THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put On Firm, Healthy Flesh and To Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of healthy and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

ARE YOU RAISING PIGS? IF NOT, WHY NOT? THERE'S MONEY IN THEM TODAY

The lowly pig has come into his own. The juicy pork chop, the savory sausage and the succulent ham-bone are high priced luxuries on today's bill-of-fare. The time when the average family laid in a porker as part of the winter's supply, paying from 5 cents to 6 1/2 cents per pound for the carcass, has long gone by. Today hogs are fetching 10 cents and over, per pound on the hoof and the supply is wholly inadequate to the demand. This accounts for current prices of 45 cents to 50 cents for chops and 50 cents for hams.

Mr. Farmer is not blind to this opportunity to increase his income. Everywhere he is giving more attention to the breeding of hogs. This is particularly true in Canada's Western Provinces where favorable climatic conditions reduce disease losses to the minimum. The fertility of the prairie's virgin soil makes possible the record-breaking yields of grain that Canadian farmers have been shipping to the hungry millions of Europe and is turned to account in the raising of hogs. The sort of foods that make for good pork grow there in abundance, even on the cheap lands, and hogs can be raised there at less expense than elsewhere.

The principal hog foods of Western Canada are alfalfa, oats, barley and wheat. Alfalfa, the king of hog feeders, is grown successfully throughout the west, especially in the irrigated areas of Southern Alberta. Oats and barley yield heavy crops and make pork and bacon of the finest flavor, the sort that commands the highest prices. For growing here there is no food superior to Western Canadian oats which weigh up to 62 pounds per bushel and contain a large amount of meat and comparatively small amount of hull.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. which makes it possible for the farmer to get his hogs to market in the quickest and best way, helps him further by maintaining demonstration farms where crop experiments, breeding and food tests are carried on for the benefit of the farmers.

The raising of hogs has meant big money for Canadian farmers the past year. In the Province of Alberta alone, the live stock estimate of the Department of Agriculture for 1917 gave the number of hogs as 730,237 with a valuation of $10,953,655. It is confidently predicted that the 1918 record will go far beyond these figures. The market price for hogs in the Calgary market for the week of February 21-28, 1918 averaged $19.79 per hundred-weight. Such returns are no longer to be put on flesh.
