The July Clearance Sale

WITH THE FULL MEANING OF THE TERM
The sale is positive; reductions genuine. The summer goods must go and at a time when you can enjoy a season's wear, not when the season is over. The reductions are from every department. Each one contributes its share in making this July sale one of unusual interest.

ONLY A FEW SUITS OF WOOL LEFT

These you can buy at a price that will seem insignificant compared with their value. We are crowding them out, for no suits will be carried over till next season if prices have anything to do with selling them. You can get a finely tailored suit with satin-lined jacket now for $11.25

Or a late model suit similar to above, main difference in materials, in a wide range of colors, such as mustard, cream with black hair-line stripe, medium blue, old rose, wisteria; any one at $12.50

YOU CAN GET A WASH SUIT AND ENJOY A FULL SEASON'S WEAR

They consist of linen, poplin and imitation of linen; many colors; worth from $6.00 to $18.00; take your choice at $3 UP TO $9.

WEARINESS

I worked with pick and shovel, in strenuous seasons of yore; I lived in a tumble-down hovel, and slept in some straw on the floor; and then in the morn, when I'd waken, and brush all the chaff from my head, I'd throw in an armful of bacon, potatoes and onions and bread; my hunger was wondrous and baleful, the strangest of wonderful things; I poured down the grub by the pailful, and chewed up the paper and strings. I labored with bricks and with mortar, I tunneled big holes in the soil; my wage was a bone and a quarter for every day's session of toil. I slept like a span of bay horses, I ate like a mule among hay; alas! but I know what remorse is—I threw all my blessings away! I took to this graft, writing verses, and doubtless I'll write till I'm dead; the boodle comes to me in purses, and bundles as big as your head. But now I must stick to a diet of sawdust and Battle Creek rice; a porterhouse steak? If I'd try it you'd see your uncle on ice. My works are all rusty and shaken, they balk at desirable things. Alas for the onions and bacon! Alas for the paper and strings.

MISQUOTING THE ELECTION LAW

The Medford Mail-Tribune, supposedly Democratic, is one of the Oregon papers which freely admits that either Republican or Democratic assemblies are admissible under the primary law, and quotes the law to prove its contention. The Mail-Tribune says:

There is no reason why Republicans and all other parties should not hold assemblies, if held within the provisions entailed by the law. In fact, provision is made in the law itself for assemblies, as follows: "Section 2791—Any political party, and any assembly of electors as hereinafter defined, and also individual electors to the number hereinafter specified, by causing a certificate of nomination to be duly prepared and filed, in the manner hereinafter provided, may nominate one candidate for each public office to be filled at the election, whose name shall be furnished as hereinafter provided. A political party, within the meaning of this act, is an affiliation of electors representing a political party which, at the general election next preceding, polled at least five per cent of the entire vote cast in the state, county, precinct or other electoral district for which nomination is made for representation in congress, or which shall present a petition with the signatures of at least five per cent of the electors of that district, stating their intention to form a new political party, giving the designation thereof. An assembly of electors, within the meaning of this act, is an organized body of not less than one which the nomination is made."

The Register has repeatedly called attention to the fact that the primary law anticipates the holding of assemblies. We have also quoted the corrupt practices act, which likewise provides for governing caucuses-conventions or assemblies. When the whole matter is sifted to the bottom there is nothing in this opposition to assemblies beyond the fear of Democrats that they will tend to unite the Republican party, a thing to be prevented if Democratic leaders can throw sufficient scare into weak-kneed Republicans to keep them out of such meetings, or to frighten the Republican aspirants for office into keeping away from Republican assemblies.—Register.

This is an absolute mis-statement of the direct primary law, which specifically repeals Section 2791 of the code. The primary law as issued in pamphlet form by the secretary of state to be voted upon by the people under the initiative law, and adopted by them in 1904, reads as follows, on page 16:

"EVERY SUCH POLITICAL PARTY SHALL NOMINATE ALL ITS CANDIDATES FOR PUBLIC OFFICE UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THIS LAW, AND NOT IN ANY OTHER MANNER, AND IT SHALL NOT BE ALLOWED TO NOMINATE ANY CANDIDATE IN THE MANNER PROVIDED BY SECTION 2791 OF BALLINGER AND COTTON'S CODE AND STATUTES OF OREGON."

Now what do you think of that! Reviving a repealed and obsolete section of the election law with plain intent to deceive, or exhibiting an ignorance that is too glaring to be condoned or explained! The primary law, it will be noted, specifically repeals the section which the morning paper and other "assembly" organs are trying to palm off on the reading public as a part of the state statutes governing election matters.

This clumsy attempt to deceive intelligent voters is on a par with a majority of the arguments, so-called, advanced by those who are engaged in a desperate effort to restore the old-time machine primary and convention, under the new and more alluring name of "assembly."

GROWTH OF DAIRYING INDUSTRY

According to the last year book of the Department of Agriculture there are 21,720,000 milch cows in the United States, and these are worth $702,945,000. The magnitude of the industry can perhaps be best understood when it is considered that these cows produce yearly about $1,000,000,000 worth of dairy products.

There is no other branch of diversified agriculture so important to the progress of a community. The fertility of the soil can best be maintained by the liberal use of barnyard manure and the dairy herd not only makes this possible, but dairying is also more remunerative than other branches of farming when properly carried on.

Dairying has made wonderful progress since the advent of the modern creamery and the consumer of butter has not only been benefited by being furnished a more wholesome and palatable article of food, but the wife in the farm home has been relieved of the drudgery incident to making butter on the farm. Where formerly the cream was ripened and churned into butter under conditions not conducive to fine quality in the finished product and in the majority of cases by unskilled hands, now the most of the milk or cream is delivered to a modern creamery, where conditions are suited to the purpose of making butter, and the result has been a wonderful improvement in the quality of our dairy products. As the quality has improved consumption has increased and the progress of dairying has been remarkable during the past decade.

The perpetuity of the country's greatness depends upon increasing the production of farm products from year to year, a result which not only furnishes our people with food but maintains the prosperity of our farming communities. Increase in production can only come through improved methods of agriculture and soil improvement. When it is considered that the dairy cow is the foundation for soil improvement and farming prosperity, her importance is best understood, and interest in her should not be confined to her owner. She is an important factor in the development and prosperity of our country.

Dr. Cook has lost prestige to such an extent that any report of his re-discovery is not deemed worthy of a scare head in the newspapers.
