FRIENDLY RELATIONS OF U. P. AND S. P. ARE ADVANTAGE-SPROULE

Portland, June 21.—The Southern Pacific and Union Pacific have been close and friendly connections from the time the Overland route was opened, they continue so at this time and any competent management of the Southern Pacific will continue those friendly relations because they are to the self-interest of both companies while also to the advantage of the public.

This statement was made here today by William Sproule, president, Southern Pacific company, who discussed "fears of the Union Pacific that this friendly relation might be broken by the Central Pacific falling into unfriendly control and the Union Pacific might thus be injured, and further, that if Southern Pacific as it now exists has attached to it the Rock Island System or some other, such new relation might alienate the Southern Pacific's friendly interest from the Union Pacific."

Mr. Sproule pointed out that the Southern Pacific has not sought, and is not seeking, ownership of other lines, but merely asks that the Southern Pacific lines as now in existence be allowed to remain unbroken, "that the public may have the advantage of its unbroken public service as a common carrier rather than substitute for it a disrupted service under two carriers."

With further reference to the connection of the Central Pacific created under the same management as the Southern Pacific since 1870 with the Union Pacific at Ogden to form the Overland route, Mr. Sproule said:

There can be no such thing as closing a gateway or restricting its use. The Southern Pacific could not of its own motion divert a ton of freight or a passenger from the Union Pacific, and neither could the Union Pacific so divert from the Southern Pacific, if the shipper or passenger stipulated for movement over the Central Pacific or Union Pacific, or both.

"Today every shipper routes his freight over the line he designates, demands a bill of lading showing that routing and it is given him free. This the law requires and it could not be withheld if the railroad wished to withhold it."

Noting that the supreme court did not justify its recent decision, ordering separation of Southern Pacific and Central Pacific lines, by any reference to the Pacific railroad acts, the Southern Pacific executive said the Pacific railroad acts require simply that the line from Omaha to Ogden and Ogden to San Francisco should be operated as one continuous line without discrimination of one road against another no matter who operates them. He continued:

"That the Southern Pacific has at all times performed its duties and obligations under the Pacific railroad acts was acknowledged by Union Pacific officials in their testimony in court.

"It was clearly contemplated by congress that the through line might be operated in separate ownership by two companies, for congress by the act of May 6, 1870, fixed the common terminus and point of junction of the Union Pacific with the Central Pacific at a point near the station at Ogden within the limits of the sections of land described in the act, and authorized the two companies to acquire and possess these lands in equal shares."

Calling attention to the fact that the Central Pacific "is and has been for so many decades operated as part of the railroad system of the Southern Pacific that the whole operation has been a unit built up to the Pacific coast by the Pacific coast," Mr. Sproule continued:

"Every device suggested for tearing asunder this system is in the nature of a mere makeshift. The fact is that if such were undertaken it would be necessary first for this company to rid itself of the Central Pacific, with or without a buyer. The Central Pacific would then have to connect up its separate lines and rearrange its terminals in order to connect up its service. The Southern Pacific would have to find means of connecting its separated terminals and separate lines in order to continue its service."

"Both would involve expenditures from which the public would derive no benefit. After it was all done they would have no better line service than before, but would have to deal with two lines instead of one. Then, to run the roads new operating organizations would be created, for the present operating divisions and train runs would become misfits. The breaking up of the lines would be without any relation to present division and train arrangements. This would seriously affect the yard, engine and trainmen and undo for them much that has required years to achieve."

Want Fair Consideration. Portland, June 21.—Issues involved in the Central Pacific-Southern Pacific-Union Pacific controversy are of such tremendous importance to Oregon and Washington that it is imperative that to be all the facts placed before the business interests of the state and then let the decision come as to Oregon's stand after a fair time had been given for consideration.

This was the attitude expressed by the special railway committee of the chamber of commerce following its meeting Tuesday afternoon with William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific railroad.

Sproule reiterated to the committee the desire that Portland and Oregon align themselves with the Southern Pacific. The committee has been hearing the viewpoints of both railroads and announced that it had formed no conclusion as to procedure and that there could be no suggestion from any source that there was a division of opinion because no effort has yet been made by the committee to its members to divide the matter until all facts had been presented and considered fully.

Women's Clubs, Social, Personal

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Land and children of Salem arrived in Eugene last Friday and have been the house guests of the J. W. Leona family of this city. While here, they are enjoying the scenery along the McKenzie river, and are returning to Salem today, accompanied by J. H. Latimer, brother to Mrs. Lane and a former resident of Salem.

The Mothers' club will sponsor a mother and daughter picnic Friday, June 23, at 2 o'clock back of the butte. All invited are enjoying the scenery along the McKenzie river, and are returning to Salem today, accompanied by J. H. Latimer, brother to Mrs. Lane and a former resident of Salem.

Mrs. Eva Barhite leaves for Portland Sunday to attend the G. A. R. convention in Newport June 26 to 30.

Arthur Feazer, concert pianist, who had planned on visiting in Eugene in September, has written his parents that he will be here the last two weeks of August for his vacation.

