

URGES HONOR GUARD TO KEEP ORGANIZED

State Manager Says Work Just Beginning and Girls Can Help More Than Ever.

When Miss Lucile Danforth, state manager of the national girls' honor guard, said that it had always been a dream of hers to come to Eugene and talk to the 356 members in this city, one of the 15 girls assembled for her talk Tuesday night says they felt rather ashamed.

Miss Danforth's main theme was that the work of the honor guard is not over, it has just commenced in earnest, and that the girls must keep organized, they must revive their enthusiasm and work with all their might. Helping the Red Cross movement, particularly in the surgical dressings department, would be a fine enterprise, Miss Danforth suggested. The girls should consider their chance to work a privilege rather than a sacrifice.

The girls who heard the state manager's talk were very enthusiastic over the suggestions, and will endeavor to build up again the big organization which this city had a short time ago. Even before Miss Danforth's visit, a number of the local girls had decided to meet every Thursday night at the Red Cross headquarters to do surgical dressings. Now, more than ever, it is urged that every honor guard turn out at 7 each Thursday night to swell the class at headquarters.

Eugene is not alone in her losing interest and becoming disorganized, as Miss Danforth is making this tour all along the coast with the same message as she brought the girls here.

Austrian resistance was broken. At Sera Mill, where the enemy had a brief lodgment, he was forced back until he was driven to the brink of the river and then into the water. The Austrians were then overpowered and killed or captured.

A column 18 miles farther down the river told of a similar fight when the Austrians attempted to cross in boats from their positions near Calvechia. "Our men are absolutely determined," he said. "Their determination to hold the river line is based on experience. You should have seen them yesterday when the Austrians tried to cross in boats right there," he added, pointing to the stretch where the river widens. "Our men remained silent while they saw the boats loading and going to mid-stream. Then they opened with machine guns and rifles. The boats and men were torn to pieces before they got another 20 feet. Not a man was left alive and all the boats sank. No, you may depend upon it, they will never pass."

The appearance of the men fully confirmed the colonel's estimate of their determination. They looked to be in perfect condition with that fine calm and confidence which comes from high morale and sureness.

The officer gave the correspondent an opportunity to go along the defenses at this point, which are highly important as a part of the works encircling Venice. It was not a pleasant experience as shells were tearing the air and there was a steady rattle from the sharpshooters. Immediately along the west bank of the river ran an earthen breastwork. It was a terrific tangle for the enemy to face if he ever got across.

From a loophole the Piave could be seen spreading out below with the Austrian lines on the eastern bank. The flash of the enemy's rifles came from windows of farm houses and from the low bushes along the shore and the sound of their bullets showed they were striking very near.

Passing through Mestre, three miles from Venice, a heavy rumble of bombardment was heard from the fleet and the Venice coast batteries. Deep detonations could be distinguished about every five seconds, and then the salvo of many guns, sounding like a broadside.

Further on the correspondent passed one of the Royal Palaces overlooking the Brenta Canal, which here is as wide as the Thames, with a stately high bank. The king was not there, being at headquarters, whence he makes daily visits to the front, moving about quietly and modestly.

BRITISH MONITOR DESTROYED

Berlin, Nov. 21, via Amsterdam to London.—An official statement by the admiralty today says: "A German submarine under command of Lieutenant Wendlandt, destroyed a British monitor and a destroyer off the Syrian coast on Nov. 11."

The British admiralty on Nov. 14 announced the sinking of a British destroyer and a small monitor by an enemy submarine while the British craft were co-operating with the British army in Palestine. Thirty-three men were reported missing from the two vessels.

SPOKANE HAS STRIKE

(By The Associated Press) Spokane, Wash., Nov. 21.—All but one telephone operator reported at the main exchange of the Home Telephone and Telegraph company here early today, according to the company officials. The newly organized operators' union after midnight voted to strike to enforce the demands for recognition and higher wages. A committee from the union picketed the main exchange.

TELEPHONE STRIKE SITUATION IS SAME

District Manager Van Houtte Reports All Operators at Work in Eugene.

There is no change in the telephone strike situation in Eugene, according to C. P. Van Houtte, district superintendent for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, with headquarters in this city.

The full crew of operators is at work, says Mr. Van Houtte and the company has plenty of men to look after its line work and keep things moving. He believes that the federal mediation will be successful and that all questions at issue will be settled by them in the near future.

The linemen who walked out Monday night are still out.

of tanks moved forward in advance of the infantry and broke through successive belts of German wire which were of great depth and strength.

"Following through the gaps made by the tanks, English, Scottish and Irish regiments swept over the enemy's outposts and stormed the first defensive system of the Hindenburg line on the whole front.

"Our infantry and tanks then swept on immediately with the program and captured the second German system of defense more than a mile beyond. This latter is known as the Hindenburg support line.

