Officer Clawed When He Attempts Arrest

Portland, Ore., Nov. 21.—(U. P.)—W. L. Scott, patrolman of the auto theft squad of the Portland police force, must seek the services of an eye specialist today to save the sight of an eye, which Mrs. Ernest Simms tried to claw out, in an endeavor to protect her husband from arrest, it is said.

Simms, police say, had sold a car for which he had not completed payments. Later he borrowed the car, reported it stolen, set fire to it and attempted to collect insurance.

Simms is lodged in the city jail today, but no charge has been laid against his wife for the vicious attack she made upon the officer during the fight Tuesday night.
