

COLLEGE BULL DOG IN MAD CHASE AFTER JACK RABBIT

Prokus Succeeds in Inveigling
Bunny Into Tennis Net
and Finishes Him

Prokus, Louis Pinkham's bull dog, the mascot of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, whose many scars bear evidence of his championship over the other college dogs, and who a short time ago demonstrated his prowess and gained notoriety by starting a fight inside a college building, again threw the Oregon campus into confusion and excitement by playing hide and seek among the staid old college buildings with a long-legged, long-eared, bob-tailed jack rabbit that had innocently strayed from the hills back of the college and wandered on to the college green. Like the lure of the city to the country youth, this jack scarcely realized the dangers that awaited him here.

Prokus had just been excluded from the library building for the third time and was longing for excitement. Suddenly it happened. Prok gazed intently. Was it true? Yes, there it was, a real live jack rabbit, leisurely crossing the campus in a long swinging lope, flopping its ears in the most unconcerned manner. Prok leaped, and with a string of piercing yelps trailing behind as the smoke from an automobile, he flew after the rabbit, his short, determined legs pounding to the rear six times to one stride of the panting stricken bunny. Around the buildings they swung, the rabbit with its ears low, Prok yelping madly. For several minutes which seemed hours they raced, the leader seemingly convinced with the opinion that the green campus was the clearest place for his speed. The tennis courts proved the jack's undoing, and racing madly between the screens at either side the dog won his prize. For a minute the air was full of gray fur, that was all. Then Prok, leisurely wandered back to the library steps with the same expression that he shows after he has cleaned out the bull mascot of some other fraternity.

NEWS NOTES FROM

JUNCTION CITY

Born—October 29, 1910, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trippe, a daughter.

Mrs. T. C. Thornton went to Dunsmuir, California, last week and returned with Mrs. Nellie Lee's baby. Scarlet fever is quite prevalent at that place and is practically under quarantine, and it is thought best to remove the baby from danger.

Miss Lottie Washburne has returned home after spending several months in southern California for the benefit of her health. She reports her stay in that altitude quite beneficial.

Dal. Lingo has sold twenty more acres of the Hadley place to Graham & Oter of this place, consideration, $100 per acre. They will commence the erection of new buildings as soon as possible.

W. H. Wolverton and family arrived here this week from Grand Junction, Colorado, and have secured rooms in Dr. Hicks' building formerly occupied by Cook's confectionery. Mr. Wolverton has opened a photo studio and is now ready for business. He has had twenty years experience in the work and will therefore guarantee the product of his studio.

J. W. Harringer, who moved the city hall and jail, has secured a contract for raising the Mrs. Archart building occupied by the moving picture show, and raising Keck's building which is occupied by Leppert & Pope, 7 1/2 inches west, and raising 16 inches to conform to the street grade. He has also the contract for moving James Howard's barn from its present location on the corner to the alley northwest of his residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Osburn, of the Osburn Hotel, Eugene, accompanied by Mrs. Osburn's sister, Mrs. Lundquist, of Portland, made this office a social call one day last week. Mrs. Osburn in her young days was a type setter and she called for a "stick" and "rule." They were furnished her and she went to the case and set up the following: "The happy days, the good old days of auld lang syne." Their visit was greatly enjoyed.

Owing to the non-arrival of cement, work on the new walks is at a standstill. Walks were put down the length of Mrs. E. U. Lee's half block, and also on both sides of the property of Mrs. Maggie Johnston on the corner of Seventh and Greenwood. Also on the south side of Fred Nelson's premises and on the south side of the Methodist church property. A crew is at work putting down a cement walk around the school house block. Other walks are in course of preparation and will be put down at once, weather permitting. Teams have been busy, however, hauling wash gravel from the river and the contractors hope to get in enough to run during the winter and spring.—Times.

To The Voters Of Lane County

Two Years Ago Eugene Asked The Passage of a Law
Increasing The Annual Appropriation For The Support Of The University

YOU GOT IT HOW?

Is there any voter in Lane county who can refute these FACTS?

FIRST---That Eugene implored Portland's aid in passing that measure.

SECOND---That the measure carried by a majority of 3580.

THIRD---That Portland (including Multnomah county) heard the call and responded by giving the measure 15,453 votes for and only 5973 against.

FOURTH---That Portland's majority of 10,000 GAVE Eugene the measure she sought, otherwise it would have been DEFEATED.

Portland in return asks fair play and a little reciprocity.

Portland, through the members of the Greater Oregon Home Rule Association, asks Eugene and Lane County to vote Tuesday against Prohibition---a law which means for Portland, if in no other city---lawlessness, deceit, perjury, a congestion of court proceedings, trouble and endless expense---a law that no one with three whittles of common sense believes can be enforced in a city of 250,000 people.

YOU asked us for aid and GOT IT.

WE ask aid of YOU. WILL WE GET IT?

Will Portland be given Home Rule and the right to settle her internal affairs on a common sense basis, or must she be saddled with a worse than useless law---a breeder of everything but decency and respect for the statutes?

Eugene and Lane county are asked to vote

NO against Prohibition and its vicious Search Law. And vote

YES for the Home Rule Bill (328), which means a continuation of local option, where wanted, besides giving to each city the right within its limits to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic under the present local option and criminal laws of the state.

A fair, just and equitable law for every city in Oregon where the liquor traffic has to be met face to face.

REMEMBER THE NUMBERS

328 X Yes--For Home Rule

343 X No--Against Prohibition

345 X No--Against Prohibition Search Law