"In the course of this advance, East County troops took the hamlet of Bonavis and Lateau Wood after stiff fighting. "English rifle regiments and light infantry captured La Vacquerie and the formidable defenses on the spur known as a Welsh ridge. Other English county troops stormed the village of Ribecourt and fought their way through Couilleux Wood.

"Highland territorial battalions crossed the Grand Ravine and entered Fleinquieres, where fierce fighting took place. The West Riding territorials captured Havrincourt and the German trench systems north of the village, while the Ulster battalions, covering the latter's left flank, moved northwards up the west bank of the Canal du Nord.

"Later in the morning our advance was continued and rapid progress was made at all points. English, Scottish, Irish and Welsh battalions secured the crossings on the canal at Masnieres and captured Marcoing and Neuf Wood.

"The West Riding troops, who had taken Havrincourt made remarkable progress east of the Canal du Nord, storming the villages of Graincourt and Anoux, and with the Ulster troops operating to the west of the canal, carried the whole German line northward to the Bapaume-Cambrai road.

"West Lancashire territorials broke into the enemy's positions east of Epehy and Irish troops have captured important sections of the Hindenburg line between Balcourt and Fontaine Les Crasailles.

"The number of prisoners, guns and material captured can not yet be estimated.

"The spell of fine, dull weather which favored our preparations for our attacks broke early yesterday, a heavy rain fell during the night and the weather is now stormy."

From St. Quentin to the Scarpe is thirty-two miles. The British drive covers a part of the field of last year's offensive on the Somme and the section of the Arras battle front south of Arras. The British center in this thrust is nearly opposite Cambrai, the important German base and railway center, from which the British line on the Bapaume-Cambrai road was about nine miles distant, as it had stood for several months past. The main force of the push just launched is apparently aimed at Cambrai, along this road. What is known as the Hindenburg line was established by the German command last spring when the famous "strategic retreat" on the Somme front was carried out. It was a supposedly impregnable barrier.

The British and French, however, showed in the Arras battle last spring and in the French drive on the Aisne front, that the line was by no means a bar to their progress and serious inroads were made upon it, in attacks on both these fronts. No definite break, however, sufficient to permit the penetration of a large force which could debouch for large field operations had ever been effected.

The British movement in its early phases gives the appearance of being the most ambitious that has been undertaken by them on the western front since the creation of their new armies gave them the power to strike effective blows. The attack came without warning, the only preliminary symptoms being a series of somewhat elaborate trench raids. Even the rather extensive operations in this sector reported last night by the British war office, which the German staff announced it had taken measures to meet, gave hardly a hint that a push in any such force or over such a wide extent of front was in prospect.

There has been little speculation over

South American Rulers Who Broke With Germany

the possibility of a British attack in force on the western front this fall in any area other than that of Flanders, where the main British effort for several months past has been expended. Even here the intensity of the season and the difficult nature of the ground at this time of year, particularly seemed to give little basis for expectation of anything more than local strokes.

It has been apparent, however, that German attention was largely centered on the Italian front, where the military move in force intended to crush Italy is now in full swing. Admittedly numbers of German troops had been sent to the Italian front, but the assumption has been that these had been largely drawn from the Russian front, where the collapse of the Russian military machine had made it unnecessary for the Germans to maintain much more than trench garrisons. It is considered possible, however, that the British secret service had knowledge of a weakening of the German front in the west by the withdrawal of highly trained, experienced troops to give backbone to the push in northern Italy, or opportunity thus being afforded to catch the Germans unawares and hit them a crushing blow while their strategic reserve in the Franco-Belgian war area was depleted.

CHECK BRITISH ATTACK

Berlin, Nov. 21, via London.—German reserves checked the British in the rear positions after ground had been gained by the attackers, says today's official communication. The loss is announced of Marcoing, Graincourt and portions of the permanently established works.

Between Arras and St. Quentin, the German statement says, a strong artillery battle strengthens the English attack. The villages in the fighting zone, among them Graincourt and Marcoing, remained in the possession of the British.

Preparing for a Harvest

As the oats in her hat nodded and trembled they persistently tickled the ear of the man seated next to her. He stood it in silence for some time, then he ostentatiously took a huge pocket-knife out of his pocket and began to sharpen it on the sole of his boot.

"Whatever are you s-going to d-d-do?" cried the girl.

"Oh, don't you worry, Miss!" said the man, testing the edge of the blade on his thumb. "But the next time as them oats gets in my ear there's going to be a harvest."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

FRENCH NOW PIN FAITH IN AMERICAN AID, SAYS GERMAN

Amsterdam, Nov. 21.—Theodor Wolff, in the Berliner Tageblatt, concludes a long article on France's reluctance in America by saying: "Inasmuch as France probably will be unable to tap fresh sources, Clemenceau too must pin his faith on America's aid. If hope on America did not exist, then not only would there have been long since outbreaks of moral crisis in all the entente countries, but as unmistakable readiness in the reception of peace would prevail. "It is now shown how foolish were the German arguments that America's entry into the war was immaterial and would not prolong the war."

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will net fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.
