. Clark had prepared his address with great care and spoke at length, giving facts and figures in support of his contention that the tariff had not been honestly revised, and that the republican majority in congress had endeavored to trick the people.

Clark also paid his respects incidentally to the $250,000 item in the sundry civil appropriation bill for the creation of a tariff board.

BUTLER AMES ATTACK ON PAYNE

Republican House Leader Is Roundly Scored by Massachusetts Representative

Washington, May 20.—A sensation was sprung unexpectedly in the house late today by Butler Ames, a republican member from Massachusetts, when he obtained the floor for five minutes and proceeded to read a series of letters that had passed between himself and Sereno E. Payne, of New York, chairman of the ways and means committee and republican floor leader. He scored Payne in strong language.

The letter concerned a resolution introduced in the house March 31 by Ames, advocating that negotiations be opened with Canada to establish closer commercial relations with that country.

Wishes of 77 Ignored.

Ames' resolution was referred to the ways and means committee and the author charged that Payne refused to allow the committee to consider it, although he (Ames) presented a petition favoring it, signed by 77 republican members.

"On three separate days I approached your august person and asked verbally and in writing for a hearing by your committee on my resolution," said Ames in a letter. "To my first request you indignantly insisted that as far as you could find out, no one wanted the resolution and it was not good political sense."

"Believing your lack of courtesy was excusable and you were unable to understand or appreciate that many republican members of the house not only wanted the resolution adopted, but who, not yet having lost all touch with present desires of the party and the country generally, did believe the resolution to be good political sense, I went to the unusual labor of circulating a petition which I enclosed."

Payne Doubts Taft's Good Faith.

Continuing, the letter said the petition was signed by 77 republican members, but Payne had given it no consideration. It was recounted that its author had seen a letter dictated in the presence by President Taft and addressed to Payne favoring the resolution. It recited Ames had twice spoken to Payne about the president's letter and Payne told him that "his (Payne's) relations with the president were such that Payne knew when he wrote such a letter he did not want the resolution."

OREGON BUNCOED OUT OF GAME BY JONES

O. O. C. Given Decision in 10-Inning Morning Game by a Score of 2 to 0

Oregon was simply buncoed out of the game with O. A. C. at Midway Park this forenoon by Fielder Jones, O. A. C.'s coach, out-bluffing the umpire and the Oregon team, and a run that was well earned by Oregon was not allowed. In the tenth inning O. A. C. put two men over the plate and the agony was over.

This was the first extra-inning game and probably the most exciting ever seen at Midway Park. The game was scoreless for nine long innings. In the tenth an error let Reiben and Keens home and the crowd went home with a bad taste in its mouth. Oregon had the game won twice, but by allowing Jones to bluff them out and by a home-head play or two, they let the farmers take what should have been theirs.

The play that was disputed was

FIELDER A. JONES.

The famous baseball player, who is in Eugene today as coach of the O. A. C. team.

about as follows: Taylor and Jackson were out, but Kay the first man to bat, had reached third. Henkle was next at bat. He hit toward first. O. A. C.'s first baseman fielded the ball to the pitcher, who had covered first, but the latter dropped it and it was alleged that Henkle kicked the ball out of the way. In the meantime Kay had crossed the plate, but Fielder Jones at once protested and claimed that Henkle was out for kicking the ball.

There was a heated argument for fully 15 minutes between Kelly, of Oregon, and Jones and Angell, of Corvallis, and the umpire. For a time it seemed as though there would be blows, and the umpire separated the two coaches. Umpire Jewett at first remained firm in his decision and said he would declare the game forfeited to Oregon, but rather than spoil the game Oregon finally agreed to let Jones' kick stand and the run was not allowed.

Corvallis' pitcher struck out seven men, but Henkle fanned thirteen. Corvallis only got 3 hits off Henkle, while Oregon secured six. It was Oregon's game throughout, and the farmers were outplayed everywhere, but won baseball luck.

After nine scoreless innings, and after Henkle had struck out three men straight in the ninth the unex-

GOOD ORCHARDS AND GOOD ROADS

S. D. Calkins, who returned last night from a visit with his son, Circuit Judge Calkins, at Ashland, reports wonderful activity in the Rogue River valley, centering about Medford. Fruit and agricultural lands are very high, and the orchards are kept in the highest possible state of cultivation.

Mr. Calkins states that they are making a great deal of rock road throughout Jackson county, but it promises to be of a permanent character and is as smooth and hard as a city pavement.
