NITA'S NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

Madame La Mode on the Rampage Again--The Bag's the Thing

Talk about the eccentricities of genius, they cannot even remotely touch the flights of fashion fancy, when once Madame La Mode gets on the rampage. Of course those who make the fashions, and incidentally money as well thereby, are bound for their pocket's sake to evolve something distinctly different with each recurrent season. They intend that by no possible chance shall money be saved by wearing last year's clothing.

In fact in many cases the bag is bought first and the gown built up from it so to speak. The woman who walks out in a New York thoroughfare without a silk, leather, velvet, jetted or tapestry bag looks almost as conspicuous as though she were to appear minus her bodice. So absolutely dominating is this fad, that I thought it well worth my time to note some of the leading styles offered by my best shops. In one exclusive store, there was a tapestry bag of the same size and shape as that carried by the hunter. It had a leather fringe, and while undoubtedly striking was about as beautiful and equally commodious as the old time carpet bag. Velvet bags with long cords, so that the bag swings near the skirt hem, instead of being carried near the waist line as formerly, are in high favor, with metallic embroidery or jetted fringe for ornamentation.

"It will come in good sometime." The "sometime" is the present, and the bag fad the saving opportunity. No pattern is required, and the most amateur needle-woman can draw the silk or velvet into proper bag shape, and add lining, cords, or trimming ad libitum, with ease. If perchance you have the metal frame of one of the erstwhile popular leather shopping bags, this can be transferred to the greater elegance of silken foundation. There is no fixed rule in the matter of shape, and individual taste can be displayed in color and design without fear of offending Dame Fashion. That these bags are more faddishly ornamental than useful, must be conceded, but nevertheless they belong to the very few dress accessories that are within reach of all, and which must certainly give tone to the simplest gown.

Don't forget the Christmas hunt--no friend will object to such a dainty gift and even duplicates will be welcome.

KITCHEN RECIPES.

- Nut Bread. 1 cake compressed yeast; 1-4 cup luke-warm water; 2 cups scalded and cooled milk; 2 tablespoons shortening; 4 tablespoons molasses; 1 cup or more nut meats; 1 cup entire wheat flour; use white flour as needed for dough. Knead, let rise until double in size. Shape into loaf without adding more flour and when rather more than double in size bake for forty or fifty minutes in hot oven. Add the nut meats to liquid after chopping them. This makes two loaves.
- Clam or Oyster Cocktail. 8 tablespoons catsup; 4 tablespoons horseradish; 4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce; 1-4 spoon tomato sauce; 1-2 teaspoon salt; Juice 3 lemons. Mix and keep very cold; keep claims and oysters on ice and add to dressing just before serving.
- Salmon Loaf. Remove the skin, bone and oil from a can of salmon and pick up fine with a silver fork. Beat three eggs very light and add to them two thirds of a cup of milk. Grease a small baking dish and fill with alternate layers of the egg and milk and fish with bits of butter between layers. Use salmon for the top layer. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake on half hour. Serve at once.
- Baker Bean Soup. 1 cup baked beans; 1 cup tomatoes