Mrs. J. H. Dotson of Albany and Octavia De Lap of Turlock, California, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Erickson. They came to attend the graduation exercises at the University, Virgil DeLap being one of the graduates. They will return to their homes some time the coming week.

The Friendly Neighbors club enjoyed a delightful picnic Tuesday evening on the Lorane road, eight miles west of Eugene. This will probably be the last meeting of the club until September.

Mrs. G. N. Fraser was hostess to the Wednesday Whist club this afternoon at her home, and besides club members, entertained the following guests: Mrs. L. T. Harris of Salem, Mrs. Harry Hobbs, Mrs. J. N. Fuller and Mrs. Martha L. Delfield. Pink and white roses tastefully placed about the rooms, formed the decorations.

George Barnes, Nebraska whirlwind who is to wrestle Ralph Hand, Cottage Grove, on Fulton's card at the armory Friday night, is training today and will train tonight with Ben Howard at the latter's place in Menure. Barnes has been doing most of his workouts in Fulton's cigar store, but thought a day or so training in private would serve to keep him from getting rusty on holds that he does not like to flash in public because of the chance that his opponent might become too familiar with them.

Howard is to wrestle Butler on the same card. No word has come from Cottage Grove as to how Hand is making out, but as Hand always steps on to the mat in tripe shape no fears are felt on that score.

Tickets are selling good for the wrestling smoker, says Bulton, and the fans are showing a lot of interest.

Million Dollar Rain In Sight, Declare Farmers

With the heavy downpours this afternoon farmers are becoming jubilant over the prospect for a real June rain. A heavy rain would mean a million dollars in benefit to Willamette valley crops, they declare. While there is some hay down it will not be materially damaged if it does not rain too long and the little damage done would be overcome many times by the benefits.

Spring grain was being hardest hit by the dry spell especially in places where the last rain did not fall. There is danger of it not filling properly, say the farmers. Orchard and vegetable growers are also pleased with the cloudy skies and downpours today.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CONFERENCE ON TODAY

The annual convention of the western district of the American Physical Education association opened today in the University building at an address by J. A. Churchill, Oregon state superintendent of schools, on "The Place of Physical Education in Oregon." The discussion following his address was led by Miss Florence Alden, head of the department of physical education for women at the university.

Mrs. J. F. Hill, president of the 32nd Teacher association of Oregon, followed with an address on "The Importance of Physical Education from the Standpoint of the Parent."

Dr. James Edward Rogers, executive secretary of the American Recreational association, is scheduled for an address at 8 o'clock tonight on "The Modern Tendencies in Physical Education." The public is invited to attend any or all of these meetings, which will be held in the Women's League room on the third floor of the Woman's building. Dr. Rogers will make an address at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on "Conservation of Leisure as a National Resource; Its Relation to Physical Education."

The convention will complete its sessions on Friday at the Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis.

I. W. W. CONSTITUTION CHANGED

Sacramento, Cal., June 21.—Claims that the constitution of the I. W. W. has been changed since the passage of the 1919, were made by Walter Smith, defendant, in the trial of I. W. W. late yesterday. Smith, member of the general executive board, said the constitution had been changed at each of the organization's 13 annual meetings.

The testimony was called forth when the prosecution introduced evidence to show the I. W. W. to be an organization that practices sabotage.

The case will go to the jury Thursday, it is believed.

DISSIPATIONS OF RICH 'RILE' JUDGE LINDSEY

Denver, June 21.—"If we're going to have a hell raise let's all raise hell together."

This statement by Juvenile Judge Ben B. Lindsey, here today marked another of his repeated attacks on laws that permit the rich to "drink, dance and jockey," and that forbid the poorer classes the same pleasures.

"Speaking from absolute knowledge, I say there is far more rotteness in the dances held in certain private homes and exclusive clubs here than there is in the public dance halls," America's noted juvenile court authority declared.

"It impresses me that these welfare societies and even the churches are not concerned about these things among the rich," Judge Lindsey continued.

"The challenge to these well meaning organizations is 'why not busy yourselves about the licentiousness and lawlessness in the pleasures of the rich as in those of the poor?'"

"It is getting so that in this country the lesson to modern youth is to be powerful and wealthy and you can do as you bank please."

"I'd like to use a stronger word than 'blat' but that will do."

Man's Body Found Floating In Willamette At Portland

Portland, June 21.—Bound with rope and weighted with iron the well-dressed body of an elderly man was found floating in the Willamette river under the Burnside bridge at 7:15 o'clock this morning. Means of identification were lacking.

The man was of medium height, about 50 years of age and had with a fringe of gray hair about his head. The body was clothed in a black suit, black shoes, white shirt and white collar, and a gaberdine coat, which was buttoned tightly over a black Stetson hat.

At first the county coroner's jury was inclined to think that the man might have met with foul play but upon investigation found that the iron weights were tied about the body in such a manner as the man, himself, might have placed them. The arms and legs were free. The coroner expressed belief that the case was suicide.
