more than a quarter of a mile near Porte farm, between Montdidier and the Oise, the war office announced today. Prisoners were taken in raids north of the Avre, between the Oise and the Marne, in the Champagne region.

"Between Montdidier and the Oise, French posts having 500 meters in the region of Porte farm (11 miles northwest of Compiègne and 18 miles southwest of Montdidier)" the communique said.

"North of the Avre, between the Oise and the Marne, and in the Champagne, we took prisoners in raids."

On the Picardy front the French advanced a mile and a quarter on a front of more than three miles, yesterday afternoon, charging the village of Castel and several strong enemy positions.

The advance was made between Castel and Mally-Raineval, and gave the French possession of the heights dominating the Avre river.

The French attack on the Picardy front was made three miles north of Ainvil, which is reported to be the northern extremity of the American Cantigny sector. Other Americans were reported several weeks ago to be brigaded with the French along the Lucez river, between Hangard-En-Santerre and Hailes. The latter town is about a mile northwest of Castel.

Lost We Forget to Do Our Part.

"They say, who have come back from Over There, that at night the troubled earth between the lines is carpeted with pain. They say that Death rides whistling in every wind, and that the very mists are charged with awful torment."

"In this renaissance of our country's valor, we who will edge the wedge of her assault, make calm acceptance of its hazards. For us, the steel-swept trench, the stifening cold—weariness, hardship, worse. For you, for whom we go, you millions safe at home—what for you?"

"We shall need food. We shall need care. We shall need clothes for our bodies and weapons for our hands. We shall need terribly and without failure supplies and equipment in a stream that is constant and never-ending. From you, who are our resource and reliance, who are the heart and hope of that humanity for which we smile and strive, must come these things."

Where Tar and Doughboy Meet.

This is a scene in the library of "Unit No. 5," a home for soldiers and sailors in New York City, managed by the New York War Camp Community Service. This organization operating under the general direction of Raymond D. Foodick, commissioner of training camp activities for the army and navy, had a large hotel in New York City, and made room for one thousand citizens visiting tar and doughboy. Any man of the army or navy can sleep there for 25 cents, and he is guaranteed a good bed. He can pay 10 cents or 30 cents for his breakfast. Similar accommodations in New York City run by private enterprises would cost these men three times as much.
