

Ulysses S. Grant

Born Apr. 27, 1822

Whose centenary we are now observing, was a man of few words. He could, however, utter pat and homely phrases like this one: "I propose to fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer," that would stick in men's memories.

The same persistent spirit of this great man when applied to regular and systematic saving is also sure to bring "Victory" even though the goal may take "all summer" to attain.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Eugene.

Established while Grant was still living.

ENGLAND'S YOUNGEST WIFE

London.—England's youngest wife was Catherine Mary Jenkins, who, it developed at her funeral, was married when she was twelve. The coffin-plate showed her age as 14. It was found after her death that she had been married secretly to her school teacher two years earlier.

CONFERENCE WITH HOOVER IMPORTANT STATES A. C. DIXON

Steps of far reaching importance to the public as well as the commercial interests of the country were taken at the recent Washington conference called by Secretary Hoover, of the department of commerce, in the opinion of A. C. Dixon, who represented the West Coast Lumbermen's association, of which he is president, at the meeting. In addition to a brief resume of the work of the conference, Mr. Dixon gives some insights into the personality of Secretary Hoover, who made a very favorable impression on the hundreds of business men from all parts of the country in attendance at the conference.

Seek Standardization.

"The government, by means of Mr. Hoover and the department of commerce, is endeavoring to work through the 2900 trade associations in the United States to obtain information regarding the country's commercial industries, to secure the standardization of products and the simplification of manufacturing and to work out a plan whereby statistical information gathered by the associations will be used alike for the benefit of the public and the members of these associations," explained Mr. Dixon. "Mr. Hoover addressed a construction conference at Chicago, which was attended by representatives of all the building trades—lumbermen, brickmakers, cement contractors, architects, etc."

Advantages Explained.

"The advantage of standardization of all lines of manufacturing was explained by Mr. Hoover. For example, the different sizes of paving bricks has been reduced from 66 to less than a dozen. Many other articles are made in a number of sizes and styles for which there is little demand, leading to useless confusion and unnecessary labor."

"Mr. Hoover expected 75 men to attend the Washington conference. Instead, 400 came, necessitating moving to more commodious quarters. Representatives of trade associations were urged to turn over to the department of commerce all information which came into their possession, which would be of value to other workers in the same line or to the public in general.

Mr. Dixon declared that he and his associates were in hearty sympathy with Hoover's ideas upon the subject of publicity and would take pleasure in furnishing the department of commerce all facts, figures, and other data which they have or may in the future acquire, and that there is nothing which they are doing or care to do in connection with their business which they would care to keep from the public.

Admires Herbert Hoover.

The way Herbert Hoover managed the conference elicited much admiration from the business men in attendance, said Mr. Dixon, who describes the commerce secretary as a man of keen intellect, quick thought, sound judgment, sincere purpose and a deep sense of obligation on the part of his department to serve the public. In making a public address he speaks with the absolute assurance of one who has complete mastery of his subject, with quiet conviction, never hesitating for a word and with his whole mind concentrated upon the question under consideration.

HOLT CONFERS WITH WEST LANE GROWERS

Arrangements are being made for the construction of the new cannery unit at Cushman by J. O. Holt, manager of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association, who is there today meeting with western lane growers. The new plant at Cushman is being built chiefly to take care of the large blackberry crop on the coast each year which now has to be shipped to Eugene to be canned. The building of a cannery unit of the association on the coast is expected to be an important step toward development of the fruit industry in the western part of the county.

The details for the construction of the new packing plant at Cushman are also about worked out. It is announced. The growers in that vicinity have worked out a plan of financing the new green fruit in addition to the cannery there and construction is expected to start soon.

All the plants of the association are now being put in shape for a bumper crop this year. The new addition to the packing warehouse in Eugene is practically completed and general repair work is going on.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

Chicago, April 29.—A fair strong opening. May wheat broke five cents within five minutes on the Chicago board of trade at 11:30 today, resulting in all grain quotations closing lower. Wheat advanced at the opening due to heavy export demand and unfavorable crop reports from Europe. Heavy selling of May wheat with few buyers developed. Most of the selling was indicated by buyers. The break was also influenced by reports from Kansas City that Chicago interests were buying all the cash grain available there for shipment to Chicago to meet May contracts. Provisions were lower.

May wheat opened up 1 1-8 at $1.43 1-4 and closed down 3 1-2.

July opened up 7-8 at $1.27 1-8 and closed off 1 cent. September opened up 1-2 at $1.19 and closed down 1-2.

May corn opened off 1-4 at 61 7-8 and closed down 1 cent. July opened up 1-4 at 63 1-2 and closed down 3-4. September opened unchanged at 67 7-8 and closed off 1-2. May oats opened off 3-8 at 37 1-8 and closed down 1-2. July opened off 1-3 at 40 1-8 and closed off 1-4. September opened unchanged at 41 7-8 and closed off 3-8.
