 countered sharp advances on the Chi-

Contest for Trombone Championship

Ship Trombonists Hold Keen Contest for Championship of North Atlantic

New York. An endurance test for the trombone playing championship of the North Atlantic has just concluded and the title has passed to the challenger despite claims of foul made by the loser. The umpire of the unique event will have difficulty with his hearing for some time to come. He is being congratulated, however, on retaining his reason, although he admits that the ordeal was one that had him on the verge of a brain-storm.

Harry Brown, trombone player in the band of the Steamship President Fillmore of the United States Lines, is no longer long distant horn tooter of the North Atlantic. Wearing the laurels of victory today is Carl Jacob, trombonist extraordinary in the band of the Steamship George Washington. He is not champion because of greater lung power, nor because of better lip control, but rather because of an unexpected calamity that put the former champion hors de combat. But being a good sport, as well as an excellent trombonist, the new champion declares he will shortly give his dethroned adversary another try for the title.

Brown came into the trombone testing after a series of elimination contests and won his honor after a decisive victory in Bremerhaven, Germany, when the top-notch performer of another steamship line went down before his glorious blasts. Then came the challenge from Jacob of the Steamship George Washington.

The battle was staged on the deck of the Steamship President Fillmore. According to the rules of the contest the men were to play continuously for two hours and if neither gave up tooting before that time the championship was to be decided on points. W. T. Robertson, port steward of the United States Lines, was chosen as umpire. Each player decided as to his musical selections, the agreement being that neither would repeat the same piece during the two hours of the contest.

At a signal from the Umpire the contest was on and the terrific rumpus that followed caused many of the spectators to hold their ears. At the end of the first hour the result seemed about even and then both of the trombonists redoubled their efforts.

About ten minutes of playing was left when an awful thing happened. The champ happened to look under a life-buoy and was greeted by a sight that caused cold preparation to break out upon him. Under the boat was a grinning steward lustily sucking upon a lemon. Try as he might to avoid the sight Brown's eyes could not resist the lemon-sucker.

Sour notes began to issue from the trombone of Brown. His mouth began to pucker and his eyes seemed to pop from his head. Instead of music there came forth from his instrument a weird, prolonged moan as though from a great beast in mortal agony. The moan diminished, droned down and ceased. The champion could not blow a note. The contest was over and Jacob was declared winner. He had not seen the lemon-sucker and continued to play for the full two hours.

Washington Mine Men To Seek Settlement

Seattle, Aug. 21.—At a conference to be held Wednesday in Seattle, mine operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America will attempt to reach agreement that will permit the opening of at least half a dozen of the closed mines in western Washington.

Arrangements for the conference were made by request of the mine workers through their president Ben Fairmount. It is expected that in event of successful negotiations the Cleehum and Rosslyn mines, largest in the state, will be the first to resume operations.

Max Is Delayed in Securing License

Basle, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—Red tax of the Swiss government prevented Max Oser from obtaining a license to wed Mathilde McCormick, John D. Rockefeller's granddaughter, last Saturday. It became known here today that Max Oser, captain in the Swiss army and former keeper of a livery stable at Zurich, was turned down by officials when he applied at the marriage license bureau, upon a technicality which can easily be obviated, it was said. It was expected that the groom would renew his efforts this week.

According to Swiss law, public notice of a proposed marriage must be given a fortnight before it occurs.

Since this is the legal residence of Oser, it is expected that the ban will be posted here.

Device Ages Booze Six Years Every 24 Hours

New York.—Flavor swapping is no crime, but the rule of Harry Calahan and Jake Lieberman, were suspected of having stolen the sedans they drove. They explained they unwittingly got their cars mixed.

Atlantic City.—Police seized a still capable of turning out 16 gallons of motor fuel a day. A device on it made it possible to age the liquor six years every 21 hours.

New Record Set For Local Course

A new record was set yesterday for the local golf course by T. E. Gardner, the club professional. Gardner made the remarkably low score of 35 for nine holes. The previous record of 36 was held jointly by four players: A. L. Longstaff, former club professional, Chandler Egan, Bert Prescott, and E. O. Linnick.

This makes the second course record to be held by Gardner. He has a 32 on the Aberdeen course which also stands as the best score made on that grounds. Gardner reports the club course as being in excellent shape for play.

DR. DALE IN PORTLAND
 Dr. William H. Dale, a Eugene physician, is spending a few days in Portland and is at the Multnomah. Dr. Dale is well known throughout Oregon and until recently practiced at Harrisburg, where he had charge of a hospital. The Harrisburg hospital is recognized as one of the best small town hospitals in the state and many people from larger places go there because of the advantages it affords as a place for recuperation, due to the absence of noise and bustle.—Oregonian.
