SPRINGFIELD CITY POLITICAL POT BOILING HARD

Fusion Ticket Nominated for Harmony But Socialists
Will Have Some Say

Guard Special Service.

Springfield, Oct. 21.—The dove of peace which seemed likely to hover over the political field in Springfield may be shooed away and a regular political campaign inaugurated. The contest, however, will not be along the line of home rule versus prohibition, which issue will be fought out on its merits without reference to the personnel of the candidates. Representatives of the regular organization of the "drys" met with similar representatives of the "wets" yesterday and formally agreed upon a plan to eliminate personal feeling from the prohibition fight along the lines laid down in The Guard two days ago. The committee formally agreed upon the following ticket:

For mayor, Welby Stevens; for councilmen, Arlie J. Henderson, G. W. Carson and Wilbur Lepley; for treasurer, E. E. Morrison; for recorder and city clerk, John C. Mulen.

Provisions were made for the circulation of petitions for the nomination of the above gentlemen with the understanding that the prohibition issue would be eliminated from the campaign and that each citizen would vote as he pleased on that issue. So far as that particular issue is concerned, harmony seems to have been secured.

But "one swallow doesn't make a summer," nor does one issue however important in itself make up all that there is to a campaign, so that the elimination of prohibition as a factor in the city election does not appear to have secured the unanimity which it was hoped that it would.

In the first place the socialists felt that furthering the cause of the cooperative commonwealth and the recognition of the materialistic theory of history was of more importance than any temporary issue, or elimination of issue, so they went right ahead and nominated Thomas Sikes for mayor and Homer J. Lankins, Joe Morton, Curtis Hayden and Henry Vollstedt for councilmen. The socialists are looking to the future and are determined to keep up an organization. But there were other complications. Reference to the others, a gentleman sets them forth as follows to the representatives of the

Guard:

The situation at Springfield is that a fight is on. War paint is at a premium. The factions are trying to get together but so far have failed. The kick seems to be on Rivett, who may yet have to come out as an independent. One side lays the soft beer at his door, while another claims him to be the only man who never had backbones stiff enough to try to close up the sporting houses. Rivett's stand (as defined by himself), is "If the town goes dry, it means dry with a big D—no soft beer. If wet, the saloon to be regulated as well as it is possible to do so." Mr. Rivett says that he likes the home rule law because it gives people the right to say what they want and that Ireland has been fighting for the very same thing for four hundred years, why not Oregon have it? He says that the picture shows are advocating the saloon because as a matter of fact the full-fledged saloon would not be allowed to run on Sunday and this would throw all the would-be Sunday saloon dimes into the Sunday picture shows. "Consistency, Oh, ec," says Mr. Rivett. "The socialists, who claim but 40 40 votes, but who are said by some uncharitable folks to have about nine, have a good ticket in the field composed of well meaning men, who if elected, promise to give an administration on Bible terms. The end is not yet."

JOLLIFICATION NEXT

SATURDAY NIGHT

Guard Special Service.

Springfield, Oct. 21.—The Springfield Commercial club met last night and held a most enthusiastic meeting. The matter of the jollification in honor of the finishing of paving was taken up, and it was unanimously voted to hold the celebration, next Saturday night, October 28. There will be a grand masquerade street parade, followed by a masquerade dance on the paving. The parade will be an elaborate affair and will be led by a band. This matter has been under discussion for the past week. It was thought by the superintendents of the Universal Construction company, Messrs. Hoskinson and Burdette, that the paving will be finished this week and that it would be possible to have the celebration tonight. However, as explained by one of the company's directors, F. W. Waters, to the Guard representative this morning, the company was unable to secure the delivery of cement with the promptness which has been anticipated and the paving will not be completed until late next week.

The committee on the proposed new street lights in lieu of the poles on Main street reported that the required signatures had been obtained and that the way is now open to begin work in accordance with the plans. The ornamental poles will be erected as soon as the Oregon Power company can get them.

largest real estate deals ever made in Springfield, was consummated this week when Clark & Washburne sold a large tract, known as Douglas Gardens, consisting of 410 acres of fine farming land adjoining the city on the east, to F. E. McCroskey, of Washington, and H. W. Cousins, of San Francisco. The consideration is not given out. Clark & Washburne paid over $40,000 for the tract a year ago, and it is known that they made a good profit on the deal.

Clark & Washburne, after they purchased the tract, subdivided it into five and ten-acre tracts and at least twenty houses have been built on it since. The Southern Pacific Natron extension, which will in time become the main line between Oregon and California, passed through the center of the tract and a passenger and freight depot is promised. The new owners say they will irrigate the entire tract by a system of pumps. The plant they intend to install will have a capacity to irrigate from 800 to 1,000 acres of land, which means that they intend to add to their holdings in that vicinity.
