

The Devil of Depression

In the readjustment period following the war no one has fought off the Blue Devils of Depression more persistently than organized banking.

From the little country bank to the recent great convention of the bankers of America, a solid front has been presented against depression.

Our country is facing the new era of economic prosperity that must come—in fact elements of prosperity are present and functioning and present on every hand.

The old theory that the bankers prospered in hard times, when interest rates were high and money scarce, has been destroyed by experience.

Banks and bankers are the barometers of economic and industrial conditions and are largely the cause of wiping out the spirit of depression.

The peddlers of gloom, the prophets of failure, the fomenters of discord, cannot peddle that stuff over the bank counter and get anywhere.

The nightmare of depression has been driven from the counting rooms of business and industries and is passing out of the minds of the public.

This bank rejoices with its patrons over the return to normal business conditions.

ACCUSATION FILED SETS FORTH CHARGE AGAINST SEN. JONES

Charging that Walter B. Jones, local attorney and Lane county senator, appropriated to himself $9,810.71 of the estate of Hester M. O'Dell, for which he was guardian, a copy of the accusation which the grievance committee of the Oregon State Bar association has filed with the supreme court in the disbarment proceedings, has been received in this city. The accusation sets forth the specific charges of which Senator Jones is accused.

Jones was appointed on his own petition guardian of the estate of Miss O'Dell on February 10, 1919, by the probate court of Multnomah county and gave bonds in the sum of $7500, according to records. It was understood that he was to resign anytime that the Miss O'Dell wished and make an accounting, and in August, 1919, she did make such a demand, according to the accusation which charges Jones refused to resign and Jones was relieved from his duties of guardian by the court. The accusation further charges that Jones collected large sums of money belonging to the estate even after he was relieved as guardian. In all he is charged with having appropriated to himself $9,810.71 of which $7000 has been paid back to the estate by his sureties.

The grievance committee's report says "the committee has found reasonable grounds to believe that Jones is guilty of willfully defrauding, deceit and misconduct in his profession and deserves disbarment from practice." The accusation is signed by Lorin K. Adams, A. L. Veazie, and Alfred Dobson, composing the grievance committee of the state bar association.

Jones is cited to appear in circuit court tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to answer charges of contempt and misconduct in spiriting away witnesses in the state of the case against Jones. Jones was attorney for Stone and it is charged by District Attorney Clyde N. Johnston he paid state's witnesses to go to California in order to keep them from testifying.

Plan to Slash Rates by Measured Phone Service

Olympia, Wash., March 21.—A 60 day test of measured telephone service at rates which will mean drastic reductions to 90 per cent of the subscribers was authorized by the department of public works today. It is instituted by the Puget Sound Telephone company at Everett, starting April first.
The length of all telephone conversations will be measured by means of the Telechronometer, an instrument devised for that purpose, and subscribers will be billed for the number of telechrones per consumer, a telechrome being one minute of telephone conversation.
Preliminary investigations and experiments in the use of measured service have been carried on at Everett for two years, under the supervision of the department.
At the end of the trial period the department will hold a hearing to determine equitable rates for the measured service in permanent use.

Mrs. McCormick Would Have Daughter Wed in Own "Clan"

Chicago, March 21.—"If a woman marries outside her own class she becomes a slave." These words, uttered in an address on ancient customs by Mrs. Harold McCormick, were interpreted today by social leaders as her disapproval of the engagement of her daughter, Mathilda to Max Oser, Swiss stableman. Although Harold F. McCormick has approved, the wife who divorced him has never sanctioned it.
Mrs. McCormick spoke before representative women who plan a woman's progress exposition.
She said, in olden times, when a man became bored with his own tribe, he stole a bride from another clan and that "the bride had a sorry time of it."

HEIRESS DENIES BUTLER

New York, March 21.—Attorneys for August Probst, former butler of the fashionable Rolling Rock club near Pittsburgh, today charged before Federal Judge Knox that he had been kidnapped and an attempt made to deport him because he loved Miss Virginia C. McKay, wealthy society girl.
Judge Knox was asked to release Probst from custody. He is held by immigration officials, who propose to deport him to Switzerland, his native land.
The other side of the story is that Probst is insane; that his story about Miss McKay is a hallucination and that he should be deported as an undesirable alien.
Miss McKay lives in Pittsburgh. She denies that Probst either is insane or is making an attempt to blackmail members of the Rolling Rock club. She says she never even knew the butler's name.

4 MEN, 3 WOMEN, ARRESTED IN HOTEL

Four men and three women were arrested by Sheriff Fred Stickle in room 511 at the hotel shortly before 12 o'clock last night after the sheriff had been called to the hotel to quell what guests called a disturbance. Three of the men were confined for the night in the county jail and one man and the three women were allowed to go to their homes and report today.

The arrested gave the following names, which the sheriff says are probably all fictitious: Jennie Smith, Ellen Gibbons, Mabel Smith, W. E. Elford, A. M. Amther, H. Griffin and Jim Shabad. They are being questioned this afternoon by District Attorney Clyde N. Johnston as to what went on at the "party" and where they got the booze. Johnston stated before the quiz started that he probably would let most of the party off with disorderly conduct charges which would draw light fines if they would tell where they got the booze.

The arrest was made last night by Sheriff Stickle after he had received a telephone call from a guest at the hotel that a "boisterous booze party was going on." The sheriff says he stood in the hall and listened to what was going on before entering the room. When he opened the door more than a gallon of moonshine was in sight but one of the men tried to destroy the evidence, says the sheriff. However, enough was saved to be evidence in a case of illegal possession of liquor, according to the sheriff.
Those arrested at the party were all local people. The women were about 20 or 22 years old.
